Truman Signs Largest U.S. Military Appropriation Bill

Sidetracks Congress Demand For 58-Group Air Force; Sets Aside $615,000,000 Meant By Lawmakers To Go For Air Arm

By Francis J. Kelly

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—(AP)—President Truman overrode congress today on the hotly-debated 58-group air force issue.

He signed a $15,585,863,498 military appropriation—the biggest in peacetime history—but in doing so he ordered the secretary of defense to impound $615,000,000 that the lawmakers had voted to build up the air force to 58-groups.

Mr. Truman's budget provided for a 48-group and that is about what he'll now get. The air force will acquire about 1,400 new planes instead of 1,800.

In forbidding the proposed expansion of the air arm, the president said in effect that it isn't only the original cost but the upkeep—more men to man the planes, more operating costs, more replacement expense; all in all "greatly increased" future expenses.

Furthermore, he declared, to give the air force more than provided in his budget would be "inconsistent with a realistic and balanced security program which we can support in peacetime."

The $15,585,863,498 appropriation represents more than $100 for each man, woman and child in the United States. It is far more than one-third of the entire federal budget.

Heads of the house and senate appropriations committees did not question the validity of the president's action. Senator Byrd (D-Va.), who has led a fight to cut federal costs, praised it. But some Republican lawmakers were critical.

Senator Brewster (R-Maine), interviewed at Bangor, Maine, said he was not surprised at the president's move but added it raises the question: "What are the limits of his disregard of congress?"

Maine's other senator, Margaret Chase Smith, also a Republican, said she had been for a 70-group air force, doesn't believe 48 groups are enough,

MASSIVE ARRESTS PLAGUE BULGARIA

Officials, Workers, Peasants Held; New Prisons Under Construction

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, Oct. 29.—(AP)—Yugoslavia's press said today Bulgaria has turned to mass arrests of officials, workers and peasants as part of the Russian-led cominform's effort to curb the spread of Titoism—nationalistic communism.

Bulgaria has been forced into extensive construction of new concentration camps because "old camps are filled," said the Communist newspaper Borba, voice of Premier Marshal Tito's government.

At the same time, Yugoslavia accused Hungary—another of her Communist neighbors—of stirring up new trouble on the border. The interior ministry charged that Hungarian troops fired rifles and threw grenades across the frontier near the town of Donji Miholjac Thursday night in a "warmongering provocation." The ministry added, however, that no one was injured and Yugo-

LITTLE PROGRESS IN LABOR TIEUPS

Requests For Jobless Aid Sought By Thousands In Strike Areas

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 29.—(AP)—Another slivver of hope slanted feebly across the nation's darkened steel-coal strike picture today.

The government—working feverishly to crack the industry-stifling steel deadlock—dropped squarely in the lap of the C. I. O. United Steelworkers a move by small producers to recall the presidential fact finding board for clarification of its peace formula.

Otherwise, the situation remained as dour as ever.

The steel and coal strike twins have outgrown their swaddling clothes. A robust four and six weeks old respectively, they have left the nation's economy battered.

While President Truman says the strikes do not yet add up to a national emergency, more than a million workers are idled and losses are in the hundreds of million of dollars.

In the steel and coal capital of Pittsburgh, requests for jobless aid are flooding state employment offices at the rate of 10,000 a day, most of them as indirect result of the strikes. That's the pattern elsewhere.

Federal mediators are continuing talks with top steel producers in an effort to drive a peace wedge into the stalemate but say they haven't gotten anywhere yet. The coal strike is just jogging along with negotiations off until Tuesday.

Steelworker President Philip Murray has 500,000 unionists out of the mills in his fight for free pensions and insurance. United Mine Workers Chief John L. Lewis doesn't call strikes but 380,000 of his men are staying home in support of his fight for a new contract with more pay, more pensions.

Recall of the steel fact finders was suggested by President William H. Colvin, Jr., of Crucible Steel Company in Pittsburgh. He directed the request to U. S. Mediation Director Cyrus H. Ching, who passed it along to Murray.

In Cleveland for the convention of the C. I. O. which he also heads, Murray was not available for comment. But Steelworker Secretary-Treasurer

CIGARETTE TAX VIOLATORS WILL BE DEALT WITH

Persons Buying Out Of State Smokes To Evade Tax Cautioned

MOST STATES PLANNING VIGOROUS ENFORCEMENT

(By Associated Press)

Tax collectors in 38 states are on the hunt for new game—the fellow who buys out of state cigarettes by mail order to save paying his state tax.

They hope to flush some $20,000,000 in taxes out of his pockets next year.

The tax men got the go-ahead signal Oct. 19 when President Truman signed new cigarette tax legislation.

This law requires persons selling cigarettes in interstate commerce to furnish the tax administrators of each state where they have customers with a complete list of people—except regularly licensed distributors — receiving such goods during the previous month.

A nationwide survey by the Associated Press showed Saturday that most states plan vigorous tax enforcement. Some are going clear down to single carton level to sock buyers with bills for unpaid taxes and penalties.

There are eight states that have no cigarette taxes. The bulk of the mail order business is conducted from some of these states. They are California, Colorado, Maryland, Missouri, North Carolina, Oregon, Virginia and Wyoming.

Two other states—Illinois and Nevada—are prevented by their own state laws or court decisions from collecting from consumers a tax on cigarettes bought out of state. These states have a sellers rather than users tax, so their residents still can buy mail order cigarettes for their own use without paying a tax.

The remaining 38 states all report they expect to take advantage of the additional tax collection opportunity. A few of them however, including New York, Illinois and Idaho, expect to concentrate on distributors inside their own states who resell untaxed cigarettes they obtain out of state.

The cigarette mail order houses are considering a test of the constitutionality of the law. Some of these firms bitterly attacked the legislation as "an obvious restraint of trade by setting up tariff walls around each state."

But meanwhile, these firms are in a difficult situation. A few smaller shippers are considering going out of

ENLISTED MEN RALLY AROUND ADMIRAL DENFELD

Lollar Is Acquitted On Flogging Charge

Former Deputy And Ex-Klansman Gets Applause From Courtroom Spectators After Jury Reports; 17 Others Will Be Tried

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Oct. 29.—(AP)—A self-identified ex-klansman today was acquitted of masked flogging.

The jury's verdict freeing Coleman A. (Brownie) Lollar was greeted with loud applause by courtroom spectators.

Lollar, former special sheriff's deputy, was accused by the state of participating with other robed and masked men in the manhandling of Mrs. Hugh McDanal June 10.

The state said the band broke into Mrs. McDanal's home and forced her to watch a cross-burning.

Mrs. McDanal testified her attackers accused her of "selling whiskey and renting rooms to couples."

Just before the jury retired for its brief deliberation—less than an hour—Solicitor Emmett Perry (prosecutor) urged a guilty verdict.

"Tell this man with a lash," demanded Perry, "that he is not above the law."

Immediately after the verdict was announced, Lollar was surrounded by

TRIAL OF FUTCH SLATED MONDAY

Former Secretary-Treasurer Of Union Parish Accused Of Theft

FARMERVILLE, La., Oct. 29.—(Special)—The postponed trial of P. T. Futch, former secretary-treasure of the Union Parish police jury indicted last March 9 for the theft of $41,190 of parish funds, is again scheduled to begin at 10 a. m. Monday in Third District court here.

District Attorney Regan Madden said today a veniremen list of possible jurymen and 30 witnesses had been summoned to appear during the first day of the trial.

Madden estimated it would take a "full week" to try the case. He told a reporter there would be an assistant prosecutor for the state but declined to reveal his identity at present.

Futch was originally scheduled to have been tried May 16. The case was postponed indefinitely, however, when Dr. C. Grenes Cole, coroner of Orleans parish, filed a letter with Judge H. W. Ayres stating that Futch's physical condition would not permit him to attend the trial.

Judge Ayres, presiding judge at Futch's indictment, will also preside over the forthcoming trial.

Madden said Futch would be represented by three north Louisiana attorneys, C. E. Barham, of Ruston, Armond Rayburn and James Spencer, both of Farmerville.

Assistant Attorney General M. E. Culligan of New Orleans, last May accompanied Dr. Cole to see Futch

TEACHERS WILL MEET AT N. J. C.

College To Play Host To State English Teachers' Council Nov. 5

Northeast Junior College will play host to the Louisiana Council of Teachers of English in a one-day session Saturday, November 5, announced Miss Clio Allen of Natchitoches, president of the organization.

Mrs. Dorothy N. Younse, head of the department of languages at the local college, is chairman of the committee in charge of arrangements for the campus meeting.

The day's program is scheduled to open at 9 a. m., with registration and a coffee hour in the home economics department. Following at 10 o'clock, is to be a general convocation in Brown Hall auditorium, where Dean Rodney Cline of N. J. C. will welcome guests throughout the state. Special features are to include music by college and high school students.

Guest speaker will be Miss Helene W. Hartley of Syracuse University, past president of the National Council, and an outstanding authority on the teaching of literature, Miss Allen announced.

Luncheon in the college cafeteria will be served after the morning meeting. The group is to convene at 1:15 o'clock for the afternon discussion which is to end at 2:30.

From its inception, the state president explained, the L. C. T. E. has had as one of its primary purposes the bringing of leaders from the National Council whom few English teachers could hope to hear otherwise.

"In making these persons available to the entire state, the L. C. T. E. performs a service of significant value to the English teaching program," Miss Allen declared.

The Louisiana organization, now in its third year, has grown from a membership of twenty-three to about two hundred. Those who are affiliated with the council include instructors from elementary schools, high schools, colleges and a number of parish supervisors.

English teachers from the three local high schools have already made plans to attend Saturday's meeting, Mrs. Younse said.

Former sessions have been held in Shreveport, Baton Rouge, Natchitoches, New Orleans, Lafayette and Alexandria.

State Department Orders Intervention With Highest Reds At Once

STAFF WILL BE TRIED BY 'MUKDEN PEOPLE'S COURT'

By John M. Hightower

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—(AP)—Chinese Communists have seized the American consul general at Mukden and four members of his staff, it was disclosed today. The state department at once ordered intervention with the highest Red authorities.

The Communists accused the official, Angus Ward, and his companions of beating unconscious a former Chinese employe. They said the case would go before "the Mukden People's court."

The arrest apparently came a week or so ago. Official word reached here today after taking five days to squeeze out of China. The Chinese Communist radio gave its version today.

About the same time, the state department hotly denounced actions against American diplomats on the other side of the Communist world—Czechoslovakia. The Red regime there had accused two American diplomats and arrested an embassy clerk on spy charges.

It was learned that almost certainly the next American step will be ouster of one or two Czech diplomats from this country on the ground their activities are contrary to the interests of the United States.

The Czechs have an embassy here and a consulate in New York and other cities.

State department officials took note that the Mukden incident fitted a pattern of crackdowns by Communist authorities on American diplomatic outposts in many places.

The Mukden incident, climax of a year of conflict with the Chinese Communists over the office in strategic Manchuria, caused obvious concern among officials here.

They could not tell what the Chinese Communists are driving at—whether they want to try to expel the consulate staf fin "disgrace," or are seeking a basis for keeping its members there indefinitely.

The Communist radio pictured the Mukden population aroused by the accounts of a "savage and brutal act

Skeleton Is Found Near Oak Grove

OAK GROVE, La., Oct. 29.—(Special)—Hallowe'en came a little early this year for an Oak Grove bricklayer and his son. They found a "real" human skeleton.

Walter Barnett and his son, Sidney Barnett, 26, went squirrel hunting early Friday morning about 15 miles northeast of here in Chiot Count, Ark.

Later during the morning, at about 9:30 a. m., Sidney stumbled upon the bones, an almost complete and undisturbed human skeleton.

The two Louisiana hunters took the lower jaw of the skeleton to Eudora, Ark. and let a dentist there examine it.

They said the Eudora dentist told them that it was a human jaw and that the person which it belonged to was about forty years old.

Barnett said tonight that the bones will be buried where they were found at 2 p. m. Sunday.

Chicot County Sheriff John H. Biggs said that his department "had reasons to believe that the skeleton was one of those persons drowned last year when the tug boat Natchez struck the Greenville, Miss. bridge and sank 20 miles up-river from the spot the skeleton was found."

He said his deputy in Eudora would make a full investigation of the bones and attempt to identify it.

Ouachita-Neville Classic Covered From All Angles

By James V. Mathis
(of the Morning World Staff)

Saturday, 6 p. m.

To Whom It May Concern:

I have been told to do a "color" story on the Ouachita-Neville game tonight. Despite all the sick grandmothers I could muster the order still stands.

A week has been spent in frenzied preparations. I am under no illusions. Somebody will bounce a bottle off my dome tonight—for sure.

A few minutes ago I took stock of the results of my planning. I have:

One battered, portable typewriter. The boss said either write the story at the game or leave before it ended. Unthinkable.

One Red Cross arm band, wrapped in a white flag with a folding stick attached. You never know when these objects will come in handy.

A shrapnel-dented gray helmet, war-time souvenir of good old LST 331. If the bottles fly high, it has its value.

One old Neville identification card. One old Ouachita identification card. I'm really Oak Grove, class of '40, but you gotta be ready.

A neat, compact first aid kit. The salesman said it contained gear for everything from a girl bite to injured feelings. I hope.

One faithful wife. She has proved often that when it comes to the rough stuff she is the better of the two.

One souped-up Ford, with lead weights on the bottom, ready for a quick getaway.

Two cents in small change. A copy

'Open House' To Be Held At L. T. I. Next Sunday

Citizens of Ouachita parish and "the people of Louisiana" have been invited to an "open house" inspection of the Louisiana Training Institute between two and five o'clock on Sunday afternoon, Nov. 6, according to an announcement by officials of the institution yesterday.

The school was criticized recently following an investigation by the parish grand jury.

J. C. Gresham, superintendent of the institution, said he and his board welcomed "constructive criticism" of the school and its operation at all times.

"Open house will be held at the institute on the afternoon of Sunday, Nov. 6 from two to five o'clock for all the people of Louisiana," Mr. Gresham said. "We have greatly improved the physical plant and its operation during the past 16 months and we are proud of our accomplishments," he added. "While there are naturally many things to be desired, we believe most people of Ouachita and the other parishes of the state

Boy Killed When Hit By Auto; Driver Held

LIVINGSTON, La., Oct. 29.—(AP)—Four-year-old Norre Edward Stafford was killed instantly by an automobile near Walker, La., today. Sheriff Taft Faust said a Negro was held on a charge of negligent homicide.

The sheriff identified the man as Lindsey Walker, 22, of Tylertown, Miss., and said he was being held in Tangipahoa parish jail at Hammond pending removal here.

The sheriff said the car struck the boy as he attempted to cross a highway one mile from Walker, and 25 miles west of Hammond. He said witnesses told him the car was driven by a Negro man who had two Negro women companions.

Faust said Walker was arrested in Hammond and that two Negro women are being held as material witnesses.

The child was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Rodney Stafford of Walker.

Pitts, Purdue, Tennessee Deal Out Shocking Upsets

By Harold Classen

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—(AP)—Pittsburgh, Purdue and Tennessee were rude guests today and dealt out shocking college football upsets to Pennsylvania, Minnesota and North Carolina.

Pitt, manhandled by a weak Indiana team last week, bounced Pennsylvania out of the ranks of the undefeated, 22 to 21, on a safety that was scored 38 seconds before the game ended. Bernie Barkouskie, Pitt guard blocked Ray Dooney's punt for the decisive two points.

Purdue crushed both Minnesota's Big Ten title and Rose Bowl hopes with a 13 to 7 victory. The Boilermakers found the vaunted Gopher line vulnerable to both passing and running attacks.

North Carolina was subdued by Tennessee, 35 to 6. Halfback Charlie Justice was injured in the fray but he contributed mental and physical errors before he was hurt that helped the Volunteers triumph.

At virtually all the other sites the football form held true.

Notre Dame, leader in the Associated Press' weekly poll, cruised easily past Navy, 40 to 0, with Ernie Zalejski the hero this time.

Oklahoma was held scoreless for a period before it settled down to destroy Iowa State, 34 to 7, with five different Sooners scoring touchdowns.

Army had no difficulty at all with Virginia Military, 40 to 14, and Kentucky waited until almost the last minute to master little Cincinnati, 14 to 7. Southern Methodist just got by Texas, 7 to 6, with the convalescing Doak Walker kicking the deciding point.

But there were some surprises. Fordham announced its return to the major ranks with a fourth straight victory, this one 42 to 0 over a good Georgetown aggregation. The Rams play equally unbeaten Army next Saturday.

Boston University continued its victory skein with a 46 to 6 conquest of Scranton.

Out in the Midlands there was excitement galore. Iowa was trailing Oregon, 24 to 6, with only seconds to go in the third period. The Hawkeyes Winnsboro Remembers . . .

Mysterious Halloween Murders Still Unsolved

By Percy Fant
(Of The Morning World Staff)

WINNSBORO, La., Oct. 29.—Jack-o-nterns, black cats and witches will in order here tomorrow night, but innsboro isn't forgetting that a ller is still at large—and that it was st a year ago tomorrow that he shot ay the lives of two of its citizens.

t couldn't happen here in this all, but lively Franklin parish nter of about 2,834 inhabitants—but did.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Paola had reed for the night in their Taylor Adion home the night before Halloen.

At around three o'clock the next orning, Sam Paola heard someone rring about in the kitchen and mped from his bed hurriedly to investigate.

He switched the kitchen light on, w the killer, then was shot in the omach. Mrs. Paloa heard the shot and, like her husband, left her bed and ran into a small hallway separating her bedroom from her husband's. She too saw the killer and possibly her husband's body; she screamed, a plea for help that was ended suddenly by a bullet in her chest.

To a nearby neighbor, Mrs. Florence Taylor, the wife of the Winnsboro postmaster, those shots and a scream were just the work of fun-seeking pranksters, but it meant "double murder" to Franklin parish law enforcers.

Sam Paloa, 45, owned and operated an electric and radio equipment shop in Winnsboro.

His wife "was one of the prettiest women in town." Together the Paolas, both of Italian decent, lived quietly and apparently happily in their small home.

"They were friendly; a peaceful sort of couple that didn't have an enemy in the world that I know of," the sorrowful voice of a neighboring woman said a few hours after the bodies were discovered on the rainy, chilly Halloween afternoon.

BODIES FOUND

Paola was a short-wave radio man; that figured into the discovery of the bodies.

William Baker, a young surveyor who lives here, dropped by to see Paola about 5 p. m. "It concerned our radio set," Baker explained to authorities.

"I knocked; that was just before five and it was cold and cloudy. No one answered the door, so I drove to Paola's radio shop up town and when I didn't find him there, I returned to the home.

"I looked through the window and saw him lying on the floor. I was so scared I didn't know exactly what to do for a few minutes. Then I called the authorities," Baker explained.

Paola's body was found lying in a puddle of his own blood near the kitchen door, as though he had just switched on the light.

His wife's body was found stretched in a small hall-way dividing the bath and dining room and connecting separate bedrooms. Both were shot twice with a .22 cal. pistol.

Evidence revealed by Sheriff Hiram Walker indicated that the two were awakened quickly.

Paola's shoes were by his bed and the covers were rolled back hastily.

Mary's house slippers were still beside her bed and the couple were clad in their night clothes.

RE-ENACTS MURDERS

The sheriff re-enacted the killing like this:

"Apparently Paola heard some one come in the back door, the one opening into the kitchen. He got up hurriedly, rushed to the light switch,

Provisional Constitution To Unite Indonesia Is Signed

By Nel Slis

THE HAGUE, The Netherlands, Oct. 29.—(AP)—A provisional constitution for the United States of Indonesia was signed here today, but an authoritative Indonesian source said disagreement over New Guinea might still threaten final success of negotiations.

Unless there is a hitch the Dutch plan to transfer sovereignty over the former Dutch East Indies to the U. S. I. in mid-December. The islands, rich in rubber, tea and tin, are inhabited by 70,000,000 persons, more than seven times the number living in Holland.

The provisional constitution was drafted by Dutch and Indonesian delegates at a round table conference in session here since Aug. 22. If the New Guinea problem is settled the document is expected to be approved formally next Thursday.

The disagreement over New Guinea hinges on the fact the Indonesians want it as a full-fledged member of U. S. I., whereas the Dutch want the big, undeveloped island to have special status.

At a meeting of the conference's steering committee this afternoon, an informant said, J. N. van Maarseveen, Dutch minister for overseas territories, declared Holland will not yield sovereignty over the vast territory. East Indonesian Premier Anak Agung said any other agreement would be unacceptable.

Anak Agung, supported by the entire Indonesian group, was understood to have offered the Dutch special arrangements regarding New Guinea but conditioned on Indonesian sovereignty.

The steering committee resumed its discussions of the subject tonight.

Agreement has been reached on virtually all other matters, although the delegate from East Sumatra was reported to have signed the provisional charter with one reservation. He said his signature will be withdrawn unless the question of the south-Asahan and Labuha-Batu districts is settled. Jurisdiction over these two areas is disputed by East Sumatra and the Indonesian Republic.

Delegates from the following 16 states and autonomous areas signed the document: Indonesian Republic, the States of Indonesia, East Sumatra, Pasundan, East Java, Madoera and South Sumatra, and the autonomous areas of Central Java, Bangka, Billiton, Riouw, West Borneo, East Borneo, Southeast Borneo, Central Borneo and Bandjar.

The constitution provides for a non-party president, a cabinet headed by a prime minister and a parliament consisting of a senate and house of representatives.

The Republic of Indonesia, which has fought for independence since the liberation from the Japanese occupation, will have one-third of the seats in the house of representatives.

The preamble says the constitution is based on "the recognition of divine power, democracy, nationalism, human rights and social justice" and aims at realization of "the blessings of prosperity, peace and freedom."

GIANT PIG MAKES SELF 'AT HOME'

275-Pounder Wants To Stay Behind Stove Where He Was Raised

ARLINGTON, Iowa, Oct. 29.—(AP)—A 275-pound pig, name of Gus, is a frequent and welcome guest in the parlor of the Pete Bachtell farm home near here.

Gus developed a penchant for life indoors when the Bachtell family reared him behind the kitchen range.

Gus was abandoned at birth by his mother. The Bachtells gave him his start with warm milk fed from a baby bottle.

Although Gus now hag permanent quarters in the barnyard, he frequently follows the Bachtells indoors.

On these occasions Gus immediately heads for the scatter rug in front of the radio and reclines contentedly.

Mrs. Bachtell says she doesn't protest too much. Gus is housebroken and his manners are above reproach.

As pigs go, Gus is a handsome spotted Poland China. Puppy-like, he will nuzzle the Bachtells in friendly fashion. He grows jealous when attention is paid to Tony, the family dog.

The Bachtells say Gus has several accomplishments:

He knows his own name and will respond when called.

He knows the sound of the Bachtell jeep. When he hears it coming he romps happily to the spot where it customarily is parked and awaits its arrival.

He likes human companionship and recently trudged a mile through field and wood to keep Bachtell company while he sawed wood.

There's a big question mark about Gus' future. He is now at a weight when most pigs are lively candidates for conversion into bacon and pork roast.

The Bachtells dislike to think about such a possibility. They say Gus ought to be in a circus.

GRAVES WILL BE BLESSED TODAY

Exercise Will Be Held In Catholic Cemetery This Afternoon

The beautiful ceremonies of the blessing of the graves, the public recitation of the Rosary and Benediction of the Most Blessed Sacrament, will take place in St. Matthew's Catholic Cemetery, Washington and 11th streets, this afternoon, Sunday, Oct. 30, at 3 p. m.

The procession of the priests and altar boys, together with the fourth degree Knights of Columbus, as an honor guard, will form at the entrance of St. Matthew's Cemetery at 3 p. m. and proceed around the cemetery grounds, reciting the Rosary and sprinkling each grave with holy water. All those who attend this ceremony will join in the procession around the cemetery and then assemble in front of the chapel where appropriate hymns will be sung and Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament will be given.

The graves are usually decorated with flowers and lighted candles, as a sign of love and respect for the dearly beloved departed and a prayer for their eternal rest in God's Heavenly Kingdom. The lighted candles are a sign of our faith in the future resurrection of our departed ones who have died in the grace and friendship of God, and who await the final judgment in God's Heavenly Kingdom.

The public is most cordially invited to join with their Catholic friends in this public act of respect and prayer for the departed members of St. Matthew's congregation who are buried in St. Matthew's Catholic Cemetery.

CAREER ACT AID ADVANCEMENT

Qualified Young Men In Army And Air Force Can Get Promotions

Under the army and air force career promotion system recently fully implemented by the passage of the career compensation act of 1949 on October 12, a qualified young man can reach non-commissioned status within the period of his first 3-year enlistment, according to Sgt. Jack L. Holloway, in charge of the U. S. army and U. S. air force recruiting station here.

Sgt. Holloway said that the highlights of the new career plan in both the army and air force are service in a professional status, work on the frontiers of military science, advancement according to individual ability and performance, sound, planned career guidance on a personal basis, the world's best technical and administrative training and regular pay commensurate with pay in civilian status.

Enlistment standards are higher under the new system because of the assured advancement and higher pay. Both the army and air force have increased the mental and service standards for enlistment or reenlistment. Sgt. Holloway said that his office is fully prepared to explain the details of the new career compensation system to any interested young man. The recruiting station is now in its new location in room 217, Post Office Building.

Pours Oil On Wife's Head; Arrested, Held

BELLEFONTE, Pa., Oct. 29.—(AP)—A soldier was held in the Centre county jail here today after police said he poured kerosene on his wife's head and then pushed her over an oil stove.

Constable Sarkis Joseph at nearby Howard said he arrested Pvt. Russell Fike, 38, of Fort Meade, Md., yesterday, and committed him to the jail He added that formal charges will not be filed until the outcome of Mrs. Fike's injuries is known.

She was moved to the Lock Haven Hospital where doctors said she suffered a fracture of the skull and severe burns on the head and back.

The officer said that Fike told him he wanted a divorce and his wife wouldn't give it to him.

Joseph said Fike told him he had argued with his wife, poured the kerosene on her head and pushed her head over an oil stove. He ran out through a window but was arrested a short time later in a nearby cornfield.

Poland Shuts Doors On Care Relief Program

WARSAW, Poland, Oct. 29.—(AP)—Another nation in the Russian sphere, Poland, is closing her doors on a western relief agency.

Care, a U. S. relief organization, has been told to leave the country by Dec. 1, a Care official said. Care last February withdrew from Hungary because, agency officials said, it was unable to renew its agreement with the Hungarian Communist government.

Departure of Care (cooperative for American remittances to Europe) would leave only two foreign agencies in Warsaw—the American joint distribution committee and American relief for Poland. The international committee of the Red Cross has announced the Polish government has ordered closure of the Warsaw Red Cross office.

(A Red Cross spokesman in Geneva said his organization was told the order was part of a general move against all international organizations.)

The U. S. uses 88 million pounds of tea a year.

A Good Beginning

When T. O. Bancroft accepted the post as coordinator of police, he made two definite pledges to the public: First, that he would formulate a code of rules and regulations that personnel would be required to follow, and that he would set up a course of instruction which would familiarize Monroe officers with their duties; second, that he would bend every effort toward solving the $4,000 T.-K. Jewel Box robbery which had left a strong stench in the nostrils of the public.

Mr. Bancroft has made an excellent start toward both objectives, and he certainly deserves the cooperation of the public in his efforts.

Several days ago the new coordinator announced that his police officers would have to "go back to school." A group of local professional men have agreed to instruct the officers on various phases of law enforcement work and classes will begin next Wednesday. Officers will be instructed in note taking and interviews, courtesy in law enforcement and conduct of police officers, rules of evidence, on the scene investigation and testifying in criminal courts, on the scene investigation and testifying in court on traffic accidents, confessions and signed statements, police reports, and Louisiana laws of arrests. These classes will go far in providing training which has been sadly lacking in the past, and the men who are devoting their time in assisting Mr. Bancroft are to be commended.

The coordinator has spent many hours, both day and night, in attempting to solve the jewel robbery—efforts which have not been publicized for obvious reasons. He took the case when it was some two weeks old and had practically no leads to work on. Perhaps he won't be able to crack the case, but it won't be because he didn't try. Rewards have been offered for any information concerning the robbery, and sources have been investigated which may provide conclusive evidence, but only time will tell.

Mr. Bancroft sacrificed his personal affairs to do a public service in attempting to straighten out a situation that was fast becoming intolerable. He cannot be expected to accomplish miracles in a day or a week or a month. He has set up a program which should merit the cooperation of both the public and his officers alike. With that cooperation, we believe he will succeed.

Pity for England

England's Labor government, elected because of the political magic of the name to the great unwashed, demands further sacrifices from the people under new belt-tightening restrictions which will touch every life because they involve food, fuel, and transportation.

The cabinet has announced a reduction of $1,000,000,000 in spending for food, gasoline and public works. These cuts will affect every class of people, those who voted against the labor outfit as well as those who elected it.

Under the socialist millennium now in effect in England the government buys all food, gasoline, etc., that is imported, and doles it out to the peasants. Now such purchases are to be curtailed by hundreds of millions of dollars, and there will be that much less to be made available to the populace—after the politicians get their cut, of course.

Public works reduction will involve a curtailment of jobs. The beloved social medicine program will not be curtailed, although it is one of the principal sources of government deficit.

Each passing day sees the British people suffering more and more from a socialist government that is notoriously inept and futile, and is kept in office by billions provided by Washington. There can only be pity for a misled people, victims of their own political foolishness. Or for taxpayers in a nation that supplies the cash.

Turkeys Aplenty

Like roast turkey? Most people do, but whether one prefers dark meat to light or the other way round, all will be glad to know that turkeys are in bountiful supply. According to the U. S. department of agriculture, 41,000,000 birds, almost a record, are about ready for the market with the prospect that this highly favored food will be available at lower prices than for other poultry, or for beef, for the entire season, not alone for Thanksgiving.

The thrifty housewife will be no less pleased with this news than the gourmet. She knows she can make repeated serving of turkey with less likelihood of the family becoming sated than she could with repeated serving of beef. Roast turkey loses none of its savor even after being warmed over. That cannot be said of most meats.

And if she doesn't want to buy a large turkey, as she often has had to do, it is promised there will be small and medium sized turkeys and turkey parts.

The Harvest Year

Good harvest weather has provided the nation its second largest crop year in history, with a record supply of corn. And ideal conditions for wheat seeding are general in the Great Plains area, promising anohter record small-grain harvest in 1950.

Heavy current yields, added to substantial carryovers, have resulted in a marketing problem. Under price subsidies the government is buying and storing crops as never before to sustain prices.

The second largest harvest in history provides ample supplies of food for the American people, although not at lower prices, with many boatloads of government-bought staples to be shipped to other countries.

These blessings are the result of application of brain and brawn by American farmers. Those who share in the bounty should give thanks they are citizens of a land where all this is possible.

News-Star—World,
Dear Sir:

Recently there appeared in the News-Star a news item by the Associated Press headed "State Livestock Law To Be Asked." This law proposed by State Rep. Percy E. Roberts is to prevent livestock roaming at large on our state highways.

There also appeared in the Public Forum a letter by Pat Sanders, concerning the discussion of this topic, by the civics class at Neville High School. Certainly this class should be commended for the interest shown on this subject.

Still further this law is very vital and I do mean vital as it will, if passed, mean life to some human being on our highways. Doubtless if our children can give thought to this law, we as adults and seasoned minds should do more.

As Representative Roberts pointed out, that the laws now governing the control of livestock on our state highways are left up to the respective parishes.

Following his statements of fact, we logically conclude that nothing but local politics allows the "open range" policy.

Therefore lets have a real state livestock law to protect us and our dear ones while traveling state highways.

If we stop a moment to think, we have had several deaths due to "livestock at large," besides the minor accidents (horse or cow killed, car mashed up). It boils down to: A person's life vs. the privilege to let stock roam.

Let's wake up, get behind our representatives to back the Roberts bill and help save lives.

Sincerely
"A. MOTORIST"

Editor, Public Forum,
News-Star—World,
Dear Sir:

Our Jaycee Radio Round Table of last Thursday, which asked "What can a planning commission do for this community," seems to have created a misunderstanding in the minds of a few people in the Twin Cities. We want to make it clear that the adoption of a "planning commission" does not in any sense involve a change in our present form of city or parish government.

For the information of those who may not have a clear understanding of what a "planning commission" is, allow us to explain the plan.

We propose that a group of professional planning engineers be employed to make a survey of our community. This study would include a detailed analysis of our problems in traffic, industry, education, zoning, sewerage, drainage, fire protection, police protection, etc. Following the survey this group of experts would submit their recommendations and a plan of growth for our community for the next 25-50 years.

A "planning commission" would then be appointed to act upon the recommendations of the planning engineers. This "commission" has legal status under the state planning commission status—act 300 of 1946 Dart's statute —5771.1). It would be composed of private citizens serving without pay and would act as an advisory body to our city fathers. It would not encroach upon their normal functions in any way.

It seems to us that any citizen of this community who is interested in progress here cannot fail to see the advantages of such a program. As young men whose futures are directly dependent upon the welfare of Monroe and West Monroe, we are vitally interested in putting this thing over and will continue to support it on our Jaycee Radio Round Table and in public meetings until it is accepted, or until someone can show us that it is not to the best interests of this community.

Thank you sincerely for your many courtesies in the past. We trust that you will assist us in clarifying our position on this matter.

Sincerely,
W. L. HOWARD,
President.

THESE DAYS

THE NOISE THUNDERS
By Georgi Gramada
(Special Krass Correspondent)

Americans like to make speeches. Even if a man does not know how to make a speech, he likes to make a speech. How can he do it? He hires somebody, called a ghost writer, who writes the speech.

So Mr. Bourgeois stands up, his cheeks red, sweat flowing down his Wall Street neck, and he reads the speech. Sometimes he even does not know what he is reading. Does that bother him? Not at all. He prints the speech in a pamphlet and mails it out by the thousand. And nobody even bothers to read it, but it is good business for the Salvation Army which specializes in religion, which as Karl Marx said is opium for the masses, and old paper which they sell for dollars.

When it comes to an election, the noise thunders on all sides. There is no order. Each man says what he wants to say. There is no control. It is all disruption. Thunder to the right! Thunder in the middle! Thunder on the left!

Here they have all sorts of parties. Nearly all of them are pro-Fascist. The true progressives, the enlightened toilers for the people, they belong to the party of peace. They speak the voice of the father of all people, J. Stalin. Alas, in the land of the dollar, they are few in number, but their voice is like thunder down the corridors of history.

They are few in number because in this land of the dollar, everybody has dollars. It is most unprogressive. How can people with dollars in their pockets understand their true interests? The dollar hypnotizes them and for it they sacrifice themselves on the altar like ancient savages. (This is no discrimination against savages, who are, after all, human beings, even like we Russians, who are the elite of the human race).

But to get back to the speeches: Each candidate for office goes around making speeches. That is what is wrong with the two-party system which these Americans call democracy, showing how without dialectical materialism, even the words get twisted. The candidate says: "Look at me. I am at least O. K. Look at my opponents. They are bigots." The people stand and look, a thunderous silence greets the speech. Is the candidate surprised? He does not even know that the masses are thinking of Marx, Lenin, Stalin, the trio who gave to the world the blessings of communism.

The speaker is ignorant of this because the loud-speaker has stupefied him. He can only hear his own voice. At night, when he tries to sleep, that voice rings in his ears. He hears it but he does not understand a word. Finally, he falls asleep and the loud-speaker becomes the mighty voice of the international proletariat which shrieks through the funnels of history. He sleeps and he tosses on the billows of the world revolution and all over him fall the marks of Wall Street, the symbols of Marshallism, the atom bombs of Trumanism—the dollar.

One of these puppets of Wall Street will be elected. Does it make any difference which one? Not to the workers of the Ukraine, nor to the peasants of Rumania, nor to the brave Stakhanovists of Kuznetz. To them, it is all the same, because to win in this land of white supremacy, everyone must speak harshly of our beloved J. Stalin. Impudently, they call him Uncle Joe. "Down with Uncle Joe," they shout. And they get elected.

As the great proletarian writer, Maxim Gorki, said with advance knowledge, more than 20 years ago, and only a proletarian writer imbued with the spirit of Marx and Engels could have had such vision:

". . . What you call the civilization of the USA does not and cannot excite my sympathies. I think your civilization is the most deformed civilization on our planet, because it has magnified to monstrous proportions all the many and shameful deformities of European civilization."

And that is why they make so many speeches: It is to hide their deformities. In our fatherland of the worker, only J. Stalin speaks once or twice a year and when our beloved leader speaks, it is not necessary for anybody else to say anything.

BASCOM N. TIMMONS

The problem of what to do about Boston Mayor James M. Curley when the Democrats stage their big all-New England party meeting in Boston next month has the Democratic National Committee here doing mental flip-flops.

Mayor Curley is a Democrat and was the one who went to jail after a mail fraud conviction, it will be recalled. Petitions bombarded the White House demanding that the president keep Curley out of jail, but the president did not free Curley until a few days before the end of his sentence.

After his sentence was completed, Curley announced he was supporting General Douglas MacArthur for president.

Now the Democrats are scheduled to go to Boston on November 20 for their biggest regional rally to date. They the letting the Massachusetts Democratic governor, Paul A. Dever, give one luncheon. They have another open but are worried about turning it over to Curley.

For another thing, Boston has a city election on November 8. Curley is up for relection, but he may be a lame duck by the time the Democrats get there for their regional meeting.

The day after the longest peacetime session of congress adjourned, a friend commented to Majority Leader Scott Lucas (Dem., Ill.) that he certainly looked healthy.

Lucas replied that he was reminded of a true story. Some time ago he was operated on. When he returned to the state during the Labor Day period, an old friend from a small Illinois town came up to greet him.

"Well, Scott," he said, "you certainly do look good. I thought you had died after that operation."

Republicans are talking hard times when it comes to raising campaign funds. Only a year ago, when they were on the crest of a "victory" wave campaign contributions were the least of G. O. P. worries.

Today, however, the congressional campaigns committees are finding it a little harder to arouse dollar interest in the 1950 senate and house races. Especially reluctant to kick in to the G. O. P. fund are large corporation officials, who have come through so handsomely in the past.

Washington officials and newspaper men rubbed their eyes the other day when they received copies of the annual report of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation. Accustomed to reports from government agencies an inch thick and filled with the driest possible information, their first surprise was the size of the report, comprising only eight pages and a simple cover.

But what really bowled them over was the note in the corner of the cover which declared:

"Reading time: Twelve minutes."

Hope in Washington now is that other departments and agencies will follow the lead of FDIC Chairman Maple T. Carl and his public relations advisor, Forbes Campbell.

It'll take quite a while for eager Washington hostesses to dream up a specialty which can top what the Indian embassy pulled here during Prime Minister's Nehru's visit.

Guests found candy wrapped up in gold and silver leaf. When some of the less sophisticated attempted to remove the paper and eat the candy, they were promptly reprimanded—the gold and silver is part of the candy. It tones up your system, in case you didn't know.

Angelo Patri:

OUR CHILDREN

FIRST THINGS FIRST

A course all children should take is one that teaches them to know the difference between important facts, duties and actions, and unimportant ones, and to attend to the important ones first and with greatest emphasis. This is not a quick course nor an easy one, and parents are the best teachers to administer it. What they mark as important by their attitudes is what is going to be of first importance to their children.

What youth needs more than all else, more than money, more than possessions, more than fun, is a clear and alert mind. That first. The things he thinks about, the food he eats, both in quantity and quality, his daily program of work and play all influence the quality and the efficiency of his mind. Experiences with his parents and their friends is not to be overlooked, for they have great weight of influence on the minds of young people.

Boys and girls should not drink alcoholic beverages because they cloud the mind, slow it down and befuddle it. The idea that such drink brightens the mind is an illusion. It does nothing of the sort and its use is peculiarly harmful to young people whose minds are in the making. Youth in itself is a heady element and needs no stimulant. And youth is too beautiful to be marred by an evil habit like drink.

Wise choice of activities, pleasures, and ways of exercising self-direction is the expression of a clear, healthy mind. No other sort will function, and as our lives become more complicated, speedier and busier, only the clearest, surest mind will serve. This is something thoughtful parents have to consider in dealing with their children. Will this experience they are about to offer the children help to clarify their minds or will it dull them, confuse and irritate them?

Children who are about to study earnestly should have little food in their stomachs. They should have had a light, nourishing meal an hour before starting work. They should have an hour of pleasant relaxations and no emotional stress. That is where parents put first things first. The important consideration here is the state of the child's mind, and that should come before the child's desire for excitement, rich food, a wrangling argument, a radio program. What the parents put first will be first for the children.

This covers all the experiences of the family—manners, morals, guests, friends, work and plans for the future. A clear mind enables one to see what comes first and attend to it.

Bedtime troubles usually reflect poor training on the part of parents. Dr. Patri's leaflet P-28 offers help for parents who have this problem with their children. NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

BOSTON, Mass. —(AP)— Before the plane for New York leaves, I'll try to round up and tuck away a few loose ends and impressions of this most interesting and satisfactory New England trip.

I met Michael Ward, seasoned Boston political boss. He was up at his neck in a campaign for election to the school committee, a non-salaried job which he has held for some time. It's much like that of a school board member in most cities. Although there is no pay, these jobs are contested with might, main and money.

Mr. Ward is a thin, middle-aged man, evidently of Irish ancestry. He speaks good English in a cultivated voice, and with soft enunciation. He has keen eyes, and the habit of stooping across the table toward you while he talks. There in nothing passive about him.

He told me that he is the man responsible for Guru Wallace's not being president of the United States. He related the incidents at the fourth-term convention, and how nearly Wallace was nominated for the vice-presidency, and his part in the strategy that beat him.

The story sounded true to me. Perhaps there should be a bronze statue to Michael Ward in this monumental city. Whatever you may think of the boy from Missouri, you must be thankful that the Red Mogul isn't president.

In the mail that has just caught up with me I'm glad to find a letter from Radio Tycoon Lee Segal, Station KIZL, Dallas, Texas. Lee says Dallas is mighty proud to have noosed talented Walter Hendl, to be musical director of the Dallas symphony. A young man who some day will be top man in American orchestral music, he predicts. Good for Dallas!

I must say that I have never feasted so well upon seafood as I have on this trip. Not one disappointing meal, everything cooked and spiced exactly right. I shall cherish the memory of the fish chowder, clam chowder, oysters, lobsters and sundry fillets.

I have enjoyed myself in the cemeteries about as much as I ever have, and I've always had a fancy for the burial grounds, especially those of historic significance.

I visited the graves of the Alcotts, Emerson, Thoreau, and many other great men and women of old time. Most modest marker is that of Henry David Thoreau. It is in the family burial plot, which has a small central stone bearing the family name. The great nature-lover and author lies in one of the graves within this plot. A stone that barely protrudes above the ground bears the one word, "David."

There are no crowds of tourists at this time of year, but there are always some visitors who want to have their history refurbished and their patriotism renewed.

It says here in a letter from Lester Kice, Wichita, that his dog, General, can say "I love Mama," plainly and without any foreign accent or drawl. . . . I have a tall stack of letters from postal employes, commending my recent attack upon the red tape and dictatorial decrees of the P. O. brass, particularly the silly regulation that you may not letter your own notice on a package of books, but must go to the store and buy it. I refrain from using any of the names of these correspondents, lest the poo-bah in Washington fire them for "insubordination." Some of the letters are so hot they blister my fingers.

William E. Gilroy, D. D.:

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

PROPHETS FOUGHT FOR SOCIAL REFORM

The earthly fate of the Hebrew prophets, and their deep suffering under persecution, is summarized in the tragic words of Hebrews 11:37: "They were stoned, they were sawn asunder . . . were slain with the sword . . . being destitute, afflicted, tormented."

Why did these chosen and select souls of Israel suffer these tortures? It was certainly not solely for their religious zeal, or their spiritual qualities; not for their earthly estate, for some, like Isaiah, were highly born, and might have been among the socially prominent and politically powerful of their day.

Rather, it was because their religious zeal was not content with formal observances and polite profession. It was a zeal for righteousness, which made them fearless in rebuking sin in high places and in low. Nor was their rebuke of sin general and formal. They were not simply "agin it." We are all against sin in a general way.

What made the prophets distinctive, and what brought upon them severe persecution, was the detailed and specific way in which they attacked the prevalent sins, and especially the local sins, of their time. It is always safe to renounce personal sins in a general and impersonal way. It is when the prophet says, "Thou art the man," that he brings upon himself the wrath and hate of the sinner, and when he denounces the unjust and evil practices from which their perpetrators are profiting that he becomes "an enemy of society."

Nothing is surer in this world than the need of social reform. There has never been an age, or place, among any people, when social injustices and evils were not rampant, and crying for correction. Yet the role of the social reformer has always been one of danger, sacrifice, and social ostracism. The social reformer of today may be esteemed and honored tomorrow, but Jesus remarked upon how the children praised the prophets whom their fathers had stoned.

The reformer, of course, sometimes appears in a strange light, and in a very angular form. It was James Russell Lowell, a very real reformer himself, who wrote in his "Interview With Miles Standish" of the "Men of vision, whose gaunt eyes see golden ages rising.

Salt of the earth! In what queer guys thou are fond of crystallizing."

But real reformers are to be distinguished from the marginal cranks, and the true reformers are not persecuted for their peculiarities, but because their indictments strike home against conscience and self-interest. The socially elite and successful do not like to have their sins rebuked, either personal or social.

What were the sins that the prophets denounced? What was the good way of social righteousness that they proclaimed? The sins were those that Jesus denounced in the pronouncement of "Woes" in Matthews 23—the exploitation of the poor, the devouring of widows' houses, the selling of the righteous for a pair of shoes, the disregard of human rights and values in the grasping for wealth and power. And against this they set God's way —the way of honesty, man with man, of justice and mercy, and devotion to the common good.

It is the continuation of that conflict, through the ages, and even now that makes the message of the prophets so persistently timeless and vital.

EDITORS' ROUNDTABLE

UNIFICATION PROSPECTS NOW

Majority editorial opinion is optimistic that after the air-clearing storm of public controversy effective defense department unification will be achieved, principally through the sort of conciliation suggested by General Eisenhower. But a rather large minority of editors fear that effective unification now will be impossible without some change in personnel; while many in this group dislike the harshness of General Bradley's testimony, definite opinion as to changes appears to be about equally divided as to whether they should involve high naval officers or Secretary of Defense Johnson.

Baltimore (Md.) Evening Sun (Ind.-Dem.): "It seems clear that the public ventilation of issues . . . has been a good thing. . . . The hearings developed the fact that while the B-36 may not be capable of everything which has been claimed for it, it is the best that we now have. . . . Naval aviation cannot go ahead much farther without the building of a flush-deck carrier, which now seems most unlikely. But the navy's right to and need for its air arm have been confirmed, and the formal right and necessity for the navy have a co-equal voice within the defense establishment have been restated and conceded."

Washington (D.C.) Star (Ind.); "The B-36 . . . is merely a symbol of the controversy. The nub of the controversy lies in mutual distrust—with the army and air force attributing navy revalcitrance to the navy's lack of understanding of how a land war must be fought; and the navy feeling, likewise, that it is being voted down arbitrarily by men without understanding of the navy's part in warfare on land or sea. How Secretary Johnson is going to reconcile these opposing convictions, deeply and sincerely held by able men is his great problem."

Washington (D.C.) Post (Ind.): "The crux of the Bradley testimony was that the navy has never accepted the spirit of unification. This is the feeling which, in our view, will be the public reaction . . . There may be some reservation as to the wisdom of the harsh comments of General Bradley. But . . . he has suffered a lot of provocation (as chairman of the joint chiefs of staff). . . . The task remains, in General Eisenhower's above-the-battle counsel; make unification work. And . . . this means . . . that cross-education . . . must be expedited."

San Diego (Calif.) Union (Rep.): "General Eisenhower suggests patience with the unification plan, saying that we are 'expecting perfection too quickly.' Patience, however, is not likely to overcome the spirit of hostility which has been generated among the three branches during the last few months . . . What is needed is executive capacity in the White House to take the situation in hand and put the separate branches in their places. Secretary Johnson has indicated no such capacity, and Mr. Truman has taken the position of a mere onlooker."

Christian Science Monitor (Ind.): "The president could impose a surface solution by backing up Secretary Johnson in disciplinary action against any who oppose him. That would ignore the wisdom of the Eisenhower approach. It would be like sitting on the safety valve to keep the steam from roaring out. What must be delt with is both a deep-rooted fear on the part of one service that not only its identity but its whole strategic doctrine is threatened, and an honest concern, felt by others as well as navy officers, that the nation's security may be imperiled by overemphasis on one arm."

Philadelphia (Pa.) Inquirer (Ind.-Rep.): "The navy put on a one-sided, partisan demonstration. It tried to minimize the importance of strategic bombing, although not long ago it was trying to grab a role in strategic bombing by building a super-carrier. . . . The military officers—including the admirals—are servants of the people, acting under civilian officers. The American people are fed up with strutting self-dramatization. What they want—and the military should provide—is convincing evidence that the three services will work together toward the one important goal of national security."

El Paso (Texas) Times (Dem.) "The Times believes that the armed services lack the presence of a dominant figure such as Gen. George Marshall was as chief of staff during World War II. . . . Secretary Johnson appears to have increased the differences of opinion among top men in the armed services instead of bringing them together. . . . We need a strong man to lead us out of our present troubles. Unless we get that strong man, the only alternative is to courtmarshal every man who dares to question the authority of the secretary of defense."

LESSON FOR ORGANIZED LABOR

I have no reason to believe that the rank and file of union labor in this country is not just as patriotic, just as interested in individual freedom, just as concerned with preserving our traditional American way of life as the rank and file of business men or the rank and file of any other classification of our society. But I have plenty of reason to believe that many labor leaders in this country are deliberately deceiving and deluding their union members in many ways, are not giving them the correct information and the complete information in many matters that affect their well-being.

The American workingmen who belong to labor unions would do well to consider some of the lessons that may be learned from what is happening in other countries right now to organized labor. By learning these lessons, they will not only contribute to the future welfare of themselves and their country, but will also make more certain the very existence of the labor unions themselves. Right now, before it is too late, is the time for labor unions to learn that statism—government control—includes no place within its scope for a free labor union with independent bargaining powers.

I have been out of the United States twice this year and I have seen this fact exemplified both times. The latest was on a recent short trip to Havana, Cuba. While I was there, an announcement came out that the directors of Compania Cubana de Aviacion, one of Latin America's largest airlines, with regular flights to Miami, had decided to throw in the sponge. Upon inquiry, I found the story to be as follows:

The company had not been doing too well recently, due to stiff competition and high operating costs, so in order to get on a substantial footing they had decided to lay off some employes and make a reduction in wages. At this point, as was quite natural, the labor union stepped in—but the company and the union not being able to reach an agreement right away, the government appointed an interventor to settle the dispute. Lo and behold, the interventor came up with a recommendation for even greater economies than the company had proposed, and the dismissals and salary cuts were put into effect. But union leaders charged that the decision was "a monstrous injustice" and demanded that not one worker be fired or any salaries cut until further studies, and such pressure was brought to bear on the Cuban cabinet that it revoked its approval of the findings of the interventor, who then had to announce that all dismissed workers would be taken back and salary cuts eliminated.

At a further directors meeting, realizing the company could not operate under such conditions, the directors unanimously agreed to recommend to the stockholders that the company be dissolved and liquidated.

Now, it was all right for the labor unions to question the decision to dismiss some workers and cut salaries. But with all the facts laid before them, it was not all right to demand the status quo. It was not all right to force the stockholders whose money founded the company to liquidate their holdings. If the company was not able to operate profitably under private control, anyone who knows anything knows it will operate even less profitably under government control—and that's how it must be operated from here on out if it is to continue in operation. In other words, the union is simply passing on to the taxpayers of Cuba the losses that are inevitable under the working schedule they are demanding.

The Cuban labor union may think it won this fight, but if it should happen to feel too smug about gaining its point in this particular case, it might consider what has happened to the trades unions of Great Britain under government control of industry. The trades unions of Great Britain, as I had occasion to find out while there last spring, are beginning to realize they have no place whatsoever under nationalization; in that case the government is both the employer and the referee. They are finding out that the government as an employer is much harder to deal with, is much more ruthless and impersonal than private enterprise ever was or ever wanted to be. They are finding out that a government that can destroy private enterprise can also destroy organized labor.

DeWitt Mackenzie

MACKENZIE'S COLUMN

Britain's Socialist government, having received a vote of confidence from its big majority in the house of commons, is free to continue its struggle with the economic crisis which is tearing at the vitals of the nation.

That affords some moral encouragement to the harassed cabinet, but it cannot provide the material aid or even the advice so greviously needed. It is merely a friendly gesture at the zero hour as the badly armed government goes into fresh action against strange hazards.

One of the hopeful aspects of this grim situation is that the government has no delusions about the gravity of the situation. It is well aware that the country is in the midst of an economic life-and-death struggle.

All of which is by the way of saying that no man can foresee the extent of crisis, or the remedies necessary to its cure. It's likely to be a protracted operation. Recognition of these facts constituted the main value of the two-day debate in commons, or so it seems to me.

Sir Stafford Cripps, chancellor of the exchequer, was near to tears as he hammered home to a tense commons that "our civilization itself must face and wither away" unless the nation produces more goods immediately and sells them to America. Cripps isn't given to exaggeration and he is not of the emotional type. He meant what he said.

Britain is scraping the bottom of the economic barrel. Her immediate resources have been largely depleted. She hasn't the wherewithal for a quick recovery. That is why Sir Stafford warned the country that it couldn't exist on the charity of the United States. Said he:

"At the root of our success or failure lies our own capacity to produce. The only real solution for our difficulties is more and more economical and efficient production."

One drag on Britain's recovery rests in the fact that much of the rest of Europe also is hard hit. Numerous countries are just about living on the Marshall plan which is slated to expire in 1952.

In addition to increasing production the government is taking other measures to conserve resources the budget is to be slashed $784,000,000, and another $400,000,000 is to be cut off dollar imports. Loans and credits to other countries are to be restricted.

The government also will make it difficult for people to sell in the so-called sterling area, thus forcing them to sell in the dollar area to glean the dollars, which are needed badly for the purchase of supplies in the United States.

In this connection it is noted that about 20 per cent of British exports have been going abroad against sterling credits. This operation is to be stopped so that these exports will go to the dollar area.

Present indications are that the government isn't going to let itself be stampeded into a general election but will carry on and try to secure an economic improvement before next-summer when an election normally will be due.

In trying to figure what would happen if a general election were held now, some political experts confess themselves at a loss. They say that the independent voter, who will swing the balance, is confused and undecided because of the gravity of the economic crisis.

Therefore the calling of an immediate election would be gambling on an unknown quantity. Thus the government's present plan is to hang on and see if it can't improve conditions before asking the country to vote.

The Nation Today

JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—(AP)—The quarrel between the navy and the other armed services has its roots in the unification act.

Congress first passed that act in 1947 and then tightened and toughened it this year. It has this purpose:

To make the armed services work together better as a team, produce better planning, save money on purchasing equipment, and so on.

This is a brief explanation of how the act and the trouble grew:

Until 1947 the army and navy were completely independent of each other. the air force was part of the army.

Each had two heads, military and civilian. This way: Army, chief of staff and secretary of the war department; navy, chief of naval operations and secretary of the navy department. In both cases the civilian heads were over the military chiefs.

Further, the two secretaries operated independently and each was a member of the president's cabinet This meant they could go directly to the president with their problems or complaints against each other.

This set-up was changed by the unification act of 1947 and further changed by the revised law passed this year. This is the set-up now:

The air force was separated from the army. Now there are three military agencies: The army, navy and air force departments.

Each has its own top military man: army chief of staff, air force chief of staff, and chief of navy operations.

And each department has its own civilian secretary. But—power was taken from the secretaries. They no longer are members of the president's cabinet.

That's because congress created something new:

'. A department of defense. The army, navy and air force departments are all parts of the department of defense.

2. A secretary of defense (Louis Johnson) to head up the whole show. He's a member of the president's cabinet. He's boss over the three civilian secretaries.

And—those three civilian secretaries cannot carry their complaints to the president, unless Johnson approves. And they can't go to the president over Johnson's head. So he's top man of all.

The only one who can overrule him is commander-in-chief.

For example: Navy Secretary Francis B. Matthews may think Johnson is wrong in wanting to drop 50,000 navy men and officers from their jobs, and he may tell Johnson so. But if Johnson still says they're dropped, they're dropped.

Something else was added by the unification act. That's a body called the joint chiefs of staff (JCS). It's made up of:

The army chief of staff (General J. Lawton Collins); the air force chief of staff (General Hoyt S. Vandenberg); and the chief of naval operations. This job was held by Admiral Louis B. Denfeld until President Truman fired him Thursday.

There's a fourth top man—in fact, the top military man of the country—in the JCS. He's the chairman (General Omar Bradley). His job is to act as moderator. He has no vote.

What final authority do the members of the JCS have? Suppose the army and navy chiefs think the navy strength should be cut down, although the navy chief disagrees. Is that 2 to 1 vote final and is the navy cut down?

No, says Secretary Johnson. He told congress the JCS members have final say-so on nothing, that they can only recommend what should be done. He makes the final decision.

The admirals squirmed but were unable to block decision after decision to cut down navy strength and ambition.

Before unification, it had been able, as an independent agency, to do its own planning, subject only to decisions by the president and congress.

Finally, unable to do anything under the unification law to get what they wanted for the navy, the admirals finally protested by making their feelings public.

In Hollywood With

JIMMIE FIDLER

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 29.—Bing Crosby, Bob Hope and Frank Sinatra have revived plans for a co-starring film, to be made independently, with Leo McCarey directing . . . Speaking of Sinatra, Los Angeles reporters had a merry chase last week when tipped off that a Mrs. Frank Sinatra had entered a Glendale hospital to have a baby. She proved to be the wife of a newspaper circulation manager . . . Phil Reagans' daughter Marilyn, who entered an eastern convent early this year to become a nun, has reconsidered . . . Judy Garland's new contract with M.G.M. stipulates that shooting time on her future pictures will be limited to six weeks; she contends that over-long schedules have had much to do with her poor health.

Errol Flynn and his Princess Gika (their romance was more serious than most folks believed) have chilled . . . Time out for Anna May Wong, the Chinese actress, hospitalized with a nervous breakdown . . . June Haver is asking 20th Century-Fox bosses for a leave of absence; she wants to spend full time with her fiance, Dr. John Duzik, still critically ill after an operation which has necessitated more than 85 blood transfusions . . . George Montgomery reports that Blackfoot Indians near his Montana ranch are producing a 16-millimeter movie entitled "Warpath."

Marilyn Maxwell and Andy McIntyre have postponed their altar-trek. . . . Buddy Baer and his missus (she's May Mann, a former newspaper writer) are planning the adoption of a baby from a Chicago orphanage . . . Los Angeles police, claiming a grand new clue in the Carole Landis "suicide" case, are predicting sensational headlines.

PREVIEW NIGHTS: Pic of the week: Paramount's "Samson and Delilah" (Heddy Lamarr-Victor Mature-George Sanders-Angela Lansbury). A "colossal" in every sense of the word, and entertaining enough to justify predictions that it will be one of the great box-office smashes in screen history . . . EXCELLENT: R.K.O.'s "My Foolish Heart" (Dana Andrews-Susan Hayward). Emotional drama that rings true from start to finish. Put it on your "should see" list . . . GOOD: R.K.O.'s "Bride For Sale" (Claudette Colbert-Robert Young-George Brent). Slap-happy comedy that will send you home in stitches . . . United Artists' "A Kiss For Corliss" (Shirley Temple-David Niven). Mirthful nonsense with a satisfactory entertainment quotient . . . R.K.O.'s "A Dangerous Profession" (George Raft-Ella Raines-Pat O'Brien). Mile-a-minute melodrama based on the bail-bond business gives George Raft his best role in years . . . BEST PERFORMANCE: Susan Hayward in "My Foolish Heart."

I'm amazed at the announcement that Paramount, currently filming a new version of "An American Tragedy," will change the title to "A Place In The Sun." "An American Tragedy," written by the late Theodore Dreiser, is one of the best-known novels ever published in the U.S.A. As a stage play, it was a sensational success for year. That title, in view of the million who have read the book or seen the play, should be worth at least a half-a-million in spot cash at the box office.

It will be interesting to see what an assignment opposite Bing Crosby in "Mr. Music" will do for the screen career of Ruth Hussey. Certainly, she's one of the most capable actresses that ever faced a movie camera, and she's demonstrated her ability time and again. But for some reason—and the nature of that reason has always been a mystery to me—she's never really "clicked" in Hollywood. If ever her luck is going to change it should do so now, for Crosby has been a good luck charm to almost every actress teamed with him. I'm going to keep my fingers crossed on Miss Hussey' account; he' one of my prime favorites.

News that a troupe of Communist mountain climbers have enshrined a bust of Paul Robeson on the summit of one of Russia's loftiest peaks will undoubtedly leave most Americans in a regretful mood. What a pity it had to be a bust of Robeson instead of Robeson himself.

NOTEBOOK

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—(AP)—After giving the best years of her life to radio, Peggy Bruder has to give up her microphone job because of old age.

"I don't feel too old to go on, but I guess they know best," she said mournfully.

Peggy is 12.

"An old woman," she said. "I realize that."

For three years Peggy has been a star panelist on WOR's network program, "Juvenile Jury." On the program five experts from four to twelve years hear the problems of other children and suggest how to solve them.

"What those five-year-olds come up with you wouldn't believe," said Peggy, a blue-eyed girl with long blonde curls.

"It gets to the point where the problems don't seem serious—only comical. And we try to make the audience laugh if we can think of a clever answer."

And that is the key to her temporary forced retirement. For a child trying to be clever is rarely as funny as a child who is spontaneous. Or as Jack Barry, program moderator, put it:

"We depend for laughs and pace on the off-the-cuff answers of the kids. At 12 a child begins to get a little sophisticated."

Sunday Peggy will make her final broadcast. After that she has nothing to look forward to but adolescence, high school, college, an acting career, matrimony, motherhood and children, middle age, grandmotherhood, some more old age—and then the final curtain. That's all there is left when you're already 12.

Miss Bruder, who is a star student in the eighth grade, isn't too dismayed at the road ahead.

"Radio really has been wonderful to me," she said, just to prove she held no hard feelings because the show must go on without her. "It's taught me to face an audience and to ad lib. I no longer have stage fright.

"Now I want to go on and be a dramatic actress. I love it, and I've been studying for it. I think I'd rather be in the movies—every girl looks forward to that. But right now I believe television is the right thing to be in.

"Sometimes I do my homework watching television."

Her mother said, "Dear, we have to take life as it comes."

"Yes," said Peggy, smoothing her green frock, "but I know what I want My heart is set on being an actress. I'll just settle down and be a wife"—she looked despondent at that dreary thought—"if I can't be an actress."

She won't face the future exactly penniless.

"I've been getting a $50 government bond each week," she said. "I put them all in the bank. I've got a pretty big bank account."

And then she said how much she'd miss the excitement of her radio job.

"I was on it more times than any other child. I only missed three times—once from a cold and twice when I had measles.

"The little children on the program will say anything and they think it is funny—and the audience does, too," she remarked wistfully.

"You know to get my first radio work I had to say I was older than I was—I had to say I was ten when I really was only 9.

"Now instead of being too young, I'm too old. But I don't feel any older—I'm the smallest one in my class at school."

It's awful to be old and sophisticated—all at once.

PITCHING HORSESHOES

DETECTIVE STORY

A week from today, New Yorkers will go to the polls to elect a mayor, and one of the issues will be the efficiency, or lack of same, of Mr. O'Dwyer's police department.

I, of course, don't want to get involved in this political rhubarb, but I can't go along with the talk-talk about the inefficiency of the average New York cop. In a thousand and one weeks on Broadway, I've gotten to know a lot of the badge-wearers and I can rattle off dozens of stories which prove that the phrase, "a bright policeman," is not necessarily a contradiction in terms.

As for instance. . . .

On election night, 1947, I was standing at the corner of Broadway and 46th street with a detective named Johnny Broderick, since retired. It was the "whiching hour"—the hour when everyone is wondering which movie to see or which saloon to get potted in.

As Broderick and I stood there casing the crowd, a couple came out of the automat.

"How's for killing an hour in a newsreel first?" I heard the man say.

"I told Miriam we'd be early," said the girl.

"Early is when you get there."

"I promised Miriam we'd get there by 8:30. It's after 8 now."

"I suppose it ain't never been 8 before," said the man, sticking his palms out as if he were Jolson.

"Miriam's the best friend I got," said the girl, "and I ain't going to miss her birthday party for no lousy newsreel."

"Don't make no mountains," said the man. "I said I'd go, didn't I? We can get there an hour late and still be in time to blow out the candles."

"After those drinks you had at the Astor bar," said the girl, "I wouldn't go blowing any candles. The explosion'd break windows for miles."

"That wasn't milk of magnesia you was drinking," said the man. "For two cents I'd—"

Johnny Broderick stepped out of the crowd which had collected around the couple. "Beat it, Bud," he said to the man.

The man took a fast look at Johnny, wheeled, and walked up Broadway. The girl hurried after him.

A bobby-soxer in the crowd laughed. Guess she loves him after all," she said.

"Too bad I couldn't spot their hook man," said Broderick, "or I'd have run them in."

"Their WHAT man?" I asked.

"Their hook man," said the detective. "Those two were pickpockets and their spiel was to hold the crowd while the hook man was going through their pockets. I tried to spot him, but I couldn't. Maybe he spotted me first."

"How did you know the couple were crooks?" I said.

"The crack about the guy having a couple of drinks gave them away," said Broderick. "It isn't 8:30 yet, and on election night, in case you've forgotten, you can't buy a drink in New York until after 9 p.m."

TECH, HEADED FOR GULF TITLE, WHIPS S. L. I.

RUSTON ELEVEN PACKS PUNCH IN LAST HALF, 21-0

Homecoming Triumph Tightens Grip On Leadership Of Conference

RUSTON, La., Oct. 29.—(Special)—After a scoreless first half, the Louisiana Tech gridmen stepped out in the third and fourth quarters to trim the Southwestern Louisiana Institute eleven of Lafayette by a score of 21-0 here Saturday afternoon in a colorful homecoming engagement.

The triumph gave Tech top place in the Gulf States Conference race with three victories.

The game was played in ideal sunny weather before a crowd estimated at 5,000 fans.

To open the first quarter, Tech's Jimmy Harrison took Southwestern's kick-off on the 25 and with the help of Gene Knecht and Arnold Mathews worked the ball down to the visitors' 26, where the Techmen lost on downs. In the same period, Gerald Hodges and Dave Fisher, Southern backs, collaborated in carrying the ball to Tech's 9-yard stripe, where the ball went over to the local Bulldogs.

In the second quarter, Gene Yarbrough, Tech back, took a Southwestern punt on the 20 and raced 64 yards to the S. L. I. 16 to enliven the encounter. Harrison's pass to Joe Strother was incomplete. Then Southwestern's Richard Pate intercepted a pass from Harrison in the end zone to stop the Techsters' goalward jaunt.

Between halves, the Tech band and Blue Jackets dedicated maneuvers to the alumni, spelling out "Hi Grads" and forming the numerals "1894-1949," signifying the dates of Tech's existence. The groups then formed a large crown which later was divided to form an aisle through which the homecoming queen and maids marched with their escorts. The queen was crowned by Acting President R. L. Ropp.

Jewell Humphries, Tech fullback, started a touchdown drive early in the third quarter with a 37-yard sprint to the S. L. I. 48. He then picked up 25 yards through the line to the 23. Harrison sped to the 13 around his right end, after which Mathews swept around left end to score. Ed Michael kicked the extra point.

The fortunes of the game turned temporarily when Louis Gaudet of Southwestern recovered a Tech fumble on Tech's 44 and Lucas Marcello passed to Gaudet to the 18. But a passing barrage by S. L. I. failed to click and again the Lafayette gridders lost on downs.

Taking the ball on the Tech 18, Jerry Alexander, Harrison, Humphries and Knecht moved the Techsters to Southwestern's 44 where Harrison passed to Tony Cefalu who dashed about 10 yards for a second touchdown. Michael again converted from placement as the third quarter ended.

In fourth period, the Tech men recovered a fumble on their 18 and again tallied after a series of ground plays

Famed Patty Berg Holds Golf Clinic At M'Guire Park

PATTY BERG HERE TODAY

Patty Berg (above), Minneapolis' greatest contribution to athletics and a wizard on the nation's golf courses, will appear in a golf clinic and exhibition this afternoon at McGuire Park Golf Club, West Monroe.

FREE EXHIBITIONS TODAY TO INCLUDE FOURSOME MATCH

Mrs. Miller, Pros Shirah And Cole Also On Afternoon Program

Patty Berg, the Minnesota miss who has won just about every important tournament golf has to offer the women of the links in addition to a host of less important ones, comes to Monroe today to present her "golf clinic" at McGuire Park Golf Club, West Monroe, this afternoon at 1:30 o'clock.

Miss Berg's clinic, identical with those she has conducted for the past few years throughout the nation, will last about one hour to be followed with an exhibition foursome match in which the great star of golf will team with C. J. Shirar, pro at McGuire Park, against the team of Mrs. Elizabeth Miller, Monroe, and Pro Winnie Cole of Bayou DeSiard Country Club.

The entire show will be open to the public free of charge, according to the host pro, Shirah, who declared, "The kind of performance Miss Berg gives here would usually cost from $1.50 up, but we want our fans to know that McGuire Park is offering this show free of charge and we expect a big gallery of followers.

Miss Berg has won numerous tournaments and placed high in many more since she first began playing the game in 1933, and has done equally as well since leaving the amateur ranks to travel with the pros.

In 1948 alone, Patty added three major tournament triumphs—Augusta Women's Titleholders, Women's Western Open, and the Hardscrabble Open—to her extensive list of championships. She also finished runner-up to Babe Zaharias in the spectacular Tam O'Shanter All-American Open and World's Championship and took fourth honors in the Women's National Open.

Throughout her golfing career, it has been characteristic of Patty that when the going is toughest she rises to her greatest heights.

Evidence of this is Patty's spectacular victory in the 1948 Women's Western Open at Skycrest Country Club in Chicago. Playing against the handicap of an injured left hand, Patty went 37 holes with the famous Babe Zaharias to capture the title 1 up.

Babe held a 3-up lead at the end of the morning 18-hole round and was in 4-up command with six holes to play. Then Patty won 31, 32 and 33. They halved the next two and the match stood all even at 36 when Patty's recovery shot exceeded Babe's. The outcome was decided on the first extra hole when Babe's tee shot slipped into the rough and her second missed the green while Patty was getting home in par.

However, the match was overshadowed by Patty's promptness in turning the $500 winning check over to the Women's Western Golf Association for the promotion of junior golf.

Patty's life has not been completely monopolized by golf, however, for on July 26, 1943, she enlisted in the Marine Corps Women's Reserve, where she served until honorably discharged as a first lieutenant in October, 1945.

Her only golfing activities during her years of service came in connection with the raising of funds for the national emergency. As a result of her warm personality and tremendous ability to organize, $3,000,000 was subscribed in 1944 alone.

Another interruption in her golfing career occurred in 1939 when the sudden death of her mother and an appendectomy kept Patty away from the game for almost a year.

However, Patty returned to golf in 1940 by capturing the Helen Doherty Championship for the fifth consecutive year. Also that same season, Patty joined the Wilson Sporting Goods Co., advisory staff with one of the most outstanding contracts ever offered a lady professional golfer.

In December 1941, Patty was in an automobile accident when traveling from Corsicana, Texas, where she had played in an exhibition for British War Relief, and suffered a compound fracture of the knee. Doctors declared she would never play again.

With the same fighting spirit and determination displayed in Patty's game, she conquered this injury. Although it required 18 months, Patty never became discouraged and signified her return to competition by winning the medalist honors and again capturing the Women's Western Open Championship in June 1943.

That same year, she went on to win the All-American Women's Open with scores of 77, 72, 79, 79 for a total of 307. The 72 represented the tournament record for the Tam O'Shanter course.

Next to winning championships, Patty Berg most enjoys promoting the game of golf by means of her clinics and exhibitions throughout the nation.

Patty, who has conducted clinics in almost every one of the 48 states, travels approximately 25,000 miles and holds more than 125 clinics a year in between playing in the women's tournaments.

This is Patty's way of giving back to golf what she feels she owes. By sharing her knowledge and experience with America's future golfers, she feels she is able to pay back at least partially, her own huge debt to golf.

Med Student Chollet, Cornell's Hero To Young Victims Of Polio

By Jl. O'Leary

ITHACA, N. Y. — (NEA) — Hillary Chollet is a players' player, at his best when the going is roughest.

The six-foot, 185-pound halfback has not only established himself as one of Cornell's greatest all-time athletes by starring four seasons in football and basketball, but has proved to be one of the more popular lettermen.

As a pre-medical student, Chollet, a quiet, unassuming 23-year-old, has maintained a high B average despite time-consuming athletic activities. He enters Cornell Medical College in September.

On orderly at the Reconstruction Home in downtown Ithaca the past two summers, Chollet is a hero in the eyes of young polio victims with whom he keeps in daily contact. He has a genuine fondness for children, especially the less fortunate. As a morale builder alone, he is of unlimited value to the youngsters.

In football, Chollet, classified as a power runner, is particularly outstanding as a safety man. He runs back punts spectacularly, has been labeled a one-man pass defense.

Players' Player—Hillary Chollet is a power runner and one-man pass defense.

Princeton kept the Ivy League champions tied up pretty well before being shaded, 14-12, but one play they couldn't check was a Lynn Dorset short pass to Flanker Chollet, which set up the winning touchdown, got the Big Red moving again, when stalled and in danger in the fourth period.

Basketball player Chollet is no mean hand at snagging passes, led the squad last year, with eight completed for 106 yards, though playing in only six games due to an injury in the Army contest.

Holder of the all-time Cornell single-game record of 37 points, Hillary highlighted his basketball career opposing his brother, Leroy, of Canisius. At Holy Cross High in New Orleans, the two, plus a third brother, Al, played together on one of the most outstanding scholastic teams ever seen in Louisiana.

Captain Leroy of Canisius rubbed it in in the first meeting in Buffalo last winter, with Cornell on the short end of the score. But the teams met again in Ithaca, and this time it was Captain Hillary of Cornell who scored 19 points to lead the Big Red to an 18-point upset.

It was the finest all-around game of his final basketball season for Hillary Chollet, the football players' football player.

Chicago Bears Will Move Against Undefeated Los Angeles Rams

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Oct. 29.—(Special)—The Pittsburgh Steelers, whose gridiron exploits have brought it countrywide acclaim, will meet the Philadelphia Eagles, defending champions, tomorrow in Forbes Field in a game that will determine the first place occupant in the National Football League's eastern division.

Four other games are listed for the day with the Chicago Bears meeting the undefeated Los Angeles Rams in the Coliseum; Detroit engaging Green Bay in Milwaukee; the resurgent New York Giants scheduled for a contest with the Cardinals in Chicago, and Washington playing the New York Bulldogs in the Polo Grounds.

The Steelers and the Eagles will start their 29th game since the series started in 1933, with four victories and a defeat apiece. Washington defeated Pittsburgh in an early season game and two weeks ago the Bears broke the Eagles' winning streak.

Pittsburgh, top team in the league in ground gaining with 1,109 yards, of which 515 have been gained by Jerry Nuzum and George Papach, will match its single wing attack against the Eagles' T, with Bosh Fritchard and Steve Van Buren as its ground gaining aces and Tommy Thompson, its passing champion.

Bob Gage, and Joe Geri, two of the top ranking freshmen in the league, have played conspicuous parts in Pittsburgh's success this season as passers and runners from the left halfback position. Both will oppose the defending champions.

Philadelphia leads in the series 16 to 11 with one tie.

GRAYSON'S SCOREBOARD

By Harry Grayson

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—(NEA)—After hearing J. V. Sikes speak, John R. Thompson predicts that by 1953 every good quarterback will be fully equipped with a walkie-talkie, with the conversation running something like this:

Signal-caller to the bench: "What's the play?"

Coach to quarterback: "Refer to situation A. Use play 435 with opposition A if opposition uses 6-2-2-1. Revert to option B if defense is orthodox."

"The requirements of football used to be brain and brawn," comments Sports Editor Thomson of The Kansas City, Kans., Kansan. "Now all a player has to be is a good pawn with brawn."

Thomson takes the view that J. V. Sikes, the Kansas coach, admitted almost as much when he said the rules "don't give us quite as much control of the quarterbacking as we'd like." From that it can be assumed that coaches want the privilege of sending a man in to call every play.

"There was a time," adds Thomson, "when one of the requirements of a good quarterback was a generous supply of brains. A lad who wasn't afraid to take a chance. A kid who could size up the opposition, and call plays he thought would work."

He reiterates a pet peeve of this and many other corners. "What's even worse is the way high school coaches have taken the game away from the kids.

"It's getting so the one thing a player doesn't have to do is think.

"Maybe a high school lad passes, runs, kicks, does a fair job of backing up the line. Hopes are high as he goes to college, but in three years what do you find? He's a specialist. Backs up the line when Dear Old Siwash is deep in its own territory, and the opposition is passing a lot. The minute the foe switches to the ground, however, out comes our hero. After all, what's he got that sophomore understudy for?"

Things aren't quite that bad, although John R. Thomson is closer to being right than George Munger, who contends football has been given back to the athletes by its refinements.

Pennsylvania's coach is convinced that football has gone so far in developing strategy a coach no longer is able to call plays from the sideline.

As Munger stresses, today a team must know how to meet and beat varying defenses instantly. No one can call plays from down to down. The winning team nowadays is the one which adjusts to the defense after the ball is snapped. Ball-carrier and blockers must be able to readjust to defensive variations the second they happen.

So, even with the quarterback being thoroughly briefed while the defensive platoon is attempting to hold that line, a shifting defense still puts a premium on quick thinking.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

by Hugh S. Fullerton, jr.

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—(AP)—After reading the reports of recent week ends, the question today seems to be not who will win the football games, but who will be recipient of the loudest blast. . . . Season's record so far belongs to the North Carolinians who cut loose after last week's L. S. U. game. . . . Reports say the well-watered field wasn't the only cause of dispute. There was also a matter of L. S. U. insisting on a brown ball for a night game and then appeared in burnt gold jerseys. . . . While it has nothing to do with the case, all this recalls a story told by Dick Carrington, Piedmont League president and former football official. . . . Carrington's work was severely criticized by a coach and they agreed Dick wouldn't work any more games involving that school. . . . A couple of years later when Carrigton saw his assignment list included three games at the school, he phoned the coach and apologized for the mistake. . . . "That's no mistake," was the reply. "I've tried all the other officials. They're no better than you are."

It's All In The Spelling

When a correspondent from Finland turned up at the Garden the other night to see Helsinki-born Pentti Lund of the Rangers receive the Calder Trophy as last year's most valuable hockey rookie, one writer remarked: "It's the first time most of the guys around here knew a Finn wasn't always $5."

Sportspurri

Burt Shotton is due to visit Brooklyn next week, presumably to receive the official word that he'll manage the Dodgers in 1950. . . . And Branch Rickey insists it was a "coincidence" that when he visited Vero Beach recently, Shotton turned up there to do some fishing. . . . Fred Perry, the tennis pro, will try big-time tournament golf for the first time in the North and South Open at Pinehurst next week. . . . Fred says he never was bothered by tennis crowds, but he can tighten up like a duffer and blow a two foot putt. . . . Former light heavyweight champ Billy Conn, who now calls himself an oil man, recently underwent an operation to have the dents taken out of his nose. . . . Although Boston College's football season has been disappointing, the Boston Garden still is counting on B. C. to make its basketball program draw this winter. The squad includes Timmy O'Connell, brother Dermiet the former Holy Cross star now with the Celtics.

Weak End Notes

Henry G. Duffield, 90-year-old Treasurer Emeritus of Princeton University, climbed a fence to see the second Princeton-Rutgers game 80 years ago and has missed only two Princeton home games since then. . . . Michigan's footballers have averaged 72.5 plays per game in Big Ten conference contests this season. . . . Oklahoma's Bud Wilkinson has seen so many screwball defensive setups this fall that he now moans: "Some day an opponent is going to use an orthodox defense against us and pin our ears down."

Jeff Hennessy Again With Demon Swimmers

NATCHITOCHES, La., Oct. 28.—(Special)—Candidates for the Northwestern State College swimming squad will begin practice Monday in the college pool, according to Coach John Piscopo. Practice sessions will begin at 4 p. m.

The Northwestern swimmers took honors over such teams as Tulane, Baylor, Pensacola Naval Air Station, and the Shreveport Y. M. C. A. last year.

Returning lettermen this season include Jack Branch and Micky Gunn of Little Rock, Ark.; Jeff Hennessy of Monroe; Leroy Ford of Natchitoches; Jack Gaston of El Dorado, Ark.; and Leo Ellison.

In addition to the lettermen, Coach Piscopo expects several outstanding newcomers. In the group are Fred Hoff, a diving star from Little Rock, Ark., Ken Howard, flashy breaststroker from Shreveport; Myron Lockey of Slidell, Earl Justice of El Dorado, Wally Fryer and Richard Sizemore of Little Rock.

Piscopo said that the first scheduled meet is with the Dallas Athletic Club here in Natchitoches on December 10.

Jail Seven High School Grid Players For Larceny

ROCKFORD, Ill., Oct. 29.—(AP)—Seven Joliet (Ill.) High School football players, including six first stringers, were in jail today on charges of looting two stores of clothing while on their way to last night's game.

Four of the players missed their team's game against nearby Freeport and the other three were seized by police after the contest, which ended in a 6-6 tie score.

Police said larceny charges were placed against six of the youths and the seventh was charged with accessory after the fact. They said the youths admitted they had looted the two stores of clothing during a 45-minute stopover on the 100-mile bus ride from Joliet to Freeport.

Acting Police Capt. Charles McDonnell identified the players held on charges of larceny as Charles H. Martin, 18, and Joseph Catarello, 17, ends; Anthony Vrakas, 16, a guard; James Jefferson, 18, halfback; John Pakacs, 17, fullback and Ed Schweizer, 16, reserve guard. Neil Foster, 19, halfback, was booked on a charge of accessory after the fact.

SEES GOOD GRID SEASON

NEW YORK— (AP) —Coach Steve Owen of the New York football Giants predicts this will be the best football season since prior to the war.

ROSY FOR ROZY

CHICAGO—(AP)—Ed Rozy, trainer for the Chicago Bears, was dozing near the practice field. There was only one player on the injured list. So Rozy just took it easy. George Halas, owner and coach of the club, didn't mind it at all. In fact, he was quite pleased. He said: "When Rozy is dozing, everything is rosy."

Minelli Suffers Injury, Linam Fight Postponed

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 29.—(AP)—A scheduled 12-round bout between Aldo Minelli of Milan, Italy, and Bert Linam, Austin, Texas, welterweight, here Oct. 31 was postponed today until Nov. 14.

Charley Johnston, Minelli's manager, said the Italian had received a slight eye cut while working out in New York City yesterday afternoon.

TULANE PUTS CRUSHER ON MISSISSIPPI STATE

MAROONS FALL BEFORE GREENIE MIGHT, 54 TO 6

Wave, Looking Its Best Of Season, Gives Visitors One Of Worst Defeats

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 29.—(AP)—Tulane's Green Wave smashed an outmanned and outlayed Mississippi State football team 54-6 here today with an estimated 35,000 fans watching through a slow rain in the last half.

The Greenies were in their best form of the year, running over, through and around State.

The 48-point margin of defeat was the worst that any State team has received since Alabama took a 53-0 victory in 1932.

Tulane tallied in the first five minutes of play with Fullback Eddie Price going over from the eight. They added another score before State could move.

The Mississippians scored early in the second quarter, with Quarterback Don Robinson fading to pass, the running around left end for nine yards and a touchdown.

State lost most of its offense when Robinson was hurt near the half. After the half State could gain on only three series of plays.

Tulane netted 438 yards rushing and passing while State managed only 76. Tulane held a 9-6 edge in first downs

Tulane first stringers, began to fade out of the picture after Right Half Bill Svoboda scored the Greenies' second touchdown in the first period.

The Greenies scored three times in the second quarter. Price gaining 65 yards around left end, Jimmy Glisson 23 around the same flank, and Al Burr 55 yards off tackle.

Halfback Cliff Vanmeter scored three times in the last half, catching a 15-yard pass sitting in the end zone and running 20 and 10 yards on ground plays.

Tackle Euel Davis place kicked six conversions.

For the eleventh time in two seasons, Price outgained the entire opposing team. This time he collected 117 yards on nine rushing tries.

Price and his teammates were too fast for the State team, dashing around the Mississippians ends while on the offense and trapping State runners, while on the defense.

The Greenies held a tremendous manpower advantage. Tulane used full offensive and defensive teams during much of the game, while State substituted only five men most of the time when the ball changed hands.

Tulane's passing game was improved, with Quarterback Bill Bonar and Joe Ernst combining to complete four of six passes for 84 yards.

Alert Tulane defenders allowed State to complete only one of 20 passes. It went for seven yards. Tulane intercepted five passes, while State intercepted only one Tulane toss.

NORTH CAROLINA TUMBLES BEFORE TENNESSEE, 35-6

While Justice Held Helpless, Volunteers Unveil Hal Littleford

By Ted Smits

CHAPEL HILL, N. C., Oct. 29.—(AP)—Tennessee took most of the steam out of famed Charlie (Choo Choo) Justice today, came up with a triple-threat star in Hal Littleford, and defeated North Carolina 35 to 6 in one of the major upsets of the 1949 football season.

North Carolina was a two touchdown favorite but Tennessee's tough line and a glue-like pass defense dashed the hopes of the Tar Heels to regain national ranking in preparation for their big game with Notre Dame in Yankee Stadium, New York, November 12.

Penalties were frequent and tempers ran short. State police had to break up a fist fight immediately back of the Tennessee bench. The 1948 All-America Justice never really got going and finally was injured in the third period so badly he had to leave the game, coming back only for kicking duties.

Tennessee scored after only three minutes of play when End Bud Sherrod recovered Fullback Bill Haye's fumble on the six yard and Left Half Harold Payne swept right end for the touchdown. Capitalizing on frequent breaks, Tennessee built up a score of 35 to 0 before North Carolina, inflamed by the injury to Justice finally went 83 yards down the field with Back Dick Wiess' scoring on a three yard plunge, at the start of the last period.

Justice had trouble keeping his balance on the wet turf, and cut loose only once, a 55 yard return of Right Halfback Bert Rechivar's kickoff. In the first period but Tennessee finally took the ball on downs on its own 18 yard line.

Littleford, by contrast, had no difficulty in running, kicking and passing like a champion, his sharp throws set up the second touchdown, which was scored by Fullback Bernie Sizemore on a one foot dive, and in the third period he threw a touchdown 29-yarder to End Charles Sherrod, who played a great offensive and defensive game at end. Sherrod snared a pass that Hayes intended for Justice in the third period, slipped out of Justice's arms, and ran 20 yards to the goal line.

The jubilant Tennessee team carried its coach, General R. R. Neyland, off the field after the game. The surprising upset kept clean his personal record. Never has he lost three years in a row to the same opposing coach. Yet Carl Snavely's North Carolina Tar Heels, with victories the last two years, were expected to sweep over Tennessee.

GOLDEN BEARS OUTDO U. C. L. A.

Barge On Undefeated In March Toward Rose Bowl Competition

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 29.—(AP)—California's Golden Bears swept past the Bruins of U. C. L. A. today, 35 to 21, and barged on undefeated in their march toward the Rose Bowl.

The amazing Bruins, rank underdogs, held their vaunted Berkeley brothers to a 14-14 whirlwind standstill for the first half but wilted before the superior reserve strength as 58,668 persons watched the Pacific Coast Conference struggle.

The hard-hitting California team cashed in quickly on a pass interception and a U. C. L. A. fumble in the third period, converting both miscues into the touchdowns which won the bitterly fought contest.

The dangerous Bruins, who had not been beaten in four conference games, spotted the big Bears seven points, then caught and passed them momentarily in a wide score.
tarily in a wild score.

California, its charging line getting all it could handle, woke up and tied the count and held on for dear life when the Uclans threatened to punch over a third touchdown before the half ended.

The Berkeley power began to tell in the last half, however, and the Bears roared on to take command of the game.

Hero for the Bears was Quarterback Bob Celeri, who passed the team to new school records, and some of the most spectacular pass receptions seen here this season.

Stars for U. C. L. A. were Halfback Ernie Johnson and his stellar left end, Bob Wilkinson, who caught two touchdown passes, one good for 62 yards, the other in a hand to hand struggle in the end zone with a pair of ferocious defenders who ripped off part of his Jersey.

The win was Cal's fourth straight in conference play and leaves the defending P. C. C. champions with Washington State, Oregon and Stanford still blocking the road to Pasadena. U. C. L. A. now ranks with Southern California and Stanford with one setback in conference play.

unleashed a scoring attack that brought them a 34 to 31 victory in the next nine minutes.

Michigan ruined an Illinois celebration honoring veteran Bob Zupke, 13 to 0, and Ohio State sailed smoothly over Northwestern 24 to 7. By their triumph the Buckeyes moved into a Big Ten tie with Iowa. Wisconsin bounced Indiana, 30 to 14.

Missouri kept pace with Oklahoma for the Big Seven honors with a 21 to 20 verdict over Nebraska. The Huskers were ahead, 20 to 7, at the end of the third period.

Duke and Georgia Tech fought on almost even terms until Duke's Billy Cox found the passing range and then the Carolina eleven moved out in front, 27 to 14.

Tulane, showing little effect of its drubbing by Notre Dame, smashed Mississippi State, 54 to 6, with the last half of the game played in the rain. Other Southeast Conference tilts found Alabama downing Georgia, 14 to 7, and Vanderbilt besting Auburn, 26 to 7.

Baylor remained unbeaten by turning Texas Christian, 40 to 14, and Arkansas brushed past Texas A. and M., 27 to 6.

California's Golden Bears, fourth ranked nationally, moved a step nearer the Rose Bowl by overpowering U. C. L. A., one of their principal Pacific coast rivals, 35-21.

By taming the Uclans, the unbeaten-untied Bears virtually clinched the Pacific coast championship.

In other west coast games, Southern California ralled with two touchdowns in the fourth period to beat an aroused Washington team, 40-28, and Santa Clara played a 7-7 tie with Stanford.

NON-TITLE MATCH HEADLINES SHOW AT KALLIO ARENA

'Wild Bill' Steddum Paired Against Bill Sledge In Semi-Final

Balk Estes, the new king of the world's light heavyweight wrestlers since wresting the championship from Jack Curtis about three weeks ago at Jackson, Miss., comes to Monroe Tuesday night for a non-title match with Charlie Laye, former holder of the belt from Knoxville, Tenn.

Laye sough unsuccessfully to have the match billed as a title scrap, but Promoter Gus Kallio last night said Estes, the Elk City, Okla., tussler with Indian ancestry, had declined at this time to please Laye.

"I am not going to be reckless with this title," Estes told Kallio. I had too hard a time getting it to begin taking unnecessary chances. I'll defend the belt often enough to keep it in circulation, but I'm not going to be easy pickings for everything that comes along. Title or non-title this time, it'll still be just me and Laye in the ring and it should be a good match."

Laye won over Estes recently, before Oklahoma tussler had shorn Curtis of the crown, and the Tennessee bad boy had hoped to use that edge in a claim for a title match.

Promoter Kallio asked Laye what he thought about the match, but Laye said, "I'm a man of few words, I'll take your own answer—what do you think about the new champion?"

"Well, he's always been a tough challenger," Kallio replied, "and now he has won over the great Jack Curtis, so I think he is a champion, and Estes should make a good one when defending it as he is not afraid of anybody."

The non-title scramble, main event on Kallio's Tuesday card, will have a time limit of 90 minutes with two falls to win.

The semi-final attraction, bringing together "Wild Bill" Steddum and Bill Sledge, will open the show at 8 o'clock with both Steddum, the rowdy Texan, and Sledge, also from the big state, both apparently anxious to do battle man-to-man to settle a mild grudge that developed in a tag team scrap here last week.

Steddum, paired with Laye against Sledge and Henry Harrell in last week's relay match, grumbled that he and Laye didn't get a square deal in losing their engagement, so Kallio approached Sledge on the subject of crossing paths with Steddum.

Sledge decried Steddum's style of wrestling, maintaining a man using his tactics should be barred from wrestling in all states.

"I think wrestlers like Steddum are a disgrace to the game," Sledge declared. "But let's have this match—just him, I, and the referee in the ring—and I think I can teach Steddum a few things while showing that his rough Texas style isn't so hot after all."

"I know Sledge from away back," Steddum informed Kallio. "He has never liked me and the feeling is mutual. The fact is I don't believe he's a real Texan. He acts like a Tennessee mountainer with his long whiskers shaved off. But he should have better sense than to figure I'll be easy going."

The semi-final will have an hour time limit, also two falls to win.

CLASS AA TITLE SITUATION STILL NEEDS CLEARING

Week-end Games Fail To Settle Races In Various District Campaigns

(By The Associated Press)

Football championships in three of Louisiana's four double-A districts seem as unsettled today as they were before the season opened.

Weekend games that could have decided two of the races failed to settle anything.

Warren Easton and Holy Cross, two undefeated New Orleans teams, are still unbeaten after their game Friday night. The squads, strongest in the district, fought to a 12-12 tie.

Sulphur, the undefeated southwest leader, was tied 6-6 by Baton Rouge of the southeast. Another southwest team, Bolton of Alexandria, showed it may give Sulphur trouble when it beat Catholic of Baton Rouge 27-6 in a game that was supposed to have been close.

The race in the southwest was believed over when Sulphur beat Lake Charles several weeks ago.

Byrd of Shreveport defeated Haynesville 27-7 Thursday night in a north Louisiana game. Haynesville needed only to beat Byrd to cinch the northern crown. Byrd still has to face the two other district teams.

Only Bogalusa's powerhouse southeastern team is still conceded to be a sure thing. Bogalusa overwhelmed Bishop Byre of Port Arthur, Tex., 45-0. The team has already beaten Baton Rouge, the only district team that was believed able to give trouble.

The only other district game played was in the southwest, where Jennings edged Lafayette 14-13 in a battle of second division squads. Another interdivision game saw Fair Park of Shreveport down Lake Charles 21-0.

Terrebonne of Houma won over Class A New Iberia 47-14 while Peters of New Orleans fell before Destrehan 41-13.

Joe Heap scored twice for Holy Cross to tie Warren Easton, but it was Easton's Les Kennedy who proved to be the outstanding back in the game. His offensive and defensive play were flawless. He scored one Easton touchdown and set up the other.

Holy Cross had an 11-8 edge in first downs and scored on drives of 82 and

Has Utah Another Dempsey In Layne?

By Harry Grayson

NEW YORK — (NEA)—Jack Dempsey himself speaks to you about him.

And then Al Warden drops you a line.

Could this be true—another Dempsey out of the west?

Since turning professional this past summer, Rex Layne has made short work of all 13 of his opponents. No names as yet, of course, although Don Perko of Pueblo, who found a lily tucked in his hand in three rounds, won the Golden Gloves national and international crowns last spring.

Dempsey, beetle-browed, blue-jowled, snub-nosed and scowling, came roaring out of Salt Lake just before World War I.

Young Layne hails from Lewiston, Utah, population 1,804, and situated near Logan, 50 miles north of Salt Lake.

Still growing at 20, he stands five 11 and weighs 190 pounds.

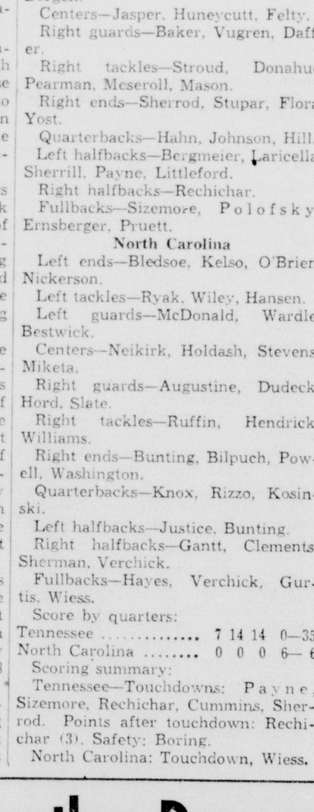
"Layne is in the rough, but has terrific possibilities," reports Al Warden, veteran sports editor of The Ogden Standard-Examiner, who saw Dempsey, the hobo, three years before his blazing speed and iron dukes put his name in the headlines. "He has no bad habits, loves it, is ambitious and hungry. He trains like an old-timer, does from five to eight miles of early-morning roadwork, generally is in bed at nine."

Layne, a Mormon who attends church, looks the part. Trimly built, he has a fighting face and the sloping shoulders of the socker.

If Layne makes it, we'll get one good prize fighter out of World War II after all. He was a staff sergeant with an airborne division for 19 months, part of which was served in Japan.



WHITE HOPE—Rex Layne has the power of the poke.

Layne did not box until he joined the army. When they sent out a call for boxing candidates at Sopporo, Japan, he won the heavyweight championship of our troops in Nippon. Returning home in 1947, he dropped a close decision in an Olympic tryout to Jay Lambert, who won the United States Olympic title, and lost a decision in the London semi-finals.

Last spring Layne lost a close verdict to Utah State's Dale Panter in the Utah Golden Gloves, but earned a trip to Boston acquiring the A. A. U. Intermountain amateur championship by a knockout.

In the Hub he won four bouts, three by knockouts, to account for the national championship.

Rex Layne lost no time personally inspecting the best on hand. He boxed a four-round exhibition with Ezzard Charles at the Salt Lake Coliseum the other night.

There's got to be a good heavyweight around somewhere.

Maybe Utah has found him.

South Carolina Beaten By Maryland, 44 To 7

COLLEGE PARK, Md., Oct. 29.—(AP)—Maryland struck repeatedly on the ground and in the air here today to crush South Carolina, 44-7.

South Carolina did not make a first down until Coach Jim Tatum started to send in his Maryland subs in the final period.

A homecoming day crowd of 17,762 roared as the Marylanders drove down field time and time again.

Duck Decoy Load Is Now Lighter

(A. P. Newsfeatures Staff Writer)

NEW YORK—Because a barber who hunts ducks suffered a back wound in World War I, this country's 2,000,000 duck hunters got a break.

No longer is there any need to lug a cumbersome load of wooden decoys to the blinds. Now they can use rubber decoys which weigh only 7 ounces each and, rolled up, can be carried in the pockets of a hunting jacket.

Here's how this boon to the duck hunter came about. In 1947, the wound of a duck-hunting barber—Joe Newhardt of Danville, Ill.,—received in France nearly 30 years earlier finally made his back so lame he couldn't shoulder his load of wooden decoys. To the average hunter, that would suggest that his duck hunting days were just about over. But Newhardt is an inveterate idea-man who holds patents on several of his own inventions, so he naturally got to figuring.

What he needed was a collapsible, featherlight decoy, that could be rolled up into a fist-size package for easy carrying. But it would have to be a good decoy, attract ducks just as well and be as durable as wooden ones. That meant the decoys would have to be unsinkable and ride steadily in the water.

First, he checked the market, but found no decoys that met his requirements. So he decided to make his own—out of rubber. He called in his old friend and best customer, C. H. Angell, an engineer. Together they started experimenting in Angell's basement workshop. Months later they came up with a pilot model of the "Duraduck." Made of heavy gauge rubber, it was permanently moulded into the life-size, authentic shape of a Mallard drake.

The decoy needed no blowing up; recovered its natural shape the moment it was unrolled, drawing in air through two vents in the tail. It was sink-proof too, since any shot-holes through the heavy rubber walls sealed themselves.

But when Newhardt and Angell tossed the decoys on the water, they bobbled like balloons. Oldtime duck hunter Newhardt realized immediately that ducks would have nothing to do with such unnatural decoys. What to do? Putting in metal ballast was no good—that would cancel out the decoy's light weight. Angell recalls today that this problem was the real test of Newhardt's ingenuity.

He changed the decoy's belly from round to concave with the result that it formed a suction which made the decoy hug the surface of the water. Thus stabilized it rode the roughest waves more like a real duck than any decoy they had ever seen.

As soon as Newhardt's duck hunting cronies saw and tested the new decoys, they had to have some. That meant they would have to be produced in quantity, a job impossible for Angell's basement workshop. So they decided to have them manufactured. After several discouraging tries, they were about to give up when unexpectedly they got a letter from a fellow duck hunting fan. Bradley Dewey, presidenut of a Cambridge, Mass., chemical company.

Dewey, U. S. rubber director during the war, had seen the decoys and offered to produce them. That's when fortune started her beaming smile.

Now everybody — including thousands of emancipated duck hunters—is happy. The only cloud in an otherwise blue sky is the problem of keeping pace with demand. But Newhardt is letting Dewey deal with that problem. Having quit the barbering business, he's spending most of his time duck hunting.

PURDUE UPSETS GOLDEN GOPHERS BY 13-7 MARGIN

Boilermakers Spoil Minnesota's Hopes Of Title And Rose Bowl

By Maurice Putnam

MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 29.—(AP)—Minnesota's bubble really burst today. Purdue furnished the needle with a 13-7 upset victory.

It was keyed-up Purdue squad that took the field. They were expected to lose by two to four touchdowns. But the Boilermakers showed in the first period they didn't believe it.

They tested the Gopher line and found it could be penetrated. Then they tried passes and found that they worked. The combination produced a touchdown for Purdue in the second period and, but for a piece of bad luck, might have added another score.

To insure their victory, the Boilermakers intercepted a pass and added another score in the fourth period.

It wasn't until the last period that the Gophers averted a shutout by throwing two long passes to get within scoring range. Halfback Dick Lawrence did all the passing, with the ball going to end Bud Hausken for the lone Gopher tally. End Gordon Soltau added the point.

Harry Szulborski, Purdue halfback who was reported in poor shape, wasn't slowed much as he went over from the three-yard line in the second period. It was the climax of a drive that started on Purdue's 25-yard line.

The passing of Quarterback Ken Gorgal played a big part in the drive, with End Ron Bland doing the catching. Gorgal also tossed a pass to End Bob Whitmer but Whitmer was beyond the end zone and the ball was ruled out of bounds.

Guard Elmer Scallish set up the second Purdue touchdown early in the fourth period. He intercepted a Gopher pass on Minnesota's 47 and Purdue started down field.

Szulborski and Halfback Norb Adams plunged for short gains and then Gorgal threw a 17-yard pass to Adams to put the ball on the Gopher 20.

More line plunges made it first down on the Gopher 10 and then Adams plunged over in two plays. Skowron's attempted placekick was blocked.

By its victory, Purdue virtually ended any hopes that the Gophers might have had for a share in the Western Conference title. It also put an end to talk that Minnesota might be a candidate to play in the Rose Bowl.

Purdue outplayed the Gophers from start to finish. They outgained Minnesota on the ground, getting 220 yards to 186 for Minnesota. Purdue gained 162 yards in eight pass completions to but 74 in 5 completions by Minnesota. Purdue scored 19 first downs to 11 for Minnesota.

Score by quarters:

Purdue	0	7	0	6—13
Minnesota	0	0	0	7— 7

Purdue scoring: touchdowns, Szulborski, Adams. Point after touchdown, Skowron.

Minnesota scoring: touchdown, Hausken. Point after touchdown, Soltau.

Jockey Club Stakes Won By Roman Bath

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 29.—(AP)—John Marsch's Roman Bath won the $15,000 added Kentucky Jockey Club Stakes at Churchill Downs today.

The two-year-old son of Roman-War Swept took the lead shortly after the break and led throughout the rest of the one-mile test.

J. A. Chambers' 19-1 long shot, Boling Over, romped home a length back of the winner and Brookmeade Stables' Sunglow was a neck further back in third place.

Today's victory was worth $21,340 and raised Roman Bath's earnings for the year to $49,896. Roman Bath was clocked at 1:38 1/5 for the mile.

A crowd of approximately 15,000 saw the winner pay $5.80, $4 and $2.60 in the mutuels. Boling Over paid $10.60 and $5.20, while Sunglow was worth $3.40.

CORNELL IMPRESSES

WEST POINT, N. Y.—(AP)—Lt. Doug Kenna, former Army quarterback, went to Cambridge, Mass., to scout Harvard against Cornell. But he came away impressed that "Cornell is a very fine team again." They look good both on offense and defense, said the West Point football scout.

triumphs and no defeats, will entertain the Bears in a return engagement. In the first of the annual two series the Rams emerged triumphant, 31 to 16 in Wrigley Field.

In gaining its undisputed standing in the western division the Rams have rolled up 162 points, the league's highest total and have permitted only 64 points, the league's lowest.

The rise of Johnny Lujack to the top ranking position among the league's passers gives the Bears an offensive threat to match the passing, punting, and field goal kicking of Bob Waterfield, who is enjoying one of his greatest seasons.

The Bears lead in the series with four victories to two with one tie.

Charley Conerly, Gene Roberts, Emlen Tunnell, and the other New York Giants who staged one of the biggest upsets of the season in winning from the Bears, will travel to Chicago to meet Charley Trippi, Elmer Angsman, Paul Christman and company in the sixteenth game of the series. The Giants have the edge with 12 wins to three.

The game in Cominsky Park should be one of the best of the day with the Cardinals anxious to return to winning ways and the Giants bent on continuing their great play of a week ago.

Detroit, which moved into the win column last week, will travel to Milwaukee to meet Green Bay in the 32nd game of their long series. The Packers hold a decided advantage, 25 to 6, in the series that started in 1934.

Bill Dudley, who had himself one of his greatest days a week ago, will again spearhead the Lions' attack, aided and abetted by Clyde LeForce and Fred Enke and the pass catchers, Green and Mann.

Tony Canadeo, the league's top ground gained with 432 yards; Jack Jacobs, Jud Girard, and Walter Schlinkman are the mainstays of the Green Bay attack.

Washington journeys to New York to engage the Bulldogs in the Polo Grounds in a game that promises to be an aerial duel of major proportions. The Redskins, with Sammy Baugh and Harry Gilmer doing the pitching and Hugh Taylor and Harold Crisler most of the receiving, will pit their skill against the passing of Bobby Layne, fifth ranking in the league, and the receiving of Bill Chipley, who leads the circuit's receivers with 28. Washington won the first of the two games played this season when Sammy Baugh had one of his superlative days.

FIGHTING IRISH BLANK OUR NAVY

Midshipmen Take Worst Defeat Before Machine-Like Notre Dame

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 29.—(AP)—Machine-like Notre Dame bopped Navy today, 40 to 0, handing the Middies the worst defeat in their football series.

Showing their gridiron wares to an eastern audience for the first time this season, the fighting Irish broke the game wide open with a 20-point assault in the second quarter. They coasted from there on.

Navy made a whale of a game of it for one quarter, and part of the second. Then, zing, zing, zing, came the touchdowns. They were stabs like stilettos in the dark. The befuddled Middies never knew from which direction they were coming.

The chief Notre Dame slasher was Ernie Zalejski, a skittering left halfback. Zalejski scored three of the six Notre Dame touchdowns as he became the main actor in the affair put on before a sellout crowd of 62,413 in Babe Ruth Stadium.

Ernie got Notre Dame out in front in four minutes and 35 seconds of the opening period. He grabbed a 22-yard pass from Quarterback Bobby Williams on Navy's 25. He was in the clear, and merely romped the rest of the way. The Irish probably would have scored sooner, but Navy won the toss and Notre Dame had to wait to get the ball. It took only five plays.

After fooling around the rest of the period and stopping two amazing Navy drives, Notre Dame dropped the roof on the boys from Annapolis in the second quarter.

Right Half Larry Coutre started the business by taking the ball on a delayed buck on his nine yard line. A big hole opened in the Navy line, and away Larry went on a 91-yard touchdown jaunt.

Minutes before the partisan Navy crowd had seen the Middies apparently on the way to tally. Navy had jabbed from its own 17 to Notre Dame's 12, only to lose the ball on downs.

Coutres' long dash softened up Navy. Two more Notre Dame touchdowns rolled across in about eight minutes.

Emit Sitko was the fly in the ointment next time. The shifty fullback speedster blasted 48 yards to the Navy 15. Then he bolted right through thte middle for the final 15.

Baltimore's own boy, Williams, tossed three passes, the last two to Ernie. One traveled 18 yards as Navy's aerial defense was split wide open. The next was tossed from the 28, Zalejski nabbing it on the nine and scoring.

Zalejski accounted for the final tally on a brilliant 76-yard spin late in the third.

55 yards. Easton markers came after pushes of 27 and 55 yards.

Billy Graham got Bogalusa off to a flying start with a 25-yard end run to paydirt after three minutes of play. After that, Bogalusa touchdowns came thick and fast. Ed Welch, the state double-A scoring leader last week, made one touchdown.

The Baton Rouge-Sulphur tie was the first mark on Sulphur's record this season.

Baton Rouge scored the second time the team got the ball. Jimmy Cain used two bucks to advance from the Sulphur 20 to the score. Sulphur's Newt Shows led a third quarter drive that tied the score. He passed to George Hines from 30-yards out for the touchdown.

Buddy Crain engineered the Fair Park victory over Lake Charles, scoring twice. Billy Walker tallied the final touchdown on a 12-yard pass from Roger Hampton. The victory raised Fair Park stock in the North Louisiana title race although it was an inter-district affair.

Extra points on line plunges gave Jennings its victory over Lafayette, the first for Jennings over a double-A opponent.

The winners made both touchdowns in the final period, with Virgil Fontenot going over from the one for the first and Bobby Bollich bucking across for the second. Extra points came on line smashes by James Bujol and Bollich.

Lafayette made both of its touchdowns in the second period, with Val Mayers traveling 16 yards and Ray Peck passing to Paul Toce for 13 yards. Mayers kicked one extra point.

Terrebonne had no trouble with New Iberia. The Houma team was sparked by the Don Dumez-to-Camille Arceneaux passing combination.

Peters failed to match Destrehan even in the last half when both of the losers' scores came. Peters collected two touchdowns, one on a Don Taulier to Virga pass and the other on Jim Mart's run. Destrehan made three TD's in the last half while Peters was greeting its two.

N. C. State Gridders Barely Squeeze Past Virginia Tech

NORFOLK, Va., Oct. 29.—(AP)—Virginia Tech failed to get the word that N. C. State was two touchdowns better and gave the Wolfpack a battle today before bowing, 14-13 Norfolk's third annual Oyster Bowl football game.

FAVORED LIONS DOWN BENGALS BY 19-7 MARGIN

O.P.H.S. Pulls Game Out Of Fire With Two Fast TD's Late In Game

The Ouachita Parish High School Lions and the Neville High School Tigers, giving Twin City football fans their first all-Monroe contest in 38 years, porduced a thriller at Brown Field last night with Ouachita running over two quick touchdowns late in the fourth quarter to triumph over the Tigers, 19-7. The attendance, estimated at 9,000, on edge all the way, as the rival machines came through with one of the finest games ever seen on a local field.

Ouachita took the lead when Mark Boatright fired a 12-yard touchdown pass to Bob Carter early in the second quarter, and Boatright kicked the point that gave the favored Lions a 7-0 lead at the half.

But Neville, in the ball game all the way as the Tigers probably gave their finest performance of the year despite entering the game a three-touchdown underdog, made it a fresh ball game early in the fourth quarter when "Bud" Lyons, a second string end, took a 37-yard pass play from Wayne Baugh to the Ouachita nine, and Benny Heidenreich circled end behind perfect blocking to score. Leland Sims kicked the tying point.

Then Ouachita staged a 59-yard march to go ahead again when Troy Counts, a guard converted to fullback to replace the injured Herman Deloach, cracked the middle from the five-yard line to score.

Neville made a gift touchdown on the first play after taking the next kickoff, when Bob Carter, Lion halfback, intercepted a Wayne Baugh pass in midfield and ran it all the way back to paydirt, and that was the ball game although Ouachita was on Neville's one-foot line when the game ended.

The game was a great success. Neville might have been disappointed in not being able to hold the tie or even win, but like good sportsmen the gridders know somebody has to lose. The only really disappointed fans might have been those who have made dire predictions for years that a meeting between Neville and Ouachita would not be possible without rioting and general free-for-alls.

The Tigers and Lions pricked that bubble—but good—last night, and the faithful followers of both schools can look forward to a continuation of the series.

In a brief program at the conclusion of the game, the Joseph S. Guerriero city championship trophy, a permanent award to be swapped each year by the winning team, was awarded by Marion Guerriero, daughter of the donor, to Honorary Ouachita Captains Herman DeLoach and Harold "Red" Phillips. The honorary captains, both fullbacks, missed the game because of injuries.

Ouachita shaded Neville in other departments of play as well. The Lions filed in first downs, 13 to 10, although at the time the game was deadlocked in the fourth, they were even, 10-10. Ouachita rolled to 199 yards rushing and 103 more in completing seven passes. The Lions lost 14 rushing for a net gain of 288 yards. Neville picked up 132 rushing and 56 on three completed passes, lost 13 rushing, and netted 179 yards for the night.

Leland Sims of Neville kicked off to Charles Page of Ouachita to open the game, but the Lions fumbled after driving to the Tiger 31, and Neville recovered.

Benny Heidenrich and W. T. Brown then gave a good display of Neville offense in carrying the ball four times for 47 yards to the Ouachita 28, where Neville was held for downs, and the game see-sawed until Ouachita started rolling again late in the opening period after Bob Carter downed a quick kick by Guy DuPriest on the Lion 27.

Boatright skirted right end for 13, and passed to Billy Joe Milstead for 18 more to the Neville 42. Milstead and Boatright, in two line plays, went to the 30, and Milstead cracked the middle for four as the quarter ended.

Opening the second period, Carter got three at right tackle, and Boatright ripped off 12 more around right end for a first on the Neville 15. Counts got three at the middle, Milstead slipped through left tackle for five. Boatright circled end to the Neville three, but Ouachita fired a pass to Carter in the end zone for the first score. Boatright kicked the point, and Ouachita led, 7-0, at the half.

The third quarter went scoreless, but the final period was still young when Neville tied up the game.

Robert Smith punted out of bounds on Neville's 24 to start the last quarter. Kenneth Lewis got one at right tackle, Brown slipped and failed to gain, and then Wayne Baugh passed to Jack Baugh for 14 and a first down on the Tiger 39. Charles Martin got three at right tackle, Wayne Baugh cracked the same hole for four. The Tigers had to punt, but Ouachita was offsides, and Neville got a first down on the Ouachita 46.

Then Wayne Baugh fired a pass to "Bud" Lyons who romped for a 37-yard gain to the Lion one. Heidenreich skirted left end to score, and Sims kicked the tying point.

Alabama Tide Doubles Georgia By 14 To 7

ATHENS, Ga., Oct. 29.—(AP)—Alabama's Crimson Tide, riding on the sure passing arm of Ed Salem and the receiving of Butch Avinger and Jim Melton, defeated Georgia today, 14 to 7.

A crowd of 35,000 spectators saw the Crimson Tide unleash a 91-yard march in the second quarter, capped by Avinger's goal line plunge from five yards out. Salem converted for the thirteenth straight to give Alabama a 7-0 lead.

Georgia, showing a flash that would make other Southeastern Conference teams shudder, came back immediately to travel 75 yards on three plays in one and one-half minutes to even the score.

Ray Prosperi heaved a pass to Zippy Morocco and flipped another to Bob Walston who dropped on the five. Fullback Floyd Reid circled right end for the score, Walston converted with four seconds remaining in the first half which ended 7-7.

Alabama took to the air in the last quarter, with Salem leading the attack. The big left halfback flipped a 29-yard pass to Halfback James Melton for a 29-yard gain. Salem tossed to Melton for 26 yards and the touchdown that wrapped up the game. Salem booted his fourteenth consecutive point.

Score by periods:

Alabama	0	7	0	7	—14

Georgia touchdown: Reid. Point after touchdown, Walston.

Perkinston Wallops Copiah-Lincoln 21-6

PERKINSTON, Miss., Oct. 29.—(AP)—Perkinston Junior College had easy pickings today defeating Copiah-Lincoln 21-6 in a Mississippi Junior College Conference football game.

F. A. Borganelli gave the game color at the start, stealing a completed pass from Otts to set up a first quarter Perkinston touchdown. Pickett Randall made the score from the two with Slyton Cole converting.

In the third quarter Bullock took the ball at midfield for Co-Lin and raced to the Perkinston one-foot line where he was pushed out of bounds. Brewer scored a touchdown on a quarterback sneak.

But Perkinston came back strong, making a 58 yard touchdown drive, sparked by Randall and Al Herbert the latter of New Orleans. Herbet scored from the seven. Cole again converted.

In the fourth Bobby Gardner ran a Co-Lin punt to the Co-Lin four and Ellzey Burch, quarterback, went around right end from the seven for the final touchdown. For the third straight Cole converted.

Southeastern Blanks Pensacola Navy Eleven

HAMMOND, La., Oct. 29.—(AP)—A couple of recovered fumbles gave Southeastern Louisiana College an easy 14-0 football victory over a Pensacola Navy eleven here tonight.

Southeastern's End Noel Wilkins grabbed a Navy bobble on the Pensacola 15 early in the first quarter. With hard running Fullback Milton Lavigne and Scatback Jerry Zimmerman, New Orleans freshman, alternating in carrying the ball, Southeastern drove to scores.

In the final period Quarterback Gary Holcomb recovered a Pensacola fumble on the Navy 20. In five tries Lavigne pounded over for a touchdown.

Billy Ray Parnell made good both tries at conversion.

Bob Swoefferman and Fred Kovalchuk played a neat brand of ball for the Navy boys but were unable to move in the face of Southeastern's defense.

of my last will and testament.

And, finally, a grimy, paper-bound volume of Roget's Thesaurus, the newspaperman's Bible. I will go into the fray with this beloved book clutched in my hand.

May the angels who look out for drunks, fools and reporters be on the job tonight.

Saturday, 7 P. M.

Color was plentiful out at Brown Stadium once we managed to get there.

But getting out posed its own special problem. Traffic was piled up for blocks in every direction. It looked as if a good 90 per cent of the fifth congressional district was headed that way. But I doubt it. Some probably were the regular Saturday night booze hounds on the prowl.

We finally made it, pulling that aged speed merchant of ours into parking lines. Kids were lined up by the hundreds, pushing, giggling, and screaming for the sheer joy of the thing.

A brown mongrel, owner unknown, had became lost in the mob. He was wandering around with a dazed expression on his face. We last saw him as he disappeared somewhere in the vicinity of the hot dog stands.

The gates opened at 6:30 and the ticket takers on the general admission ends were swamped, literally. As the rush reached its zenith, they were just sticking out both hands and screaming: "Tear you stubbs off, please, tear them off!" They acted like they wanted to tear something—hair, maybe.

Color in vivid splashes appeared when the Neville Tigerettes and the Tiger band came on the field a few minutes after seven. And what I liked even better were the legs leading the whole outfit.

Come 7:30 and every stand was filled—to the brim and overflowing. And none of the ticket holders needed any Dutch courage to whoop things up.

Around 7:40 both teams came on the field, first Neville, then Ouachita. The din was terrific. Maybe because I was on the Ouachita side their greeting seemed slightly on the heavier side. Or that could have been my wife yelling. There's nothing neutral about her. She was just one big "O" during the game.

Half-time activities proved exceptionally entertaining. Neville led out in the ceremonies, although Ouachita was on top on the football field.

The Tigerettes, led by those legs again, put on a convincing exhibition of a skeleton, wiggling legs and all—only this time the legs belonged to the mythical skeleton. They used little fountain pen lights for the Tigerettes and cap lights for the band. The lights went off and atmosphere was provided by chanting "Dry Bones."

Precision numbering and letters highlighted Ouachita's Lionettes' show. Those redcoated youngsters did themselves proud. Along with the Lion band they formed the Stars and Bars, the old Confederate flag, while the musicians in the crowd swept out with "Dixie."

You would have thought that it was the national anthem, the way the crowd of 9,000 stood up on its hind legs and cheered. All my efforts to prepare for trouble proved unfounded. Right down to the end there wasn't a sign of a fight, not even a little tiff. Plenty of good-natured kidding tossed about, but none of the bitter "old-grad" quarrels expected. City and parish officials had stressed peace, peace, peace in their pre-game talks. Well, they got it.

With the battle on the field over, attractive Marion Guerriero presented Harold Phillips and Herman DeLoach, honorary captains, and Coach Jim Hodgins, with the new city championship trophy. Phillips and DeLoach, who first string fullbacks failed to see any action because of injuries. Three hefty Lions carried Coach Hodgins off the field to end it all.

That is close it out for all except the kids of Ouachita—they will chew their roast Tiger for a solid year.

BENGALS DISPLAY POWER TO CRUSH OLE MISS, 34 TO 7

All But One Touchdown Comes In Action-Packed First Quarter

By Warren Rogers, Jr.

BATON ROUGE, La., Oct. 29.—(AP)—Louisiana State, the giant-killer, finally won a Southeastern Conference game tonight by striking early and hanging on to a 34-7 victory over Mississippi.

The Bayou Bengals had bashed outsiders North Carolina, previously unbeaten, and powerful Rice, but had dropped two conference games along the way. In tonight's game they were able to turn the trick with somebody their own size, plucky Mississippi.

Louisiana State overpowered the Rebels in the first half with a surging attack after spotting them one touchdown. But if the first half was packed with fireworks—and it was—the second half was a dud, particularly for the estimated 36,000 who viewed the game.

All but one touchdown was made in the initial half. After intermission, both sides sputtered and sparked but couldn't get going. If it wasn't fumbles on the ground, it was interceptions in the air. The only score then came on a 54-yard off-tackle jaunt by Bengal Fullback Billy West, in the final period.

Ole Miss, which had lost the last three games, tried hard to get right tonight. On the last play even it looked as if Rocky Byrd, Rebel quarterback, would punch across.

Zollie Toth, Bengal fullback who runs with the grace of a distempered duck waddled to two touchdowns, the first from 13 yards out and the other from the two. He had set up both by hefty off-tackle gains.

Bengal Back Billy Baggett matched Toth's trundling with sweeping dashes through fast-opening holes and behind brilliant blocking. On a 67-yard runback of a Rebel punt by Bobbie Wilson, he picked up interference and would have gone all the way save for big John Dottley, who caught him from behind. He later went over from the one for the tally.

The other L. S. U. touchdown came on a 9-yard pass from Quarterback Charley Pevey to Halfback Lee Hedges. The march was kept in motion afte ra fumble recovery and a 22-yard Peavey pass to End Sam Lyle.

On the lone Ole Miss touchdown, Back Pat Massey scooped a pass from the clutches of Bengal Back Jim Roshto. From the mid stripe he raced across the goal unhampered. End Don Blanchard added the seventh point.

L. S. U. Quarterback Carroll Griffith placekicked all but one after-touchdown point. The one he missed never got off the ground when the Rebel line charged in hard.

Except for a good first quarter, the Rebels' Dottley was unable to repeat his performance against L. S. U. here last season, when he was chiefly responsible for a lopsided Ole Miss victory. L. S. U.'s line held and it was then Rocky Byrd had to start pitching. His chief target was End Jack Stribling.

On the ground, Ole Miss highly rated offense was able to gain only 149 yards. L. S. U. matched this with 261 yards rushing.

Best defenders for the Bengals were Linemen Allen Hover, Hal Voss, Armand Kitto and Charlie Cusimano. For the Rebels, it was Showboat Boykin, a sophomore fullback who moored his bulk to the Tiger assault.

While second-half play was dispirited and marred with fumbles and penalties, the players' temperaments were far from calm. Several scuffles were halted by the officials.

Arkansas Overpowered Aggies As Expected

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark., Oct. 29.—(AP)—Ground-minded Arkansas overpowered the hapless Texas Aggie almost exactly as expected, 27 to 6, here today.

The Razorbacks were 19-point favorites in the betting.

The victory before some 20,000 Arkansas homecomers evened the Razorbacks' Southwest Conference record at two wins and two defeats, and left A. & M. winless in three league starts.

The young Aggie team fought stubbornly to hold Arkansas to a one-point, 7-6, lead in the first half but couldn't withstand the pounding any longer.

Arkansas netted 293 yards rushing, most of it on short line jabs. Joe Dugan accounted for 105 yards on two runs, the only long ones of the afternoon for Arkansas.

While the Aggies could manage only 55 yards running into Arkansas' big line, they kept the game in doubt until the fourth quarter with Sophomore Dick Gardemal's sharp passing. He connected on 14 of 25 tosses for 143 yards.

Texas A. & M.	0	6	0	0	— 6

Texas A. & M. scoring: Touchdown, Whittaker.

Arkansas scoring: Touchdowns, Summerall, Schaufele, Mazzanti, Bass. Points after touchdowns, Thornton 3.

Cecconi Dash, Barkouskie Line Smash Make Dramatic Finish

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 29.—(AP)—A great run by Lou Cecconi and an equally great line smash by Bernard Barkouskie provided a dramatic finish to a real football thriller today as Pittsburgh's rugged team knocked Penn out of the unbeaten class with a 22 to 21 victory.

The winning points were scored just 35 seconds before the game ended as Barkouskie smashed through to block Ray Donney's attempt to punt from behind his own goal line. The ball bounced out of the end zone for an automatic safety and the two points that meant a Pitt victory.

Before that, Cecconi had run back a Donney punt 50 yards to put Pitt in a scoring position. Penn, down 13 points early in the second quarter, had come back to take the lead and apparently was in full command when Cecconi broke.

Each team scored in the third period, with Penn getting the first chance in a duel of breaks. And the Quakers appeared to be in complete control in the final quarter. Penn was holding the ball and getting most of the breaks when Dooney had to punt from his own 38-yard line. Cecconi grabbed it on the Pitt 21 and galloped fifty yards down the side lines, with the aid of some great blocking.

Back in the game, revived Pitt smashed down to the five yard line on pass plays. Then Fullback Carl Depasqua passed to Earl Sumpter in the end zone, but the touchdown was ruled out and Pitt and set back five yards for offside. Pitt got right back to the one yard line when Cecconi started off tackle then lateraled to Jimmy Joe Robinson, who had just returned to the game after having been injured in the second quarter.

Depasqua slammed the line, but was stopped a foot short of the goal and Penn took the ball.

Penn tried one running play and lost a few inches on an offside penalty. Then Dooney dropped back to punt, but the entire Pittsburgh line slammed in on him and Barkouskie blocked the ball as it left his toe.

Statistically, the game was as close as the score. Penn had an 11-10 edge in first downs and outgained the Panthers 161 yards to 128 on passes. Bagnell completed 13 of 23 passes for all of Penn's aerial gains. On the ground, Pitt was ahead 88 yards to 80.

The victory put Oklahoma into a first place tie with Missouri in the Big Seven conference and extended its streak of triumphs to 16 straight.

Fumbles plagued Oklahoma the first quarter but the Sooners scored 20 points in the second period while Iowa State was stopped cold.

Negro Gains Freedom In City Jail Break

Well, it looks like Frances James, 26-year-old Monroe Negro woman, has finally managed to get out of the city jail.

Police said she escaped Friday, "but we'll catch up with her," they promised.

For a while though, it looked like she'd have to be satisfied with a cell for at least another year. Here's why:

She was first arrested March 9 and in city court the same day Judge W. M. Harper sentenced her to 60 days in jail and fined her $250 for drawing and displaying a dangerous weapon and fighting. She couldn't pay the fine, so she began serving a day for each dollar she couldn't meet in addition to the 60-day compulsory sentence.

But that wasn't all. April 4th, she was sentenced again to 60 days in jail for drawing and displaying a dangerous weapon (a large table spoon) while in jail.

Last May 16, the woman was fined $250 and sentenced to 60 days in jail for the same offense, drawing and displaying a dangerous weapon, still while she was in jail.

Add it up. Since March 9, she has been sentenced to 180 days in jail and fined $500. Since she couldn't pay the fine, that adds another 500 days, making a total of 680 days jail time.

So far she's served 236 days, but police said when they catch her it'll mean at least 60 more.

No doubt Frances James is enjoying her "freedom." Police mean to make it short-lived. That's what they said.

2[illegible]D DEPUTY [illegible]TLES GUNMEN

Critically Shot Officer Kills One, Injures Another Bandit Suspect

BOISSEVAIN, Va., Oct. 29.—(AP)—A tough deputy sheriff was shot four times but mustered strength to kill one suspected bandit and wound another in a bloody gun battle here today.

Shot a fifth time before he got the second man, Ed McGlothlin, the leathery, slightly built, 55-year-old deputy, was in critical condition tonight at a hospital.

The bandit pair are suspected of getting $450 last night in the holdup of a West Virginia state liquor store a nearby Anawalt, W. Va. Boissevain is in the far southwest corner of Virginia. Anawalt is across the line in the southern top of West Virginia.

There was a question about the identity of the gunmen.

The wounded man, his thigh fractured by one of McGlothin's bullets, told newsmen he was George McGuire, 50, of Jenkinjones W. Va.

Officers said they were sure he is Monty Jones, who escaped about six weeks ago with his brother Roscoe from the West Virginia penitentiary at Moundsville.

The officers said they think the dead man is Roscoe. The brothers were serving burglary sentences.

Officers pieced together this story of the gun fight:

Two strangers bought new suits of overalls at a store and went to a mine company powderhouse to change clothes.

A tipster told Sheriff McGlothlin. He found the two men on the railroad track at the outskirts. He searched one and got a gun. The other man pumped three bullets into the officer's stomach. Another hit an arm.

"I think I'll finish him," one man said.

McGlothlin pleaded.

"All right," the man said. "Give me your gun."

McGlothin tugged out his pistol and fired four times. The man who had shot him dropped dead. The other pulled a gun that McGlothin had missed in his search. He fired. One bullet hit McGlothlin in the other arm. McGlothlin fired and got the bandit in the thigh. Help arrived.

Officers said the two gunmen had five weapons between them.

McGlothlin and the other wounded man were taken to the same hospital at Bluefield, W. Va. Doctors said the gunman probably would recover.

SEIZE CONSUL

perpetrated by American imperialists."

The Red account said that on Sept. 27 Ward told an employe, Chi Yu-Heng, to do some work he couldn't do, and thereupon ridiculed the workman. Finally he fired the Chinese and refused him severance pay in addition to wages, it was related.

Chi came back Oct. 10 to demand the extra money and was beaten in the consulate, together with his brother, the Communists said. Its description of injuries mentioned only bruises and a small cut but it described Chi as bleeding profusely when police found him.

The department described two of those arrested as Ralph C. Rehberg of Rochester, N. Y., a consulate clerk; Shiro Tatsumi, an American-born Japanese, and two men holding European citizenship.

Officials here said they had the impression that the Communists were trying to whip up a storm of popular passion over this matter against the five accused men.

In all, state department officials said, there are 13 Americans at the Mukden consulate, including Mrs. Ward. But officials were unable to provide a complete list.

During the many months they have been detained by the Communists. Ward and his staff have several times been assured they were about to be given transportation from the city to some place where they could establish contact with other American authorities but this has never worked out.

The department sent urgent orders to the American representative in Peiping, Consul General O. Edmund Clubb, to try to obtain Ward's release from the "highest Chinese Communist authorities." Clubb was also instructed to seek a full report direct from Ward, whose only channels of communication with the outside world are Communist-controlled.

The Red moves against U. S. diplomats in east and west appear to be tailored to conditions.

The accusation of spying has become the most familiar of the charges brought against American representatives in eastern European countries—for the purpose, state department officials believe, of cutting more and more ties between those countries and the west.

In Communist China, however, American officials say the pattern of Communist charges has fitted more into the tradition of arousing anti-foreign hatreds among the Chinese people. Shanghai, for example, has seen several incidents tending to put Americans under the stigma of refusing to pay Chinese what they owed them in wages.

In the case of Ward the conflict with the Chinese Communists has been going on intensively for a year. One of the Communists' first moves when they captured Mukden last November was to deny him the free use of his radio.

On October 24, today's state department said, a message was sent from Mukden by one of Ward's other staff members saying that the consul general and his four employes had been "removed by the police for two or three days." The state department interpreted this to mean that they had been arrested on Oct. 24 with indications from the police that they probably would not be away from the consulate for more than two or three days.

That is all the department has heard directly from Mukden from American sources.

Prior to the Chinese action, the latest crackdown by Communists on American diplomatic posts in their midst was the Prague incident.

The arrested embassy clerk was held incommunicado until today when an embassy representative was permitted to visit him.

The charge against the Americans of spying was sarcastically rejected by Secretary of State Acheson in a public statement and a protest note to the Prague foreign office.

Subsequently the foreign office indicated that a reply to the protest would not be made before the middle of next week. In a statement today the state department said sharply that this indicates the Czechs do not "realize the seriousness" with which the American government views their actions and this government therefore is considering what steps to take next.

Monroe Policeman Is Hurt In Traffic Crash

A twenty-six-year-old Monroe traffic officer was injured late yesterday morning when his motorcycle skidded into a large moving van at the intersection of Riverside and Louisville avenues.

The injured officer, J. C. Kelly, of 3109 Lee avenue, was treated for a sprained leg and bruises at the Wright-Bendel Clinic. He was not hospitalized.

Booked in connection with the accident was A. D. Petty, 33, of Dallas, Tex., driver of the van. He was charged with running a red light, causing an accident, property damage and personal injuries.

Police records showed that Petty was released from prison on a $300 bond. His trial is slated for Wednesday in city court.

Police said Officer Kelly was leading a Neville high school parade south on Riverside avenue.

Police quoted witnesses as saying that Petty ran a red light and the officer applied the brakes of his motorcycle.

Officer Kelly, according to policemen investigating the incident, rammed headon into the running board of the van and was thrown clear of both vehicles and onto the intersection.

The van, officers said, was traveling west on Louisville avenue. The incident occurred at about 11:15 a.m. and Petty was booked at 12:07 p.m.

WINNSBORO

turned the light on and was shot once in the head.

Mrs. Paola, sleeping in the front bedroom, heard the shot and ran into the hallway, and was also shot.

"Apparently she was still alive so the person shot her in the head to make sure. Then he returned to Paola, who could have still been alive, and shot him again at close range in the head."

The sheriff explained that all the doors in the five-room dwelling were unlocked; the kitchen light was still burning, and nothing was out-of-place.

Mrs. Paola's jewelry was lying undisturbed on a dresser.

Mrs. Taylor said she heard the shots and a woman scream at about 3 a. m., but since it was Halloween, she thought it was only children shooting firecrackers and playing.

Ouachita Parish Sheriff Bailey Grant and Warren Sievers, fingerprint man with Grant's department, were called from Monroe, 39 miles north of found.

EMPTY SHELLS FOUND

Four empty shells were discovered by authorities, one by Paola's body in the kitchen, two near Mrs. Paola in the hallway, and a fourth in a corner of the dining room, which separates the hall and kitchen.

Four hours after the bodies had been found neighbors and residents of this small, parish seat of Franklin parish gathered in groups around the Paola home. It was the first time anything like this had ever happened here. A steady, drizzling rain was blown upon the gatherers outside by a chilling, north wind, but they didn't seem to mind. They definitely wanted to see this killer brought to justice.

Two days later, bloodhounds from Angola were brought to Winnsboro after a prowler was reported to have attempted to break into the home of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Brown, two blocks away from the Paola residence.

Winnsboro residents were becoming jittery. Local hardware stores sold out of bolts, locks and latches. Home were kept lighted through the night and fathers and husbands were keeping rifles and pistols loaded and ready by their beds.

A coroner's inquiry into the killings, scheduled two days after Halloween, was postponed because of what Coroner Dr. Hollis Rogers said "was extremely important developments within the past twenty-four hours."

Dr. Rogers declined to reveal just what the new developments were, but obiviously they didn't pan out.

REPORTERS BARRED

When the coroner did conduct the inquest, District Attorney Anders shut the doors to reporters. The group stayed in session three hours, then adjourned with "no statements."

A $500 reward purse was offered Nov. 9, and another $500 was added six days later. But if anyone knew who killed the Paolas, they weren't going to be enticed to tell by a thousand dollars.

On Nov. 13, Sheriff Hiram Waller publicly asked the residents to "please calm down and refrain from spreading rumors." The Winnsboro police force, well aware of the jittery situation, disclosed plans to employ two additional officers for the purpose of "taking every precautionary measure possible in the public interest."

LIE TEST GIVEN

Then the following month, Dec. 17, the Franklin parish sheriff's department revealed plans to administer lie-detector tests to several of their chief suspects.

The tests were given to a number of persons, one of whom was identified as Sim Shirley, 58-year-old Winnsboro barber and neighbor of the Panolas.

It took three days to complete the tests at a $150 per day.

R. W. Pierce, operator of the lie-detector device, was brought from Chicago. He declined to comment on the case.

In his last official statement on April 21, 1949, Sheriff Waller said he had been "out of town tracking down clues in connection with the twin killing." He was away from the parish for five days.

Recently, reports indicate that a "special, out-of-town investigator is presently delving into the case."

Several residents said early this month that they were contributing money to finance the investigation.

But even though there is a special investigator working on the case, it is hardly likely that the killer will be apprehended by tomorrow night. He will celebrate his first anniversary of "the Paola murders," still a free man.

The following article was published Oct. 20, 1949 in the Franklin Sun, a weekly newspaper published in Winnsboro. At the top of the first page was Winnsboro's signal that it hasn't given up its search for the person that shot down and killed Mr. and Mrs. Paola.

"The net designed for your capture is slowly, surely and without a doubt closing in around you. Contrary to what you might be thinking, the investigation of the cold-blooded murder of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Paola has never ceased . . . and will never cease until you have been apprehended.

"Not a soul in Franklin has forgotten last Halloween night, neither have you. You are more worried than any other person and it is only right that you should be more than a little concerned. You have evaded the long arm of the law for almost a year now, whoever you are. Your freedom is short-lived . . . in fact, very short.

"The public won't let you stay at large . . . they'll go to the ends of the earth to track you down like the sneak that you are.

"Competent investigators are closing in on you at this minute. Why don't you come forward it will save time . . . save money . . . but not your neck, perhaps."

The notice was addressed: "Special to the Paola Killer."

will agree that we have done a good job. It is our aim to rehabilitate the boys who are sent to our school and restore them to society as better citizens. We want people everywhere to see for themselves what we are doing."

In its report the grand jury recently condemned the discipline cottage or "guardhouse" as being "unfit." Mr. Gresham said it was part of the physical plant inherited by his administration, dating back to 1943. Records at the training school reveal, Mr. Gresham said, that operation of the guardhouse was approved by seven district court and juvenile judges of Louisiana in 1943.

Other criticisms were directed at the institution's dining room and kitchen as being "ill-kept" and "without proper equipment."

Mr. Gresham said the floor of the dining room originally was of rough concrete and difficult to keep scrubbed clean. "On May 12, 1949," he said, "the Monroe Brick and Builders Supply Company installed a modern, clean and handsome asphalt tile floor in the dining room and I have a letter from Victor Davis, vice-president, attesting that the dining room floor is in excellent condition and that there is nothing more sanitary than an asphalt tile floor.

"I also have signed statements from O. C. Portman Electric Company showing new lighting fixtures were installed in the dining hall in June; another from G. C. Williams attesting the dining hall was completely repainted in June; one from Sherman C. Bobb certifying that 18 large aluminum venitian blinds were installed in the dining room; statements by A. H. Recoulley that all walls and ceilings of buildings at the training school were replastered where needed during the summer of 1949; a statement by R. L. Prophit that leaks had been repaired in the roofs of cottages A, B, D, E and F, the office building, school building, kitchen and dining hall and on the gymnasium."

Mr. Gresham was surprised by criticisms directed against the institution as "a fire trap." "We have taken every precaution in our power to safeguard the institution and its inmates against fire," he said. He exhibited a statement from C. P. Hartley showing eight fire escapes had been installed at the school from May to July, 1949.

Gresham also produced a statement by Electrical Contractor W. S. Adcock showing extensive repairs made recently to the institution's electric system.

In this statement Adcock pointed out that most of the buildings are old but were wired under conditions meeting the national code at the time the work was done. "I state that other repairs are being made as rapidly as possible and all hazards removed for the safety of the personnel and attendants," he said. "These repairs are being given my personal attention," the Adcock statement concluded.

THREE SOUGHT

Milton Booth, 25, also of Catahoula parish.

According to Waller, State Game Agents Woodrow LaBorde and Homer Hodges arrested the four Catahoula men early Wednesday morning and charged them with possession of an illegal seine and seining in closed waters of the Tensas river and seining without a license.

LaBarde said this was Booth's second offense. He was taken into custody last summer on a similar charge, LaBarde said.

Waller explained that while the two game agents and Booth were returning for the seine, Ed Haygood, Arlon Haygood and Bartmess drove off in Booth's truck.

Sheriff Waller said he contacted the sheriff's office in Catahoula parish shortly after the incident occurred and asked Sheriff Fred V. Fairbanks there to take the three into custody or let them post a thousand dollar bond each.

"I haven't heard from the Catahoula parish sheriff so I presume the three men are still free," the Franklin parish sheriff said.

TRUMAN SIGNS

and thinks Mr. Truman "could have compromised" on 58.

The big money bill provides the following sums:

Army: $4,380,644,298 cash.

Navy: $4,285,382,200 cash and $643,546,000 contract authority.

Air force: $4,088,386,000 cash and $1,992,755,000 contract authority.

Other military operations: $195,150,000 cash. These operations include financing the office of the secretary of defense, the National Security Council and the National Security Resources Board.

The funds cover spending in the current fiscal year, which ends next June 30.

In deciding to "place in reserve" the extra money for the air force, Mr. Truman ran counter to the expressed wishes of the house rather than the senate. A majority of the senators strongly supported his 48-group program.

The house, however, fought hard for the size-58 force and emphasized its determination by a 305 to 1 vote. The senate finally gave in and sent the bill to the White House carrying the extra $615,000,000.

The number of planes in an air group varies with different types. A group of heavy bombers, such as the B-36, or of medium bombers, like the B-50 and B-29, consists of 30 planes. A fighter group normally has 75 planes.

Most of the fund Mr. Truman set aside was in the form of authority for the air force to enter into contracts for which congress later would be obliged to provide the cash. An expert on the senate appropriation's committee staff said he knew of no law authorizing the president to impound the funds—but he also knew of no law forbidding him to do so.

Although grumbling was certain to come from house members convinced that the nation should build up its striking power in the air, Chairman Cannon (D.-Mo.) of the house appropriations committee sent word from Missouri that his group would bow to the desires of the commander in chief.

"He's in a position to understand the situation better than we are," Cannon said.

Chairman McKellar (D.-Tenn.) of the senate appropriations committee said he has no doubt that the president has complete authority to withhold the funds.

Senator Byrd, often at odds with Mr. Truman, lauded the president's action in impounding the $615,000,000.

"This is one time I am in complete accord with the president," Byrd told a reporter. "As far as economy is concerned, it is a move in the right direction."

Byrd declared the move involves no threat to national security "because the joint chiefs of staff recommended only 48 groups."

Mr. Truman struck much the same theme in the statement he released upon signing the bill.

"The defense program submitted last January was the result of an exhaustive examination of all the programs of the federal government," he said. "At that time, painstaking consideration was given to our requirements for national security and the effect of large military expenditures upon our economy.

"Our objective was to plan a defense structure which could both meet our security needs and be supported by the country without imposing too great a strain on the domestic economy.

"Careful account also was taken of this nation's position in the world. Since the end of World War II, we have been devoting a substantial portion of our resources of the development of a peaceful and stable world through economic assistance to other free nations. Our aid has been a major contribution toward world stability and has been instrumental in lessening world tension.

"However, my recommendations recognized the fact that, under existing international conditions, a relatively high level of military preparedness must be maintained for a number of years to come.

"Our defense program thus represented a balance between security needs in the light of our foreign policy and the economic and fiscal problems facing us domestically."

He said his budget for the current year gave emphasis to air power and the procurement of newly developed weapons.

Provision of an extra $615,000,000 for the air force, he said, "could have a serious effect on our ability to maintain balanced military forces" in the years ahead.

As additional planes were delivered, he pointed out, more manpower, more maintenance and more replacements would be needed. Such an expanding program would have to be supported by greatly increased appropriations in future years, he said.

As a clincher, he added:

"To build up the strength of the other services so that they could complement and support an expanded air force would require additional very large appropriations."

LITTLE PROGRESS

David J. McDonald said a decision on recall of the board would be up to the union's policy committee.

The fact finders recommended a 10-cent hourly package of company financed insurance and pensions. The steelworkers accepted but industry balked at paying the freight without worker contributions.

Colvin said he thought the industry-wide dispute could be settled by "individual collective bargaining, company by company, as the board recommended."

He asked for the board to clarify its recommendations as they apply to small steel producers.

Ching told Colvin he would "be happy to communicate to you Mr. Murray's reply as soon as it is received."

The chairman of the board, Dr. Carroll R. Daugherty, said the board could only be recalled if both the union and the industry request it.

Ching, meanwhile, moved his operations from New York to Washington where he plans to talk with officials of Republic Steel, Jones and Laughlin and Youngstown Sheet and Tube Companies tomorrow and Monday.

Republican Senator Morse of Oregon laid the blame for failure to settle the dispute on the "blind stubbornness" of the big steel producers, and called on them to grant the union's demands for the pension-insurance passage.

He told a reporter:

"United States Steel Corporation must be blamed with major responsibility for the economic damage being done to the country."

Of his week-long conferences with U. S. Steel C- p. leaders in New York Ching reported only that no break had appeared. He also spoke by telephone with Murray.

The mediation director said he plans another talk with Murray Monday but most labor observers figure Murray will be busy with his fight to oust Communist-led factions at the C. I. O. convention.

The small steel firms began to play an increasingly voluble role in the otherwise fruitless attempts to end the walkout.

Officials of the comparatively small Allegheny-Ludlum Steel Corp. expressed confidence they will reach a contract agreement with the union "outside the pattern" before a Monday midnight strike deadline.

The firm was granted an extension on its old contract to November 1, and thereby escaped the general steel shutdown. An Allegheny-Ludlum spokesman said the pattern referred to was the ten-cents-per-hour fund recommended by the fact-finding board.

Murray and his spokesmen had nothing to say regarding this report.

The steelworkers announced signing of another new contract along the lines of the board's formula. The pact covers 400 employes of the Carpenter Steel Company's Flemington, N. J., plant.

John Proto, international representative of the steelworkers, said the pact—which includes the 10-cent free pension and insurance package—will "be used as a pattern for settling the nationwide steel strike."

U. S. W. headquarters in Pittsburgh, however, pointed out that the settlement is the same as those already made with some 40 other small firms throughout the industry.

John L. Lewis, meanwhile, appeared in the heart of the anthracite belt in eastern Pennsylvania to pay tribute to John Mitchell—his predecessor as the mine union's boss.

He spoke briefly at ceremonies in Scranton where hard coal diggers—idle for the contract-approved paid holiday—honored the early U. M. W. leader.

His protracted negotiations with mine owners have reached a new stage of impasse. Talks with northern and western operators have broken off. Conferences will resume Tuesday between the union and southern operators.

CIGARETTE TAX

business, but the majority expect to hang on, for the present at least.

Tax officials in Connecticut, Michigan and Ohio expressed the view that the mail order business would decline to the vanishing point in their states. However, they said they would make a drive for collections.

Tobacco taxes are a major source of revenue in the states. The tax ranges from one cent to as high as eight cents a package. Pennsylvania, which has a four cents tax, collected $78,475,740 from this source last year.

Pennsylvania and Oklahoma are among states that impose penalties for possessing untaxed cigarettes. Out of state buyers in Oklahoma could be required to pay not only the tax due but a 50 cents a carton penalty. In Pennsylvania, fines up to $25 can be assessed for possessing 200 untaxed cigarettes.

Oklahoma estimates that a drying up of out of state buying would net that state an extra $3,000,000 in taxes a year. The Oklahoma tax is five cents a package. Massachusetts believes it may increase its tobacco tax revenue by as much as $1,000,000.

Most other state figured they reap extra taxes ranging from "small amounts" to several hundred thousands of dollars annually.

The 17 states that made specific estimates for the survey expect to collect an aggregate of $12,130,000 in extra revenue each year because of the new federal law.

Massachusetts is planning one of the most intense collection drives. Tax Commissioner Henry F. Long said the tax will be enforced "to the letter." Even before the new bill was enacted, the state seized 10 cartons purchased via mail order by a tuberculosis hospital patient. The man was not prosecuted, however, because of his illness.

Several midwest states already had voluntary agreements for the exchange of information on out of state cigarette sales. The new federal statute will merely serve to make this exchange mandatory.

TRIAL OF FUTCH

at the Memorial Foundation Hospital where the indicted man was reported suffering from a neck vertebra injury and in a traction apparatus, unable to move alone.

Efforts to contact Defendant Futch at his present residence, 1022 North Fifth street, in Monroe Saturday failed. Futch's wife explained he was out of town but "expected back Saturday night." When questioned concerning her husband's health she said "he is still bothered with a neck vertebra injury."

The former secretary-treasurer of the police jury was indicted by a Union parish grand jury March 9, District Attorney Madden said in a series of thefts between April 5, 1944 and Dec. 12, 1948, "aggregating the sum of $41,190.70, belonging to the Union parish police jury."

Futch was arrested in February a few days after he was relieved of his police jury post, and released under bond Madden said.

The shortage in parish funds was first discovered Dec. 22, following a state autditor's report, blaming Futch for the shortage.

The grand jury following its regular session on March 9 returned a true bill, charging Futch with theft.

The indictment reads:

"Between April 5, 1944 and December 12, 1948, P. T. Futch did wilfully, feloniously and unlawfully commit a series of thefts of money aggregating the sum of $41,190.70 which belonged to the Union Parish Police Jury while he was entrusted with money belonging to the jury, and employed as secretary-treasurer."

Once in the metropolis the women in the party attended the General Federation board meeting in the Waldorf-Astoria and other events held in this connection.

Board members were guests of the Metropolitan Museum at a tea and tour; one day was spent at the United Nations at Lake Success and an event of interest was the pleasure of meeting Miss Kih, Korean student financially aided by the Federation and Dr. M. Kehoe, secretariat of the U. N. from Korea.

Mrs. Tisdale stated before leaving that she had a hard time getting her spouse away from his hospital here but at last he consented to take his first vacation in many years.

Bad news for coffee addicts! It is even predicted that 10 o'clock morning coffee in downtown Monroe may cost a silver dime instead of a nickel.

MASSIVE ARRESTS

slav troops did not return the fire.

Borba's three-column article, obviously bearing the approval of Tito's regime, termed the Bulgarian situation an example of that existing in all cominform countries that have remained under control of Moscow. The last big purges were in Czechoslovakia.

Without citing the source of its information, Borba said that in one Bulgarian district alone—Pevna—2,500 persons are under arrest, four-fifths of them on political charges. Cryptically, it said that among them were "honest Communists, friends of Yugoslavia, foes of Titoism."

The last of those held included National Bank Director Tutev and Gen. Vasil Markov, a member of the central committee of the Bulgarian Workers' (Communist) Party. Also named were former Finance Minister Ivan Stepenov, former Public Works Minister Manol Sekelarov, former Industrial Minister Petko Kunin.

A former deputy premier, Traicho Kostov, already was awaiting trial in Sofia. Like the recently executed Lazly Rajk, former foreign minister of Hungary, he is accused of "right-ist deviation," which means a swerve from Moscow-brand communism toward Titoism, and espionage.

Borba said many of those picked up by police in the new drive and no connection with Kostov. (The Yugoslav organ apparently wished to go on record in advance as disavowing any charges the Bulgarians might make in subsequent trials of intervention by the Tito government in Bulgarian affairs.)

The trials in preparation, it said, are aimed at "diverting the attention of the masses from existing problems which Bulgaria is not solving." The arrests were reported to have "provoked great bitterness among Bulgarian workers."

Two Monroe Firemen Receive Minor Burns

Two Monroe firemen received minor burns early Saturday morning combating an Atkinson street fire which destroyed one dwelling and damaged two others.

Capt. D. H. Mobley's hands were burned and Firemen Frank Morris suffered a shoulder burn. Both required medical treatment but neither were hospitalized.

Firemen from companies 2, 4 and 11 fought the blaze which originated in a Negro dwelling off the Winnsboro Road at 513 Atkinson street shortly before 2:30 a. m., for more than two hours before bringing it under control.

Cause of the fire was undetermined, firemen said. Houses at 511 and 515 Atkinson street were damaged by the spreading flames but not destroyed.

Occupant and owner of the gutted house was reported to have been Emma C. Spears, Negro.

LOLLAR

friends who hugged him and pounded him on the shoulders.

Lollar was the first of 18 men to be tried on flogging and related charges. All were indicted after an outbreak of floggings and cross-burnings, mostly in the hill country west of Birmingham.

Perry said no immediate decision had been made as to when others would be tried but that action would be taken Monday to set the next case.

The solicitor said each of the accused would be "tried one by one until all have had a fair and impartial trial in open court."

Lollar's Attorney George Rogers opened his argument with the assertion that "the state has talked about everything but the McDanal case."

Rogers maintained that the state's efforts to connect Lollar with other incidents during the trial only muddied the issue.

Rogers referred to three other state witnesses who identified Lollar by his voice as a participant in three other floggings.

Judge Robert J. Wheeler allowed testimony in other cases under the ruling that the prosecution had the right to "attempt to show a behavior pattern."

Perry told the jury "I want you to contrast this trial with those held in the Klan Klaverns in the dark of night. Where is the record from those trials?"

Mrs. McDanal testified she lifted Lollar's hood during the raid at her home and saw his face.

Lollar and three of his neighbors disputed this testimony by saying they were at a baseball game the night of June 10.

Lollar, from the witness stand, also denied he had ever been "on any flogging."

Testimony today included admission by the state that a letter, previously introduced in evidence and admittedly bearing Lollar's post office box as a return address, was not in Lollar's handwriting.

The letter was mailed to the mother of Jack Alexander, one of the flogging victims, two days after the whipping. It threatened a return visit.

Ben L. Allen, state criminal investigator, testified Lollar told him, at the Adamsville Klavern parking lot on June 17, that "I'm kind of a leader here and the boys do what I say."

Lollar was found guarding cars at the Adamsville Klavern the week following the McDanal raid. Two other state witnesses, both members of Stonewall Jackson Klavern at Adamsville, said that the McDanal raid followed a Klan meeting there.

Dockmen Fail To Show Up In Houston

HOUSTON, Tex., Oct. 29.—(AP)—Approximately 2,000 longshoremen failed to show up at Port Houston's docks to work today.

Operators said that shipping is always heaviest at the end of the month and claimed that the union is trying to bring pressure on them to meet the International Longshoremen's Association's present demands over pensions aid funds, which New York shippers have granted.

"It's only a show on the part of the union in order to impress the shippers with its strength," said J. E. Davies, chairman of the labor committee of the Houston Maritime Association.

Officials of the local I. L. A. would not comment.

West gulf coast longshoremen, from Brownsville, Tex., to Lake Charles, La., have set a strike for 12:01 a. m. Tuesday. Davis said there was a good chance the strike can be averted when his committee meets with the longshoremen in Galveston Monday afternoon. The walkout would affect 10,0000 longshoremen.

The longshoremen now receive $1.78 an hour and get differentials on certain cargoes up to $2 an hour. The union asked for a 22 cents an hour wage hike, increased vacation, pension and welfare concessions.

DULLES, LEHMAN NEAR SHOWDOWN

Two Senatorial Candidates Speed Final Week Of Campaigning

By Joe Hall

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—(AP)—New York state's two senatorial candidates oiled their election machines today for a high speed final week of campaigning for New York City's 2,500,000 votes.

Their upstate tours ended, Republican Sen. John Foster Dulles and former Gov. Herbert H. Lehman, Democratic-Liberal candidate, will spend the time remaining before the November 8 voting in appeals to the metropolis' polyglot population.

The election, only off-year senate contest in the nation this year, has been made a straight-out test of President Truman's fair deal program.

In his talks throughout the state, Lehman has associated himself with Mr. Truman, the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt, the late Al Smith and former Sen. Robert Wagner. When the latter resigned Gov. Thomas E. Dewey appointed Dulles to the interim term. Now the office must be filled by election, the term ending January 3, 1951.

Lehman has insisted the dominant issue is whether the Liberal, Progressive program he ascribes to the Democrats is to be continued, or whether "black reaction" is to take over. He defends the "welfare state."

Dulles met this issue head on. He has denounced what he calls the trend to an all-powerful state and demanded that taxes be cut instead of hiked for new fair deal programs.

The Republican senator, a veteran foreign affairs expert, also said this week "the chances are" that the bipartisan foreign policy would end if he were defeated.

The former governor retorted that Dulles is "hopelessly miscast in the role of the indispensable man" in the nation's foreign policy. He said this policy had been carried out for five years "without Mr. Dulles in the senate."

Dulles twice called his opponent a liar in the past week. He said Lehman, a Jew, had lied in calling him a bigot and again in explaining why he formerly had accepted the endorsement of the left-wing American labor party.

Two prominent Jews, Bernard M. Baruch and Dr. Abba Hillel Silver, Zionist leader, defended the G. O. P. senator, who is a leading Protestant layman, on the bigotry issue during the week. Both said they knew he was devoid of religious or racial prejudice.

The national Democratic administration is going all out for Lehman.

Mr. Truman sent him a warm letter and Vice-President Alben Barkley, Attorney General J. Howard McGrath and Secretary of Labor Maurice Tobin came into the state to speak for him.

Republicans commented tartly that Tobin and McGrath might better remain in Washington and try to settle the coal and steel strikes.

Another Lehman speaker attracting attention upstate is Rep. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., considered a promising entry in the Democratic stable for higher office in future years.

Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, who named Dulles to the senate after Wagner resigned last June, has stumped the state for his appointee, hailing him as "the world's greatest statesman."

The governor asserted this week that "the present world crisis calls for greatness in government and requires the election of Mr. Dulles."

The Truman administration's proposed health program has figured heavily in the senate battle. Dulles sharply attacks "socialized medicine." In many cities, doctors are writing their patients asking them to vote for the G. O. P. senator.

Lehman also has said he is not for "socialized medicine." He has left in doubt his exact position on compulsory national health insurance favored by the administration.

The senate campaign is entwined with the bitterly fought mayoral election in New York City.

The Liberal party, which polled 200,000 votes last year, is supporting Lehman but also is backing Newbold Morris, Republican-Liberal-fusion candidate for mayor.

Mayor William O'Dwyer, Democrat seeking a second term, strongly endorses Lehman. Morris has not indicated a senate choice.

Democratic leaders predicted this week that Dulles would have a margin of not more than 400,000 votes outside New York City in the election. On his side, the senator forecast that the Democratic majority in the city would be much smaller than usual.

Three years ago, Lehman had an edge of 485,000 in the metropolis but lost the upstate area by 736,000 votes. He thus was beaten by 251,000 by Republican Sen. Irving M. Ives.

COLLEGE WON'T DISCRIMINATE

'Desperate' For Finances, Jefferson College Refuses Endowment

NATCHEZ, Miss., Oct. 29.—(AP)—Jefferson Military College—describing its financial situation as "desperate"—turned its back on an endowment of $50,000,000 here today and broke all ties with Texas Millionaire George Armstrong, who made the offer.

The college trustees met for 90 minutes and then concurred again on Armstrong's withdrawal of the offer conditioned on the 147-year-old prep school incorporating his ideas of white supremacy.

A statement by the trustees said there had been "a complete misunderstanding between Armstrong and the board of trustees." The statement added that. . . "the policies announced by Judge George W. Armstrong are not, never have been, and never will be the policies of Jefferson Military College, so long as any member of the present board of trustees is in any way connected with the institution."

The 84-year-old Armstrong's offer quickly raised national comment. It was censured by the non-secrtarian anti-Nazi League of New York and Rep. Klein (D-N.Y.).

The Natchez Democrat commented editorially: "Today many persons will breathe a sigh of relief because the dispute, which has gained nation wide attention and resulted in heapings of coal on the south's head, is apparently over. A number of citizens of our community will greet the announcement with joy because they have objected to what they believed was behind the endowment plan.

"Obviously there is a deep and wide gulf between this thinking and that of the trustees and many citizens of this community."

The trustees not only rejected the endowment, but also refused Armstrong's unconditional offer to pay the school's $5,000 bank note and support it during the rest of this school year.

The written statement issued after the meeting in a Natchez bank building this morning, apparently ended the entire affair.

The elderly Armstrong previously had announced his withdrawal of his original offer but left the door open for the college to reconsider.

He had said, "I want to make it plain I have no controversy with the trustees. They're trying to serve the country in their way and I in my own way."

In a written statement of his own, the wealthy oil and steel man denied charges that he was anti-semitic.

"Only to the extent that Jews are Socialists and Communsts am I anti-semitic," his statement said.

The rejection of the endowment leaves the small military school right back where it was before the controversy started: In a financial squeeze.

S. N. Murphy, chairman of the trustee's executive committee, said he didn't know what was in store for the school now.

"The future at the moment is a blank," he said.

The Brownies entertained their mothers with a program as follows; welcome address, by Mary Francis Southern; piano solo "Meal Time at the Zoo," Ann Tillman; Brownie Pledge, by all Brownies"; Brownie song by all Brownies; Hallowe'en poem by Dewonna Bryant; piano solo, The Hobgoblin, by Edith Jean Hassell; Hallowe'en song led by Dianne McBride, Carol Sue McCain and Harriet Kincaid; Brownie smile song, led by all second grade; Piano solo, Dark Shadows, by Marrilon Johnston; a poem, Boo, by Ann Marioneaux; song led by Margaret Ann Sims; an da poem, The Witches Ride was read by the leader At the end of the program Mrs. W. A. Butler, Jr., read the Brownies a story about Hallowe'en, and the mothers enjoyed an informal "chat" with the leader of the troup, Mrs. Otis B. Hassell.

The troup committee mother for the last week in October, Mrs. Carye Kincaid, served delicious colorful refreshments to the fifty mothers and Brownies present.

Three Persons Hurt In Winnsboro Road Crash

WINNSBORO, La., Oct. 29.—(Special)—An eighteen-year-old Gilbert, a girl was one of three persons injured around noon today when the automobile in which they were riding overturned in a ditch off Highway 15 near the Ouachita-Richland parish line.

In the Winnsboro hospital here tonight is Miss Ruth Coates, 18, of Gilbert. The attending physician said the girl was suffering possible back injuries and bruises, but was not in serious condition.

Also injured in the accident was J. W. Lewis, of Winnsboro, and another unidentified passenger in the car. A Winnsboro doctor said neither was injured seriously enough to require hospitalization.

A witness to the accident said the automobile ran off the shoulder of the highway and overturned in a deep ditch after a tire on the car had worn out.

State police said they knew nothing about the accident. A Mulhearn ambulance from Monroe brought the injured persons to the hospital here.

Engineers have worked it out so that two television stations operating on separate channels can use the same antenna tower.

New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 29.—(AP)—Cotton futures fluctuated over a narrow range here today. Closing prices were steady 20 cents a bale lower to 5 cents higher. Early in the session prices were lower on selling stimulated by a lower than expected parity price, but trade buying and week end short covering erased most of the loss. Spot cotton remained unchanged with middling 15/16 inch quoted at 29.30 cents a pound.

Local sales amounted to 4,291 bales.

New York

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—(AP)—Cotton futures were under pressure of hedging and commission house liquidation with trading moderately active today Most of the selling was in distant contracts and was induced by the department of agriculture announcement of a 25 point reduction in the mid-October cotton parity price as compared with a month ago.

Hedging in nearby deliveries, however, was readily absorbed by textile mill buying and this cushioned declines in nearby contracts.

Futures closed 20 cents a bale lower to 10 cents higher than the previous close.

Grandfather Admits Fatal Poisoning

JACKSON, Miss., Oct. 29.—(AP)—A 42-year-old man—already charged with attempted murder of one of his granddaughters—signed a statement today saying he poisoned a second who died here last July.

Police Chief Joel Holden said the grandfather, Houston Roberts, signed a two-page statement saying that he and a Jackson woman—also charged in the attempted murder of one of Robert's granddaughters—placed poison in medicine capsules to get insurance money with which to elope.

Police Chief Holden identified the girl Roberts said he poisoned as five-year-old Mary Louise Hill, sister of Shirley Ann Hill, four, who recently recovered from an illness. Hospital tests showed she had arsenic of lead in her kidneys.

The chief said that Mrs. Ruby Pace, 43, charged yesterday with attempted murder in the case of Shirley Ann, had been implicated by Roberts in his statement. Mrs. Pace has denied any connection with the case.

She was released under a $3,000 bond.

Roberts' statement was signed in the presence of Detective Lieut. E. L. Brown, Detective S. B. Barnes and Dr. W. Douglas Hudgins, pastor of the First Baptist Church here, in addition to himself, Holden said.

C. R. Hill, father of the children, has been working in New Orleans while his wife, Mrs. Gladys Hill, operated a Jackson rooming house.

WILDCAT PLANNED IN EAST CARROL

Well Will Be Drilled In Mississippi River Bottom Soon

A wildcat well in search of the Delhi trend will be drilled in the old Mississippi river bed in East Carroll parish, it was announced yesterday.

John J. Cerniglia, of Delhi, E. T. Nichols, Monroe geologist, Jack Petersen, Shreveport operator, and Bart Tully, wealthy Memphis industrialist, have formed the company which will drill the well, which is expected to be spudded in within the next ten days.

The operation will be hazardous and expensive, it was said, as the drilling rig and all equipment is to be barged to the location by boat. It will be the first time an peration of this type has been attempted in northeast Louisiana.

Other than Cerniglia and associations, lease holders in the area include Magnolia Petroleum, Stanolind, Carter, Skelly, California, Mid-Continent, Union Oil of California, Texas Company, Arkansas Fuel, Sun Oil, Culf, McAlester Fuel, Amerada, Plymouth Oil, Anderson and Tully, Claude Sewell and W. C. Feazel.

The well is expected to be watched closely by major companies as it will be the most interest Tuscaloosa Paluxy test since the discovery of the Delhi field. Two years ago Issaquena and adjoining counties of Warren and Sharkey in Mississippi had a total of 25 unsuccessful wildcat tests with Sun and C. H. Murphy, Jr., being the major explorers. In September Petersen Drilling Company drilled an information well in section 51, township 18, 13 east, three miles to the southwest of the proposed wildcat.

Geology Has Helped Make West Texas Oil Reservoir

By Max B. Skelton

MIDLAND, Tex., Oct. 29.—(AP)—Millions of years of geology have been kind to West Texas and southeastern New Mexico.

The cattle country the past quarter century has become one of the nation's largest oil reservoirs.

More than 3,000,000,000 barrels of crude oil already have been produced. Conservative estimates of current underground reserves approach the 6,000,000,000 mark—somewhere between one-fifth and one-sixth of estimated United States reserves.

Geologists say that about 185,000,000 to 220,000,000 years ago the area was blanketed by what they call the Permian Sea. West Texas first commercial oil production was found in geologic formations left by this sea.

Oilmen now refer to the West Texas-New Mexico oil producing area as the Permian Basin.

Strikes in Permian formations first made it possible for the cattle country to become an oil producer.

But when Permian oil first was discovered drilling equipment could not go too deep and many oilmen believed there was no oil at greater depths.

Modern drilling equipment has changed these theories and has brought the basin an era of optimism that has tremendous exploration possibilities.

Permian wells still are being drilled and completed successfully but strikes at greater depths are bringing more and more oilment into the area.

The basin's first big producer was at Big Lake, Reagan county, in 1922, producing from depths less than 3,000 feet.

Big Lake operators later went to 8,634 feet and found oil in the Ellenberger zone of the ordovician geologic age of something like 445,000,000 years ago.

In 1940 the first big strike in the Pennsylvania age—about 220,000,000 to 268,000,000 years old—came at the Todd field in Crockett county. Producing depth is right at 6,000-feet.

Strikes also have been made in formations between the Permian and Pennsylvanian.

The postwar swing to deep wells has been rapid, however, and a big boom currently is under at Snyder, Scurry county, where Pennsylvanian oil was found late last year.

The Scurry county boom, many oilmen say, may see the development of one of the world's greatest oil fields.

Last August 1, the West Texas-New Mexico Permian basin had over 300 producing oil fields and over 30,000 oil wells.

Some oilmen are confident the future is even greater.

Independent Producer James S. Noland recently wrote:

"Men of vision found the Permian basin and those with vision will be the men who will find more oil in the future than has been found in the past."

Areas which once saw Permian depth wildcats abandoned as dry holes are being explored again with good producers being found in pre-Permian formations.

West Texas' economy has boomed along with the steady increase in oil discoveries and explorations.

Towns have become cities, cattlemen have gotten out of debt.

M. C. Ulmer, Midland, a former president of the Texas Bankers Association and former head of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, says oil has caused a great transformation in the ranch business.

"We don't have any cattle loans any more," he said.

"The coming of oil to west Texas has made the cattleman a depositor rather than a borrower."

Ulmer cited the cases and ranchers who once were faced with bankruptcy only to recover and become philanthropists.

He agreed with the estimate of an oilman-rancher that between 75 to 80 per cent of west Texas ranch is under valid oil or gas lease.

Ulmer's First National Bank at Midland currently is undergoing a huge remodelling program necessitated by the city's growth since it became the capital of the Permian Basin.

When the Big Lake field was opened in 1923 oil companies located their headquarters at San Angelo, Tom Green county. As the big Permian strikes kept moving northward below Midland and Odessa the companies turned to more centrally located Midland.

A Midland resident, T. S. Hogan, has visualized that Midland some day would be the nerve center of the basin's oil activities.

Hogan wanted Midland to be ready. He started constructing a 12-story office building. In the early 1930's parts of the building stood empty for months and Midland residents began to refer to the structure as "Hogan's Folly."

But the boom began around 1934 and Midland suddenly found itself pressed for office space. Hogan's vision that the town would headquarter oil companies operating in the basin had come true.

Something like 250 oil companies, operators and affiliates now headquarter there. New buildings have boosted office floor space to 353,000 square feet with another 107,000 planned or under construction.

City Manager H. A. Thomason estimated the city's population last December 31 at 26,200, compared to 9,352 in 1940. Bank deposits are six times greater than they were in 1940.

Midland also has continued as the cattle center of its area.

Most ranchers have reacted calmly to their income from oil leases and royalties. They still are cattlemen at heart.

It was a happy day when Chris Millican recently became part owner of a discovery well in Coke county.

"I'm going to see every rodeo I want to," he said.

LARGE INCREASE ADDS TO SURPLUS

Mid-Continent Area Leads Domestic Crude Oil Production; La. Output Upped

TULSA, Okla., Oct. 29.—(AP)—The Mid-Continent area led domestic crude oil production into another week of surplus, The Oil and Gas Journal said.

The authoritative periodical estimated United States average output at 4,996,675 barrels per day for the week ended Oct. 22, an increase of 3,250 barrels daily over the previous period.

Kansas was up 5,400 barrels to 227,650 barrels a day; Oklahoma up 5,100 barrels to 421,500; and Nebraska, up 100 barrels to 1,000.

Texas production, with 2,026,200 barrels reported daily, remained unchanged along with that of Florida and New Mexico. California slipped 6,400 barrels a day to an 884,000-barrel average.

The north central states reported a high collective increase. Prominent was Michigan, up 3,050 barrels to 47,400. Louisiana was up 500 barrels to 529,475.

The largest loss was suffered in the south where Mississippi limped along with 95,200 barrels daily, down 5,900; and, Arkansas decreased 650 barrels to 72,000. A similar trend was noted in the Rocky Mountain area, The Journal reported.

Canada's daily production was 64,265 barrels, a slump of 875 barrels.

Wounded Society Figure Still Remains Unconscious

HOUSTON, Tex., Oct. 29.—(AP)—Allen Thomas Sturges II, New York society figure, continued unconscious in a Houston hospital tonight—a week after he was wounded.

The 26-year-old Sturges was found shot in the head last Saturday. He was in an upstairs spare bedroom in a private home in Houston's River Oaks residential suburb.

Police said the bullet wound was self-inflicted. Surgeons have not removed the bullet.

Sturges' mother, Mrs. E. N. Tavenniere of Englewood, N. J., has been at her son's bedside since Tuesday night.

Call letters of amateur radio stations always include a number. That is to identify the district in which they are located.

BAZAAR SLATED BY QUOTA CLUB

Will Be Held In Rio Vista Apartments On South Grand Street

That long looked for date is almost here. That is November 4 and 5, the dates for the Quota Club Bazaar. Mrs. Emma Keene, chairman, states that the owner of Rio Vista apartment building, has very kindly given the ground floor for use. The address is 226 South Grand street, across from the old Monroe Hotel, next door to the armory.

Every article made by the Acadians will be on exhibit and for sale. Have you seen those lovely pecky cypress tubs as shown in Southern Gardner? Mrs. Keene states the girls have been able to get a number of these for the sale.

Eva Gae Malone and Bess James have some of the most gorgeous lamps you've ever been privileged to see—and—at such a very reasonable price. The new hammered copper so very good now will be there in pictures and cigarette boxes.

Come down and buy your week end needs in cakes, cookies and candies and by all means, bring the kiddies to see the adorable dolls and toys.

Remember the proceeds from this bazaar will go for a girls' camp in Ouachita parish. Everybody is invited to come on Friday and Saturday, November 4 and 5.

Consider Plans To Rebuild Jap Fleet

TOKYO, Oct. 29. — (AP) — Occupation officials said today plans are being considered to increase Japan's ocean going merchant fleet by 130,000 tons, by overhauling 20 Japanese ships built during the war.

General MacArthur's headquarters favors building up Japan's merchant marine as one way of reducing the cost of the occupation to the American taxpayers. It has been estimated that Japan has about 1,000,000 tons of potential ocean-going shipping. Japan's prewar merchant marine was 6,000,000 tons.

Policeman Smells Smoke, Saves 100 Lives

SPOKANE, Oct. 29. —(AP)—A rookie policeman with a cold didn't believe his nose when he sniffed the faint odor of smoke.

He investigated, turned in a fire alarm at an apartment house and was credited with saving many lives early yesterday.

Patrolman Lowell Bradeen smelled the smoke about 1 a.m. just after starting to walk his downtown beat. He turned in the alarm and then ran up three flights of stairs to bang on apartment doors and arouse 100 sleeping residents, most of them elderly people.

A three-alarm fire swept through the building but all the occupants were able to make their way to safety. Damage was estimated at $100,000.

Police Captain John Reilly said if it hadn't been for Bradeen "I'm afraid many lives would have been lost since the fire started when all the people were sound asleep."

The 34-year old police rookie said it was luck.

"I just happened to start walking my beat in the middle of the shift today," he recalled. "I've had this darn cold for two weeks now but I thought I smelled smoke at the Montvale building. Since my nose is plugged up I figured I better check further. It was smoke all right. * * *"

The Spokane fire department sent almost every piece of its equipment and 150 men to battle the blaze. The fire apparently started in the basement.

Wind Tunnel Much Faster Than Sound

PASADENA, Calif., Oct. 29.—(AP)—A new wind tunnel with speeds 10 times as fast as sound will go into operation soon at the California Institute of Technology, testing models of rockets that could span the Atlantic in half an hour.

Fastest speed previously reported in any wind tunnel was seven times the velocity of sound which is about 760 miles an hour at sea level.

The new Caltech tunnel, built for the army ordnance department, stimulates conditions a rocket or guided missile would meet traveling at a speed of 7,600 miles an hour at an altitude of 100,000 feet.

Thus, for the first time, science has created a device making possible tunnel tests at speeds far greater than any yet achieved by rockets or missiles. Best speed for a rocket to date is about 5,200 miles an hour, or about seven times as fast as sound.

This record was set Feb. 25, 1949, by the Wac Corporal, a small rocket fired from the nose of a German V2 rocket after the latter had reached its maximum velocity of 3,400 miles an hour.

CZECHS FREE 127 CATHOLIC PRIESTS

Churchmen Apologize And Promise Government They Will Be Loyal

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, Oct. 29. —(AP)—President Klement Gottwald today freed 127 imprisoned Catholic priests who were said to have repented their opposition to the new church-control laws.

An announcement said the priests opposed the laws because of "pressure from the church hierarchy," but in prison "proclaimed they wanted to change their attitude, were sorry for their acts and promised loyalty to the Czechoslovak republic and asked the president for amnesty."

Church sources have reported about 300 priests under arrest for voluntarily opposing the laws passed Oct. 14, which give a government ministry control of church finances, salaries, personnel and administration.

Earlier this week the Czechoslovak bishops retreated from their opposition to the laws to the extent of allowing priests to take an oath of loyalty to the Communist government—with reservations—and accept government salaries, provided they advised their church superiors.

The bishops said they still considered the laws violated the constitution and church freedom, but that it was necessary to protect the priests from being sent to jail so they could still attend to their spiritual duties.

Previously Catholic sources had reported about 80 per cent of the nation's 7,000 priests signed voluntary statements they would go to jail before accepting the control laws.

Some of the amnested priests were released with ceremony at Pankrac, a big prison for political prisoners just outside Prague. Newspaper reporters and photographers were allowed to see them being liberated.

Svobodne Slovo, the former Socialist newspaper, said the amnesty was a "magnanimous gesture enabling the priests to show a positive attitude toward the government." But it warned that future violators of the law would be punished more severely.

Meanwhile, American officials were allowed their first interview today with Samuel Meryn, U. S. embassy clerk of Czechoslovak birth, who was arrested nine days ago on charges of leading a spy ring.

Meryn told U. S. Consul Carrol Parry, in the presence of three Czech observers at Pankrac prison, that he had been treated all right but would like a blanket, clean clothes and better food. The Czechs limited the 15-minute conference to a discussion of Meryn's personal welfare. Parry sent food and packages to the prison for him.

Meryn, 39, is to face trial on the spy charges with a Czech lawyer defending him. Czech lawyers are bound by a new code to regard "protection of the republic" as their first duty.

Isaac Patch, political attache at the U. S. embassy, and John G. Heyn, his assistant, also have been expelled on charges they were spying. U. S. Charge D'Affaires James K. Penfield in a note to the Czech government has protested the spying charges against the three embassy employes.

(The U. S. state department said in a statement Saturday it was considering "further steps" in the case because apparently the Czechoslovak government "does not realize the seriousness with which we view the action of the Czech government." Secretary of State Dean Acheson has said the charges were "trumped up."

(Two French embassy officials, the military attache, Col. George Helliot, and his secretary, Marcel Salabert, also were ordered expelled three days ago on charges they were inquiring into uranium production and sent samples of the ore out of the country. Salabert already was in France at the time.

(The French foreign minister in a statement Saturday declared the charges had "no foundation in fact." It said the Czech government simply was trying to get rid of Col. Helliot, who was an expert observer of long experience.)

Armstrong Will Organize School To Fit His Fancy

By James McLean

WASHINGTON, Miss., Oct. 29.—(AP)—Land-rich George W. Armstrong, Sr. tonight planned to hurl his wealth in a new direction to oppose "race mongrelization" of Jews and Gentiles going to school together.

He declared he intends to use his mineral rights worth millions to establish an Armstrong University in Texas, either at Fort Worth or Port Arthur.

The 84-year-old determined exponent of white supremacy vowed he would make his own rules about who could attend.

"I'll organize the school and put in any stipulations I want," he added. He said, however, his ideas were incomplete on the subject.

The man who amassed wealth in Texas steel operations and Mississippi's new oil empire, was balked in his efforts to use poor but proud little Jefferson Military College near here to teach his views on racial superiority of "Anglo-Saxons and Latin Americans."

The college trustees refused to make charter changes in return for a potential $50,000,000 endowment when, they said, they learned his requirements included a doctrine they could not accept for the 147-year-old prep school.

Armstrong then withdrew his offer. Learning that Jefferson Military College refused to accept from him even operating expenses for this school year, he then told of his Armstrong University plans in an interview.

"I want a school for white Christians only," he said. "And we need education on Communism and true constitutional government. I thought I had a clear understanding with the Jefferson Military College trustees.

"I'm not looking for any more money or fame," he continued. "But I want to render a little service to my country before I pass on."

He said he disliked the idea of Jews and Gentiles together in schools because it tended to "mongrelize the American race."

"Jews ought to have their own schools," he said, "just like the whites and the Negroes."

He said he would leave Monday for a 10-day trip to Port Arthur and Fort Worth and then return here. While on the trip, he said, he will confer with his attorneys about "Armstrong University."

He said he favored Fort Worth for his proposed University site, where he had lived most of his life, but that he had 826 acres of land at Port Arthur that would be ideal for such a project.

C. I. O. LEFTISTS FACE SHOWDOWN

Murray And Right-Wingers Open Pre-Convention Activities

CLEVELAND, Oct. 29.—(AP)—Philip Murray and the dominant right-wing faction of the C. I. O. began a pre-convention showdown today with the left-wingers facing ouster.

Murray kept the leftists leaders guessing about how he intended to deal with them at next week's convention, beginning Monday, but he was reported to be firm in a determination to penalize them for rebeling at C. I. O. general policy.

The policy differences have been mainly over U. S. politics and relations with Soviet Russia. Murray accuses the left of harboring pro-communists and following the line of Communist sympathizers.

Murray and Harry Bridges of the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union went into a huddle this afternon—at Bridges' request. The latter took along about a dozen members of what he called key locals, and Hugh Dryson, head of the Marine Cooks and Stewards. Bryson and Bridges are like peas in a pod.

Bridges was tight lipped as he entered the conference.

Neither the powerful resolutions committee headed by right-wing Walter P. Reuther, nor the constitution committee with Frank Rosenblum as chairman disposed of the major issues which would bring on the showdown. That was left for Murray himself at his meeting with Bridges today and leaders of the rebellious United Electrical Workers tomorrow.

The U. E. Union has asked Murray to fire C. I. O. officers who criticize the U. E. or help right-wing raids on its ranks. That ultimatum—with U. E. refusing to pay its dues to C. I. O. unless Murray complies—could be softened at the Sunday session, of course.

That might put Murray on a spot in the right-wing plans to oust the 13 unions, with 1,000,000 of the C. I. O.'s 6,000,000 members, under left leadership.

Three unions are in the most jeopardy, they are U. E.—because of its defiance of Murray and its position as the spearhead of the left—mine, mill and smelter workers and the farm equipment workers.

The latter merged yesterday with the U. E., complicating that situation but not changing the right wing's decision to crack down on F. E., under Grant Oakes' presidency.

Neither F. E. nor the mine, mill and smelter workers were paid up in the per capita tax to the C. I. O. necessary at the convention. But mine, mill and smelter workers are pressing for C. I. O. acceptance of a $10,000 check and $40,000 note to bring its dues up to date.

The time table for the ouster being discussed in the Hollenden hotel lobby is this:

1. The three unions would be kicked out on Wednesday, the day chosen for the convention showdown.

2. The executive board, with 51 members under complete right wing control, would boot out the remainder of the left-wing unions on next Saturday, after the convention closes.

New jurisdictional lines would be created and the war for members would open up in earnest, if all twelve unions are thrown out on the basis predicted.

But there was a strong faction in the right-wing group, too, which was cautioning against such a drastic move. This group felt that F. E. and U. E. unions should be disciplined, but the others should be kept in the fold at least on a good behavior basis.

That decision was up to Murray, but it was significant that he called in his vice-presidents to help in his discussions with Bridges and Bryson today.

James B. Carey, secretary-treasurer of the C. I. O. and leader of the right-wing revolt against U. E.'s so-called leftist leaders, when questioned whether "the Commies will get kicked out," replied:

"The Communists can't find themselves able to be trade unionists and Communists. We give them their choice. We don't think they have the ability to be trade unionists. So.—"

Carey then gestured with his thumb indicating ouster.

But Murray's strategy was to hold back at least until the eleventh hour before the convention without tipping his hand.

For one thing, Murray was preoccupied with the steel strike, too. He heads the striking C. I. O.-Steelworkers, for whom the convention will set up a war chest next week. Already the auto workers and textile workers between them have pledged $350,000.

There were rumors among convention delegates that President Truman would intervene in the strike about mid-week, calling in the steel companies and pressuring them into accepting the recommendations of the presidential fact-finding board, as Murray had done.

That would end the steel strike while the convention was still in progress.

Settlement of the steel shutdown would likely hasten the end of John L. Lewis' coal strike, in the eyes of most government labor experts. Both could be cleaned up within a fortnight under that time table.

But it was sheep speculation here, and Murray wouldn't confirm any knowledge of it.

TAXABLE VALUES IN OUACHITA UP

Increase Of $4,678,613 Shown In Comparison To Year Ago

Upon completing the assessment rolls for the city and parish tax collection offices last week, Bert Coverdale, parish tax assessor, announced that taxable values in Ouachita parish are $4,678,613 greater than a year ago.

Coverdale said the increase is accounted for by new values and not by any increase in assessments on property already on the rolls. He pointed out that last year the parish assessments totaled $61,441,824 compared to the 1949 assessment total of $66,120,437.

The 1949 tax roll represents $1,355,450.26, as compared to last year's $1,263,784.18 tax roll, an increase of $91,666.08, Coverdale said. He added that the rate of taxation for 1949 is the same as for 1948.

Assessor Coverdale estimated that home owners would be saved $221,137.32 in 1949 by their homestead exemptions compared to a savings of $196,234.94 in 1948, an increase in tax savings of $24,902.38.

There was an increase of 751 homes carried on the tax rolls this year, he stated. The figure for 1948 was 9,298, for 1949 the number increased to 10,049.

The number of tax payers has increased from 15,575 during 1949 to the present list of 16,410, an increase of 835, according to the assessor.

THREE KILLED IN LIGHT PLANE FALL

Circuit Judge, Son Victims When Craft Rams Radio Tower

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., Oct. 29. —(AP)—A light aeroplane rammed into a radio tower here today, crashed in flames and killed its three occupants.

Police and Red Cross workers identified the victims as Circuit Judge Thomas H. S. Curd of Welch, W. Va., his son, J. C. Curd, prosecuting attorney for McDowell county, W. Va., and Miss Elizabeth Ellen Hicks, the younger Curd's secretary.

The plane was bringing the trio here for the football game between West Virginia University and the University of Virginia. Witnesses said it was flying at an altitude of between 250 and 300 feet when it smashed into the 391-foot tower of radio station WCHV. The tower was bent but did not topple.

A wing of the plane, identified as a Beechcraft Bonanza, was sheared off by the impact.

"The plane was going west in fog," said T. A. Elliott, a witness to the crash. He added:

"I could see it come out of the fog flying rather low and I remarked, 'that plane is going to hit the tower.'

"About that time the pilot apparently saw the tower and swerved to the right. But the wing hit the tower."

The plane and its occupants "were torn all to pieces" by the crash, according to Miss Jean Lindsay, of the WCHV staff.

She said the plane had been buzzing Charlottesville for most of the morning and previously had checked through Lynchburg.

The time of the crash was set at approximately 11:30 a.m. (E. S. T.). Ambulances and fire trucks were summoned and a large crowd assembled about the scene.

Police said three tickets to the Virginia-West Virginia football game, played here today, were found in J. C. Curd's wallet. The Welch Daily News said the three took off from the Welch airport about 10 a.m. today to attend the game.

A heavy fog enshrouded Charlottesville this morning. The plane apparently was searching for a landing field when it struck the radio tower and spun into a nearby wooded area.

Police identified the victims from papers found on their bodies. The identifications later were confirmed by the Welch Daily News after telephone checks with the Charlottesville Progress.

An alumnus of the University of Virginia, Judge Curd, was about 67 years old. He was a prominent attorney in southern West Virginia for many years before taking office as judge. He is one of the owners of Grace Hospital at Welch.

His son, about 32, is a former assistant state attorney general.

Noted Southern Educator Reported Critically Ill

JACKSON, Miss., Oct. 29.—(AP)—Dr. John William Provine, 84, noted southern educator and president-emeritus of Mississippi College, was in a critical condition at his home in Clinton Saturday night.

The popular professor and friend of thousands of Mississippi College students and others, was in an unconscious condition late Saturday afternoon. Relatives have been summoned to his bedside.

He has been in ill health for some time and his condition has worsened in recent weeks. Several months ago he suffered a severe attack but recovered and has been active until recently.

Dr. Provine, until his retirement several years ago, had been associated with the college as professor, president or department head for over half a century.

FORECASTS OKAY FOR D. P. BILL

Senator Kilgore Says Measure Will Be Passed Next Year

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—(AP)—Senate approval early next year of the bitterly-fought displaced persons bill was forecast today by Senator Kilgore (D.-Va.

Kilgore, who served as acting chairman of the judiciary committee in the absence of Senator McCarran (D.-Nev.), told a reporter he thinks the measure ought to be put ahead of civil rights and other legislation for action soon after congress returns in January.

"I know there is a majority in the senate for this bill and I don't think it ought to be delayed too long," the West Virginia senator said.

The senate voted 36 to 30 on October 15 to send the bill back to the judiciary committee with instructions that it be reported again by January 25. However, there was no agreement when it would be taken up and leaders previously had scheduled first action in January on the house-approved oleo tax repealer.

Kilgore said he was told that McCarran, who has been highly critical of the displaced persons measure, had lengthened his stay in Europe several weeks.

McCarran sent word back to the senate before it quit for the year that he wanted more time to study the D. P. problem. He charged that there had been fraud and laxity in the admission of some homeless Europeans to this country.

As it was approved by the house, the measure would increase from 205,000 in two years to 339,000 in three years the number of persons who would come to the United States from D. P. camps.

85, 45 OR THREE, HADACOL HELPS ALL AGE GROUPS
HADACOL is good for all ages, bringing five of nature's B vitamins and important minerals to the young and old alike. Recently the HADACOL folks received the good news that among the countless thousands who had been benefited by HADACOL was a lady of 85, a man of 45 who felt like he was 18, and a beautiful little girl only three years old.
Mrs. Edmond Doucet, of Church Point, La., is 85 years old, having thousands of friends in the picturesque Evangeline section of Louisiana where she was born and has spent all of her life. These friends are happy to know that Mrs. Doucet feels better now than at any time in two years and gives the credit to HADACOL.

"I had been sick for almost two years and was suffering with gastric disturbances and bloating. My food did not agree with me, I was run down, had lost weight and had to stay in bed most of the time. I lost courage and felt that there was no hope for me."
Mrs. Doucet had tried many preparations without apparent beneficial results when she heard the glorious news about HADACOL (with five of nature's B vitamins and four of the most important minerals).
"After taking several bottles of HADACOL I felt like a new person," said Mrs. Doucet. "I eat anything I want without ill effects and sleep well. I feel much stronger."
Neville Dugas, of Route 1, Box 101 B. Carencro, La., is a successful farmer who had worked early and late at all kinds of hard work and it wasn't so long ago that he wondered if he would ever be able to work that way again. He had tried many medicines, but felt no better.

"I had all kinds of stomach disturbances," said Mr. Dugas. "My stomach was so bloated that it felt like it would swell up and burst. I suffered with gastric disturbances, heart burn and was run down and nervous. I had no appetite and suffered with headaches and I couldn't sleep at night. I was so drawn and pale that my friends had difficulty recognizing me. After the third bottle of HADACOL I felt a real improvement and after the twelfth bottle of HADACOL I felt like I was 18 instead of 45. I am feeling perfectly well."
Mr. Dugas now takes HADACOL to help stay well and a large family economy size bottle is always in his home. There is a reason for the $3.50 family economy size bottle because Mrs. Dugas and his two daughters, Joan and Mary Lois, ages 3 and 2, also take HADACOL.
"My three year old daughter, Joan, had lost her appetite," said Mr. Dugas. "Her cheeks were pale and she cried often. I started giving Joan HADACOL and after three of the large economy size bottles she is now healthy, has an excellent appetite and her disposition is perfect."

All three of these people were suffering from a lack of B vitamins and the minerals which HADACOL contains. HADACOL comes to you in liquid form, easily assimilated in the blood stream so that it can go to work right away. It is easy to understand, therefore, why countless thousands have been benefited by this amazing tonic, HADACOL.
A lack of only a small amount of B vitamins and certain minerals will cause digestive disturbances . . . Your food will not agree with you . . . You will have an upset stomach . . . You will suffer from heartburn, gas pains and your food will sour on your stomach and you will not be able to eat the things you like for fear of being in misery afterwards. Many people also suffer from constipation. And while these symptoms may be the results of other causes, they are surely and certainly the symptoms and signs of lack of B vitamins and minerals which HADACOL contains. And if you suffer from such a disorder, there is no known cure except the administration of the vitamins and minerals, which your system lacks.
So it matters not how old you are or who you are . . . it matters not where you live or if you have tried all the medicines under the sun, give this wonderful preparation HADACOL a trial. Don't go on suffering. Don't continue to lead a miserable life. Many persons who have suffered and waited for 10 to 20 years or even longer, are able now to live happy, comfortable lives because HADACOL supplied the vitamins and minerals which their systems needed. Be fair to yourself. Temporary relief is not enough for you! Give HADACOL a trial!

MANY GOOD CHILDREN'S BOOKS ARE AVAILABLE AT THE LIBRARY

Thirty years ago there were very few books written and published especially for children. Today fine books for children have become so important that hundreds of new titles appear each year. Especially is this true in the fall of the year. One reason for the large number of books appearing at this time is the celebration of Book Week each year during the third week of November. Another reason for the large number of new books is an effort on the part of booksellers to attract the Christmas trade.

Sometimes parents are confused as to which books are worth buying and often they do not have a clear definition in mind as to what constitutes a good book. Paul Hazard, who was one of the greatest present day authorities on children's books, gives his opinion of what a children's book should be in his immortal work "Books, Children And Men." He says: "A good book is faithful to the very essence of art in offering an intuitive and direct way of knowledge, bringing to children liberation, joy and happiness." He demands for children "Books that share great emotions with children, building respect for universal life and for the mysterious in creation and man. Books that respect the valor and dignity of play. Honest books of knowledge, which plant in a child's soul a seed to develop from the inside. And finally, books that contain a profound morality, that set in action truths worthy of lasting forever and of inspiring one's whole inner life, and that maintain in their own behalf faith in truth and justice." If every parent would learn this definition and use it as a standard in selecting books for their children, in a few years we would have a happier and wiser population.

Teachers and librarians work to get the best possible books for the children to read, but in the final analysis, the chief responsibility rests with the parents to give their children a love of books. Parents who love books themselves can do this with more ease than parents who are not fond of books. It is very gratifying to see how many young parents, fathers as well as mothers, bring their small children to the library and let them select books to take home with them. Of course every child needs to own books of his own, however, the library offers such a wide range of children's books, that any child can be introduced to the best in literature, if his parents will only take the time.

Many parents ask: "How can I stop my child from reading funny books?" There is only one way to stop it. Give him enough good books to read and he will not want to read funny books. Many parents find it easier to go by the corner drug store and pay 15 cents for a comic book than to take an extra 15 minutes and come by the library and borrow five of the best children's books. If you do not want your child to read funny books you can stop it, by bringing him to the library and keeping plenty of library books on hand. Sometimes mothers say to the librarian: "Some of the comic books are all right. They do not deal with blood and horrors." The answer to that is "all funny books are second rate." Do you want your child to have the best in literature or second rate material.

A very promising step in the right direction of books for children is the announcement that Miss Julia Wossman and Mrs. Nelson Abel are opening a bookshop for boys and girls. They have both had a great deal of experience with children and books. They want to give the children the best in literature. Parents who are planning to buy books for their children should take advantage of this new opportunity offered to the children of the Monroe area.

Most parents want for their children the best in life which includes the best in books. If you are not familiar with the field of children's literature, you can learn a great deal by reading the following books: "Bequest of Wings" by Annis Duff, "Books Children and Men" by Paul Hazard; "From Rollo to Tom Sawyer" by Alice Jordan; "Children and Religion" by Dora Chaplin. The Ouachita Parish Public Library subscribes to a fascinating periodical dealing with children's books "The Horn Book" back issues of this magazine may be borrowed at the library as may all the books mentioned above. The librarian and staff of the Ouachita Parish Public Library are working to see every child in Ouachita parish a discriminating reader and asks the cooperation of parents in this program.

PEGGY O'NEAL BECOMES BRIDE OF ARTHUR B. CARROLL OF OAK GROVE

The marriage of Miss Peggy O'Neal, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Aubrey O'Neal of Fairbanks to Mr. Arthur Brimberry Carroll, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Bernard Carroll of Oak Ridge took place at the First Presbyterian Church in Monroe at 7:30 o'clock in the evening, October 18. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Lloyd O'Neal, Ruston and the Rev. John Davis of Minden, uncles of the bride.

The church was decorated for the occasion with clusters of tube roses and greenery. White tapers glowed in branched candelabra, while standards of white tuberoses and miniature mums flanked the chancel rail.

Miss Genevieve White at the organ played a program of nuptial music while the ushers, Aubrey O'Neal, Jr., the bride's brother, George Shepard, and William Barham, both of Oak Grove and Cotham Haddad of Monroe seated the guests. The organist also accompanied Mr. James Rolfe, who sang "Because" preceding the ceremony. At the close of the ceremony Mr. Rolfe sang "The Lord's Prayer."

The wedding party entered to the strains of the Bridal Chorus from Lohengrin.

"Clare De Lune" by Debussy was played softly during the ceremony. Mendelssohn's Wedding March was used as a recessional.

Mrs. Cothan Hadded, cousin of the bride and matron of honor, wore turquoise blue. Miss Gloria Carroll, the groom's sister, maid of honor, wore American Beauty roses. Their gowns of slipper satin were fashioned with tight fitting basque and low draped neckline. The full sweeping skirts were caught with lover's knots showing ruffled petticoats. They carried matching satin muffs decorated with red roses and tuberoses and wore flowers in their hair.

The bridesmaids wearing identically styled dresses in American Beauty rose were Miss Martha Boyd, of Fairbanks, Mrs. Bruce Broussard, cousin of the bride, of Alexandria, and Mrs. Stephen Gibson of Oak Ridge.

Junior bridesmaids in turquoise were Miss Mattie Sue Pardue, cousin of the bride, Alto, and Miss Linda Dale Files of Oak Ridge.

The flower girls in American Beauty were Miss Jane Brimberry, Fairbanks, cousin of the bridegroom, and Miss Sally Davis, Fairbanks, cousin of the bride. Master Wayne Savage carried the rings in the heart of a rose.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a wedding gown of white duchess satin, fashioned with a high necked yoke of net joined to a low round neckline, embroidered with seed pearls. The fitted bodice extended to the hip line with the full skirt ending in a train. The tight fitting sleeves came to a point over her hands. Her veil of illusion was secured with a tiara of orange blossoms and seed pearls. Her bouquet was a cascade of tuberoses centered with a white orchid and tied with white satin streamers.

Henry Lawton, of Monroe, was best man.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. O'Neal chose a blue lace gown with pink lace mitts and wore flowers in her hair. Mrs. Carroll's gown was a beige crepe trimmed with bands of matching lace. She wore a small feather trimmed hat of the same color. Both mothers wore corsages of rose tinted orchids.

Following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. O'Neal entertained at a reception at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Cotham Haddad on North Sixth street. Miss Carolyn Clark of Ruston, cousin of the bride, presided at the bride's guest book.

White flowers were used throughout the house, with tuberoses, chrysanthemums, and roses in the living room, and tall baskets of trailing clematis and white candles in the dining room. The bride's table was overlaid with a Brazilian needle work cloth.

Assisting in the courtesies were Miss Bernice O'Neal of Ruston, aunt of the bride, Miss Ruth Brimberry of Monroe, aunt of the bridegroom, Mrs. Lloyd Gill, Mrs. R. H. Hardage, aunts of the bride. Mrs. Deryl Rhodes, Mrs. Vane Brazil, Miss Christine O'Neal, Miss Jane Gill, cousins of the bride, Miss Carol Rhodes and Miss Vashti Ham.

For their wedding trip to New Orleans Mrs. Carroll was wearing a blue velveteen suit with winter white hat and gloves. Her accessories were black and her corsage was a white orchid from her wedding bouquet.

The bride is a graduate of Ouachita Parish High School.

Mr. Carroll attended Louisiana State University. He holds the rank of captain in the United States air force reserve and served as a fighter pilot in the European theater during the war.

The young couple will make their home in Oak Ridge, where Mr. Carroll is engaged in business.

A large number of friends attended the wedding from Fairbanks, Oak Ridge and Monroe. Out of town guests included: Mrs. Tryon McFarland, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Hardage, Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Hinton, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Clark, Miss Carolyn Clark, Billy Mac Clark, Mr. and Mrs. Fred McFarland, Mrs. Blanche Calhoun, all of Downsville, La., Mrs. Lloyd O'Neal, Miss Bernice O'Neal, Christine O'Neal, Bill O'Neal of Ruston, La., Mrs. John Davis, Minden, La., Mrs. W. R. Baker, Crowville, La., Mr. and Mrs. Glen Baker, Winnsboro, La., Mrs. Gerald McLendon, Ferriday, La., Mrs. Earl Lingle and Mrs. James Berry, Shreveport, La., Mr. Talley of Greenville, Miss., Mr. Charlie Harmon, Fort Worth, Texas.

BRIDE

Mrs. Arthur Bromberry Carroll, before her recent marriage, was Miss Peggy O'Neal of Fairbanks.

MRS. W. O. WEBB ENTERTAINS THE CURRENT LIT CLUB

Mrs. W. O. Webb was hostess to the Current Literature Club recently. The president, Mrs. Jack W. Wyatt, presided during the business session when it was voted by the club to buy chairs for the colored library.

Mrs. W. A. Cotton, program chairman, introduced Mrs. Mildred Swift who gave an interesting demonstration on "Serving a Meal Without a Maid." The theme of the demonstration was, "It is not necessary to have a great variety of food, in order to entertain. Just be sure what you have is the best of its kind and there is enough of it. Don't try new recipes on your friends. Cook dishes you know will turn out perfectly because you have tried them so often before. Serve a vegetable or fruit cocktail first, in the living room. The main course can be on the table when the guests are seated, with a cart at the right of the hostess with dessert and a lower tray for soiled dishes," the hostess said.

Mrs. Swift showed the club the proper table setting.

The agent concluded her talk by saying, "There is no greater honor you show any person than to extend them an invitation to dine in your home. Let's not get away from that custom in our hurried way of living."

Mrs. Webb served refreshments to the following members and guests: Mrs. Z. C. Ambrose, Mrs. Jordon Barton, Mrs. William Whitfield, Mrs. Earl Stovall, Mrs. Jack Wyatt, Mrs. C. C. Salley, Mrs. W. A. Cotton, Mrs. Dan Dennett, Mrs. L. M. Frey, Mrs. Ray Magruder, Mrs. H. C. Meniuet, Mrs. George Reitze, Mrs. Mildred Swift and Mrs. Walter Knapp.

With few exceptions, livestock can endure flying at altitudes up to 10,000 feet.

PLAIDS PRESENT A SPECIAL PROBLEM IN DRESSMAKING

Plaids, so popular in the fashion picture this fall, present a few special problems in home dressmaking, asserts Mrs. Mildred Swift, associate home demonstration agent. It is usually necessary to buy more material than the pattern calls for to make the plaid match at seams. Large plaids and those with up and down or right and left design take the most yardage, she says.

"When choosing a pattern to make up in plaid, look for simple lines and little decorative detail," she advises. "The plaid itself offers enough decoration so that fancy extra touches are not needed, and the fewer the pattern pieces, the less the difficulty of matching the design when putting the garment together.

"If the material must be shrunk before making up, take care to hang it straight in drying and to hold ends and selvages even in pressing so that the weave runs straight and true.

"The easiest way to make the plaid match is to check the notches when laying on pattern pieces, making sure that a notch on the sleeve, for example, comes at the same place in the plaid as the corresponding notch in the armseye. Very often it pays to cut pieces one at a time and on single rather than double material, except for those pieces which must be cut on a fold of goods," she suggests.

Speakers for the affirmative were Rev. Earl Wiggins and Jack Folk and for the negative were Ralph Lee and Rev. Snirley Briggs. The thoughtful arguments presented by both sides were in humorous vein and provoked much amusement in the audience. Due to Mr. Radford's inability to read the decision of the judges he asked that the winning team be determined by audience applause.

An enjoyable social hour followed the program when refreshments of coffee and cake were served from the attractive tea table in which the Hallowe'en motif was portrayed. There were a hundred and fifty parents, teachers and friends of the school in attendance.

GIRL SCOUT WEEK

October 30th-November 5th

To mark the opening of Girl Scout Week Girl Scout Troops of the Twin Cities will attend the churches of their choice.

Many Troops which meet in churches will attend the church where their Troop is privileged to meet.

Each year Girl Scouts celebrate their founder's birthday by showing and telling their community what Girl Scouting is all about. This is the way they pay tribute to the memory of Juliette Gordon Low, who was born October 31, 1860, and died January 17, 1927. The week in which Halloween falls is observed nationally as Girl Scout Week. This year Girl Scout Week is from October 30 to November 5.

Spain's Internal Conflict Is Growing

DESPITE POVERTY of Spain, Madrid's "Gran Via" has many new luxury hotels and office buildings.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Recognition of Franco's Spain by the western powers is an international hot political coal. Proponents see Spain as a vital foothold the west needs in case Europe is overrun from the east; opponents say we cannot endure a dictatorship like Franco's in the western camp. Just what is it like inside Spain today? From NEA's Paris bureau, Staff Writer Rosette Hargrove went south to Spain's cities, provincial towns and fishing villages for a fresh report on a controversial nation's internal conflict. This is the first of three dispatches to run in the Morning World.

By Rosette Hargrove
(NEA Staff Correspondent)

MADRID, Spain.— (NEA) —Outside its borders, Spain is provoking more conflicting opinions and impassioned controversies than probably any other country except Russia. Inside, those same opinions and controversies have made Spain a country of strange contrasts.

Even among the country's anti-Francoites, the exclusion of Spain from the Marshall plan and America's refusal to grant a loan are very sore points. Nearly everyone you speak to in provincial towns and fishing villages, as well as in Madrid, seems convinced Spain has been unfairly treated.

"It has made everyone, rich and poor alike, determined to stand together and refuse to beg for help," said Arno Gonzales, a 22-year-old student.

At the same time, however, there is plenty of grumbling, especially among the working classes and particularly about living conditions. Food is costly, salaries absurdly low, rations inadequate and irregular.

"The black market," explained the hotel keeper in a coastal fishing village, "is Spain's second national industry." He refused to say which is the first.

Drouth had a lot to do with it. It put some of Spain's agricultural districts on the brink of starvation before it broke. It slowed down the whole country because electric power is down to 15 per cent of normal. Except in luxury hotels and office buildings which have their own generators, there is no electricity between 8 a.m. and 6 p.m. five days a week.

DESPITE LUXURY of Madrid's new buildings, entire families live in hovels like this on the outskirts.

There are open markets—gray markets because they seem to have semi-official approval of the government—on which you can find anything you want, including American cigarettes. But the price tags are for only the wealthy, who include the newly-rich black marketeers who can afford three-course meals at luxury restaurants where the price is more than most workers earn in a day.

The grumbling and criticism of the regime is not concealed. Spaniards complain against the government and the huge bureaucratic machine, and make open jokes about it. By way of a paradox, any suggestion of organized objection brings on apathy.

"People can gripe as much as they want, even to higher officials who tolerate this as one way of letting off steam," an American observer explained. "But let anyone try and stage a public meeting or stand up on a soap box on the corner, and then see what happens."

There is not the feeling of a suppressed people you get in iron curtain countries, and even Franco's opponents concede his dictatorship has relaxed a little. But the secret police is no less active; telephone lines are still tapped; people known for their subversive ideas are carefully watched; the press is definitely muzzled, with all foreign and domestic news censored to suit Franco's policy.

Having let off what steam is tolerated in the way of grumbling, the Spaniard seems content to wait for "manana"—the tomorrow that is always time enough.

It apparently is all right with him that the reconstruction, slum clearance and land reclamation projects are only now getting started, ten years after what El Caudillo Franco always refers to as the "War of Liberation."

So long as he can scrape together the few pesetas needed once in a while for a bullfight or "futbol" or the movies, the Spaniard has not lost his proverbial capacity for infinite patience.

Musical Notes From The Choral Club

By Helen V. Agnew

It was a nasty night—wet and miserable—and as the members of the Choral Club dashed down the steps and into the social center, it was a sobering shock to be met by a sign on a door that said "House of Horrors!" It took a minute or two to remember that Halloween is just around the corner, and we refused to believe that sign had anything to do with our rehearsal!

We's got a lot of competition this coming Monday night, what with Horace Heidt AND Halloween. But we've got a lot of plans to make for the concert, and some business coming up that we will all want to discuss and decide upon—its very important—so we urge all members of the club to come to rehearsal this Monday night. Arrangements have been made for some light refershments during the "break" period. Don't miss it!

We've got a lot of competition this faithful members—Frances Scanlito—and on checking up to see what was the matter, we find she has accepted a position in Houston and no longer lives in Monroe. We wish her all the best in her new job, but we surely do miss Frances here in Monroe.

Rehearsals for the Kiwanis Minstrel are well under way, and the Crystal Ballroom of the Virginia Hotel is vibrating with song every night. I see some members of the Choral Club there, but not nearly enough. Minstrels are always a lot of fun and I for one have always envied the guys and gals on stage who get a chance to take part. I'm sure you have too. They need a lot more voices for the choruses, and here's the chance for Choral Club members to join in—or for that matter, anyone who likes to sing. The show goes on November 8. I'm scouting for Choral Club members at the minstrel rehearsals. How about some of you other members coming up and helping me out.

Rehearsals are every night at 7:30—with a special one Sunday afteroon at 2:00 p. m. And that would be a good time for all you Choral Club members to come do a little missionary work for our own organization. There are a lot of good voices there—folks who obviously like to sing, or they wouldn't be there—and they probably don't read this column and don't realize they could have just as much fun with us—not just once a year at a minstrel, but every week in our Choral Club. A little good recruiting there would bring our membership up to the 60 voices we're aiming for. But I can't do it all alone. I need your help.

Glad to welcome Garland Moore as a new member—and Mr. and Mrs. Alvin T. Smith—and Bob Clay and Don Trichel and Happy McDonald. . . . And I saw several other new faces at the last rehearsal, whose names I didn't get. If I missed you, please forgive me—we're mighty glad to have you with us.

I'm trying to find Eloise Ham—have a message for her from a mutual friend. Can anyone help me locate her?

We're meeting back in the educational building of the Baptist Church this Monday night. And don't forget we've got important business to discuss. It's your club, and you've got a voice in the decisions. Come on out Monday night so we'll have full representation. And don't forget, there are only five more rehearsals before our concert. We've got a lot of work to do.

Druggist Denies He's Scientist After Writing

OAKLAND, Md. —(AP)— Joseph E. Harned is 79 years old. He has run a drug store here for 57 years, and he says he is a druggist, not a scientist.

But he has written a botany text book, "Wild Flowers of the Alleghenies." It is used in schools and libraries all over the country. The botany departments of Harvard, Cornell and other universities encouraged the work and helped him with it. He has two honorary doctorate degrees. He is listed in "Who's Who" and "American Men of Science." Also, he's a fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science. He is the friend of many scientists and of the late Thomas Edison.

He insists, however, he is still "just a country kid pursuing a hobby." His book has been praised both for its accuracy and its popular style. It has brought him letters from all over the world.

HOSPITAL WILL BE DEDICATED

Gov. Wright And Officials To Officiate At Exercises In Vicksburg

VICKSBURG, Miss., Oct. 29.—(Special)—Governor Fielding L. Wright and Senators James O. Eastland and John Stennis will lead a group of distinguished Mississippians in ceremonies here Sunday, November 13, for the dedication of the Lutheran Hospital.

Dr. Walter A. Maier, speaker on the International Lutheran Hour will be the principal speaker.

Governor Wright and Senators Eastland and Stennis will speak briefly on the program which is scheduled for broadcast. The outdoor ceremonies will be held at City Park at 3 p. m., and arrangements are being made to accommodate thousands of visitors, including top laymen of the Lutheran Church from many parts of the nation.

The dedication will mark the final step in a gift transaction between the hospital's former private owners and the Lutheran Laymen's League. The 100-bed, half-million dollar hospital was given to the church men's group by Dr. W. H. Parsons, Dr. I. C. Knox, and Dr. W. K. Purks.

According to Homer J. Fitzpatrick of St. Louis, president of the hospital governing board for the Lutheran League, a huge expansion is contemplated, broadening the hospital's scope in cancer and crippled children's treatment, as well as improving its facilities in general lines of medical practice.

DESPITE GRUMBLING of Spaniards, they still can dance in the streets at festival time.

In Movieland

By Bob Thomas

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 29.—(AP)—What Hollywood needs, says Robert Young without cracking a smile, is more Errol Flynns.

This may cause turmoil among Hollywood's public relations worriers, but Young has a point to make.

"I think a lot of excitement has gone out of the town," he said. "Movie stars have become social workers, political thinkers and family people. Of course, that's good for the community. But it makes Hollywood lose some of its glamor.

"What we need is more Errol Flynns to raise some cain now and then."

This makes Young virtually speak against himself. He is a pillar of local society. Father of four fine girls, he is as normal a citizen as you will find in Hollywood.

"Does this mean you are anti-Robert Young?" I asked.

"I'm not that much of a naive jerk to commit professional suicide," he answered. "I could no more be an Errol Flynn than he could be a Robert Young. It would be the same in any other community as it is in Hollywood.

"I'm just anti-normalcy—when it affects the movies."

Whatever his objections to it, normalcy has paid off handsomely for Bob Young. Now in his nineteenth year in films, he is starting his 86th picture, "Here Lies Love." While other free-lance stars have been dying on the vine, he has flourished.

He has been working steadily, at a salary I would estimate at $125,000 a picture.

But that doesn't stop him from yearning for the wild days of Hollywood's past.

"When I was a kid, back around 1920, I used to get jobs at Mack Sennett's old lot. (His major career began in January, 1931.) I used to do acting jobs at $3 a day. Or if there weren't any, I'd sweep out the place or do anything.

"Sennett would send a company off on location for six weeks to some place like Balboa. They'd be like a bunch of kids on a picnic. And Sennett would get a bill for $80,000 for breakage at the hotel where they stayed.

"I remember once when Norman Kerry walked out of a door at the end of a Sennett picture. They wanted to shoot the scene again, but they couldn't find Kerry. He had walked through the door and met Jack Pickford, who was going on location to San Francisco. So Kerry went along.

"Ah, those were the days."

Whaling Gets New Impetus

A modern industry is chasing the world's largest animal—the whale.

Several countries use whale oil as a margarine base, and the high prices paid by a fat-hungry world keep the modern equivalent of "thar she blows" crackling over whaling fleet radios in several different langauges.

The prospect of quick-freezing whale beef for human consumption is another lure for the business men in Europe who are sinking millions into whaling fleet operations.

Ninety-six per cent of today's boat-based whaling now goes on in the Antarctic.

The new look in whalers is one of highly organized efficiency developed by European whalers and engineers. No American ships take part. Today's whaler is an ultra-modern floating factory, expressly designed to process and preserve the haul of satellite catcher boats, all coordinated by radio-telephone.

One of the most modern whaling ships is a 21,000 deadweight-ton behemoth named the Balaena, built in England since the war at a cost of about $6,000,000.

Her flensing deck where the whales are carved up is slightly longer than an American football field and half as wide. She has hangars and catapults for three amphibian planes—to spot whales and scout weather and icing conditions. Power winches haul the whales up and power derricks and saws help the flensers handle the huge carcasses.

On the deck below are pressure boilers for rendering the blubber and extracting oil from whalebones, a liver-extraction plant, a meat-meal plant, and an oil purifier plant. There is a quick-freezing plant to preserve the best meat for human consumption.

The Balaena's tanks carry 19,000 tons of fuel oil on the way out, and whale oil on the return trip. She is entirely electrified and carries a crew of 444 men.

Today's catcher boat also is bigger, stronger, faster, and better equipped than before the war.

However the total whaling fleet of all nations dominated by Norwegian and British vessels—is smaller than before the war and may stay that way because of increased efficiency.

Whaling reached a pre-war climax in the 1938-39 season after a way to make margarine out of whale oil had been discovered in 1930.

As World War II opened, the fleet had 36 floating factories, 14 land stations and 853 catcher boats operating with 12,000 men.

The oil yield of the 1938-39 season was more than half a million tons. Governments already had begun stockpiling it as edible fat, and during the war it became a top priority item.

The value of whale oil is enhanced by its keeping properties. One cargo of British whale oil stored in the United States in 1941 was not made up into margarine until 1947, when it produced enough to supply the fat ration for the entire British population for five weeks.

Whale beef also looms as an important commodity, although like the oil its use for human consumption does not extend to the United States. In 1947 one-fourth of all red meat in Japan was whale meat, and in the same year 20,000 tons were readily sold in England for human consumption.

One Of A Series

Know Your Officials

A medium sized man with dark hair and complexion, Jesse S. Heard was looking over the nearly completed West Monroe city hall. He walked about among the tools and boards, both hands pushed deep in the pockets of his blue suit trousers.

Occasionally he would pause, take a hand out to make a point as he slowly named the different offices and who would occupy which.

Then he was called over to the room which was to be his. Looking around as the contractor talked, his eyes lit in an anticipatory gleam, like a youngster who had been looking forward to just this for a long time.

Mentally he must have been placing his desk, spotting the filing cabinets, perhaps the hat rack. He had been looking forward to this for a long time.

Upstairs he went over the long room which was to be the official scene of his business as West Monroe city judge.

At this end would be the raised platform which would hold his bench, here the railing, out there the spectator's seat. He was enthusiastic over the expensive new furniture which was to come, placing West Monroe's hall of justice on a par with the district courtroom. He expected to move in around the first of December.

I had found City Judge Jesse Staples Heard leaning back in his chair at his desk a short time earlier. He was catching up on current affairs, via a copy of the Reader's Digest.

Ducking the book in a drawer he had invited me to sit for a while. Then the questions came. He answered slowly, and like most officials, he had to stop and figure out some dates, like the date of graduation from high school, marriage and the rest.

Jesse Heard is a native of West Monroe. He has made the city his home as well as his life, with the exception of college years in Baton Rouge.

Born December 3, 1906, he was the first child of S. H. Heard, a longtime operator of a West Monroe meat market who has now turned to farming for a rest. His mother was the former Miss Ella Green. Both had long been residents of Ouachita parish. Heard's only sister, and only other child in the family, is Mrs. Mamie Spencer.

Heard attended school at Ouachita, from the beginning until his graduation in 1924. Then he returned to his father's shop in West Monroe for a year behind the counter.

In 1926 he went to Louisiana State University, intent on a law course. He worked part time for the Louisiana highway commission from 1928 until he graduated in 1931.

With the nation hitting the low spots during the depression years, Heard found it safer to stay on with the highway commission for a year after graduation. There wasn't much demand for old lawyers, none for youngsters.

However, in March of 1932, he returned to Monroe, setting up his own office in the Ouachita National Bank building, risking money he had saved during school. He maintained that office until 1946.

JESSE S. HEARD

West Monroe citizens backed Heard in his bid for the city judge's post in 1936. He won over Decker Moore, first to fill the newly created position in 1939. Twice he has been re-elected, with an opponent only in the 1948 race.

Heard married Miss Winifred Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Johnson on January 19, 1941. They have two children, Coralie, the eldest, is eight. Jesse S. Jr., has reached the four-year-old mark. The family home is at 115 Slack street, West Monroe—naturally.

Hunting, fishing, spectator sports, and "a little dabbling in photography" take up Heard's spare time. He is a member of the West Monroe Kiwanis Club, a Royal Arch Mason, a member of the Knights of Pythias and the West Monroe Business Men's Association. He takes his religious work seriously, serving as a teacher at a men's Bible class at the First Baptist Church in West Monroe.

Cutting down on juvenile delinquency is one of Heard's pet problems. In his city judge capacity he handles many cases annually. Drunken driving also comes in for a big blow before the judge, who for a long time handed out a compulsory jail sentence.

Heard's term runs too long for him to do any forecasting as to what he will do come next election. "That's a long time off," he insists.

Over at the new city hall Judge Heard had closed out on note that leaves some hopes for persons who may come before him.

"The only thing bad about this new building," he said, grinning, "is the jail. It is such a nice place that it will be a pleasure for some people to stop over."

Lazyday applesauce is easy to make: wash and quarter the apples, removing the stem and blossom ends only. Cook a pound of the apples in a cup of boiling water until the apples are soft. Put through a food mill or strain and add a quarter cup of sugar (more or less).

Two English Dog Breeds Decline

(AP Newsfeatures)

LONDON—Two famous breeds of dogs—the old English mastiff and the Newfoundland—have all but disappeared in Britain.

An official of the British kennel club reported that a recent count showed only seven old English mastiffs in the country.

It has bee nestimated that Newfoundlands are down to 13, he added. This official explained:

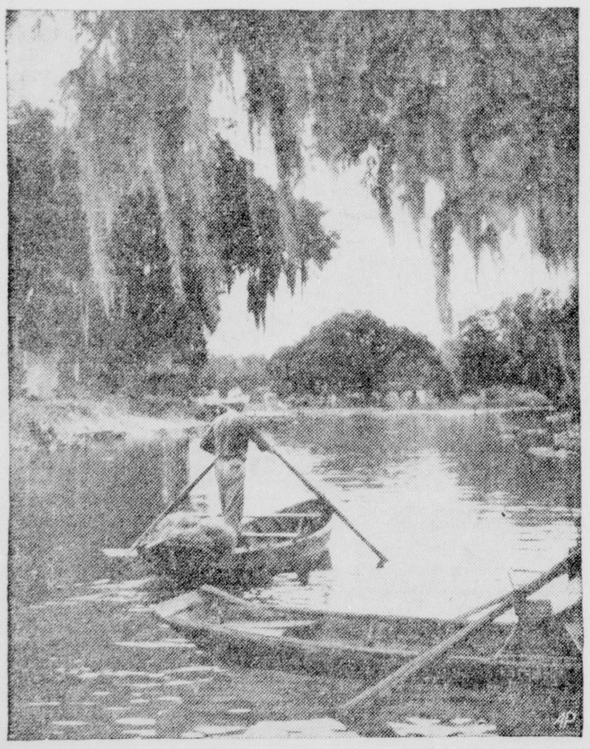
"These two breeds were never very popular and during the war many of the mastiffs were exported to America because of the feeding difficulties in this country.

"Now some Americans have been very kind and have returned one or two of the progeny of these dogs to Britain. They are among the seven remaining mastiffs.

"With regard to the Newfoundlands there are only one or two from which is is possible to breed, but breeders are hopeful of being able to build up the stock again.

"These are teh only two breeds that have been seriously affected by the war and it was chiefly on account of their size."

Moss-Grown Industry Heads For New Boom



By Warren Rogers, Jr.
(Associated Press Newsfeatures)

BATON ROUGE, La.—Louisiana's Spanish Moss crop may treble its million-dollar annual take, the way the Louisiana department of commerce and industry tells it. Here's what the department says:

Spanish moss just grows and grows. It's hard to find a tree in south Louisiana that isn't sporting a moss tignon.

Some people—like L. M. Joffrion, Sr., of Napoleonville, La.; and his three sons—makes a living at collecting it. After all, it's there for the picking. There's no planting, no cultivation. Just harvest.

After it's gathered, the moss is ginned and sold, chiefly through New Orleans and New York brokers, for use mainly in furniture upholstering. Last year the official gross revenue was estimated at $1,100,000.

But what about the waste—the fibrous bark that's left over after it's been ginned? That's where the elder Joffrion comes in.

"It's black gold," he says. "Instead of throwing it away, like we'd been doing for 40-odd years, we save it. I've got machines that dehydrate it and pulverize it.

"It comes out a fine black mulch and plays an important part in agricultural experiments. Some day it may be just the thing for rejuvenating and restoring this country's topsoil."

It's on this note the commerce and industry department ends its report. It recalls that Louisiana's moss industry once brought $3,000,000 annual revenue, observing:

"With the utilization of the by-product from the ginning, the moss industry may return to its former higher economic bracket."

Just Plain Folks . . .

Neville Majorette Not Very Plain

That flashy blond majorette you saw stepping so high last night at the Neville-Ouachita football game was no other than Leon Kirby, Neville's own pride and joy.

That's right, her name is Leon. And there's quite a story behind that, too.

It 'peers as though her father wanted a boy, but she turned up instead as the Kirby's eighth straight daughter in a row. The parents, naturally expecting a boy by this time, had already picked out the name "Leon," so they gave it to the child even though she was a she and not a he. And that's how she became to be named Miss Leon Kirby.

Leon is 17, she's a junior at Neville and lives with her mother, Mrs. Mary Payton Kirby, at 302 D'Arbonne street, Monroe.

Records show that the little blond majorette has paraded up and down football fields at about 30 games, to say naught of her performances at two Junior Sugar Bowl attractions here.

For the past three years, Leon has attended the Dixie Music Camp in Arkansas to learn how to be a good majorette. Neville band directors think she's okay as she is.

She was born on a plantation near Jonesville, La., and attended school there through the fifth grade. Then she moved to Monroe and attended Georgia Tucker School until she joined the Neville student body.

In case you're wondering, Leon tips the scales at 135 pounds, stands five feet, ten inches tall, and (this is unusual) measures her long blond curls at twenty inches.

Leon is a reporter for the Neville paper, the Sizzler and is listed on the editorial staff of the Monroyan, Neville's year book.

She intends to go to college, "naturally, and I prefer either L. S. U. or the University of Texas."

And as for majoring in college: "It's journalism all the way," she says.

"Someday I'd like to write a novel based on the lives of my family," Leon said, adding that "if I ever get a job on a newspaper, I'd like to cover exciting things."

EXPOSITION TO BOOST SCOUTING

Ouachita Valley Council To Stage Big Show; Jaycees Sponsors

Enthusiasm for the Jaycee sponsored Boy Scout Exposition to be held next Saturday is running high in all Scout troops and Cub packs throughout the Ouachita Valley Council, as units are putting final touches on their displays for the show.

In a Jaycee committee meeting held Thursday afternoon, it was reported that fifty booths had been requested for this unusual exposition, which is to be held in the National Guard armory on South Grand street, in Monroe, from 4:00 p.m. until 8:00 p.m., Saturday, November 5. Chairman Jack Spaulding was advised by Jaycee committee members that everything will be in complete readiness for this event when the doors swing open on Saturday afternoon.

At the exposition visitors will have opportunity to see some of the work Scouts have been doing in their vocational guidance merit badge program. According to officials of the affair, a visitor will have plenty to hold his interest when he attends.

"Look for almost anything to happen when you visit the exposition." Chairman Jack Spaulding said when explaining the type displays in the various booths. "Some Scout may take you into a booth to have your finger prints taken, or maybe to have your picture taken. You will find many snakes, insects and animals of all types. You may have opportunity, under proper Scout instructions, to shoot a rifle or bow and arrow. You will probably see some fishing, camping, cooking, and other Scouting skills. In fact, you may have opportunity to sample some of the cooking. You are almost certain to be shocked at the electricity booth, and there will no doubt be an atomic explosion in the chemistry booth."

Spaulding also stated there there would be several Cub Scout booths of Cub handicrafts, games, puzzles and many other interesting Cub themes. These booths are expected to be among the most interesting in the show.

Visitors to the exposition, the largest ever held in the Ouachita Valley Council, should expect to stay at least an hour, as Scout leaders believe it will be impossible to see the entire show in any less time.

Another feature of the annual Scout round-up this year will be a parade to be held at 10:30 Saturday morning, November 5. Scouts and Cubs will assemble in West Monroe and move through the business districts of West Monroe and Monroe. Several hundred boys are expected to participate in this parade, along with several high school bands in this area.

La. Federation Of Women's Clubs Now 50 Years Old

Golden Jubilee To Be Observed This Week In Alexandria Meet

ALEXANDRIA, La., Oct. 29.—(Special)—The Louisiana Federation of Women's Clubs will open its Golden Jubilee Year convention here next week, marking the climax of a half century of unusual progress. The culminating feature of this statewide organization has been the progress marked the past year leading up to these many years of progress. The president the past year has been Mrs. Sam Levy of Natchitoches. With capable assistants the program for the Jubilee Year has been prepared with painstaking effort.

The organization had its birth in 1899 when Mrs. S. Q. Hamilton of Shreveport, serving as chairman of state correspondence from Louisiana for the G. F. W. C., and the members of the Hypatia Club decided that Louisiana needed a state federation. The organization meeting took place December 29, 1899 in Shreveport. The first president was Mrs. J. M. Foster of Shreveport.

Through the years a substantial program has been carried out. The present officers in addition to Mrs. Levy, president; Mrs. H. M. Mims, Baton Rouge, first vice-president; Mrs. James Means, Vivian, second vice-president; Mrs. F. A. Morgan, Natchitoches, corresponding secretary; Mrs. C. E. Hester, Tallulah, parliamentarian; Mrs. Robert J. Young, Abbeville, treasurer; Miss May Oppenheimer, New Orleans, auditor and Mrs. B. V. Todd, Lake Charles, corresponding secretary.

At considerable expense an unusually handsome yearbook, issued this year, which was well illustrative of the well rounded work that has been accomplished in the past 50 years.

Mrs. Levy, who became president in 1946 and is the present chief executive, has carried out her theme: "We Plan for the Future." Under her leadership the federation was incorporated in 1947. The beautiful "State Federation Seal" was selected and approved and an endowment fund of $20,000 was started for the Golden Jubilee. The federation voted to support a five-point program in forestry and this has been carried out successfully. Louisiana now boasts one of the best forestry programs in the nation.

The federation voted to buy articles made by the blind and to buy Louisiana products. The federation endorsed the state plan for one million dollar expansion program for three mental hospitals which is being done.

A $500.00 scholarship was given to a Korean girl—Min, Sam Kih—for a year's study in the United States. Part of the money was used to help provide Mrs. Esther Wong Park, president of the Korean federation, to take a course in social service in New York. The establishment of the award of merit given by Mrs. Levy to the outstanding senior and junior club each year was made. Fifty new clubs in three years were added to the roll. Mrs. Levy assisted in organizing the Louisiana Rural Health Council and served as recording secretary for two years. She served as chairman for two years of the Louisiana State Mothers' Committee. This work was done in connection with the American home program of the federation.

Donations were as follows: U. N. appeal for children, $62.00; $171.00 to the Walter Reed Hospital; $184.34 to the veterans hospital in Alexandria; 982 gifts; 359 decks of cards and 300 stamps; $360.00 to the Ouachita parish choir to attend the musical festival in Wales; $99.00 UNESCO program for school supplies and thousands of dollars for cancer fund, T. B., polio and cripple children's clinic; $99.00 to a fund for Miss Min to visit America.

Resolutions adopted and worked for their activation; building to house the state library, a library in every parish, adequate health facilities and well staffed health units and clean waters for Louisiana.

The federation is supporting the keep Louisiana green program in an effort to protect our forests.

Seventeen allied youth posts have been organized in the Louisiana high schools, and playgrounds and community centers established.

Forty-five clubs have entered the build a better community contest. Mrs. B. V. Todd is state chairman.

Much constructive work has been done in safety. The club women prevented the repeal of the safety driving license law and worked for enforcing the safety laws in each community. The Louisiana federation has won a $25.00 bond for the last two years in the G. F. W. C. Club woman contest and $10.00 cash in 1948 in the greatest per capita gain in membership. It was also honored as the state given the most books to G. F. W. C. library and for having the most 100 per cent subscription clubs to the Club Woman.

For afternoon party fare serve tiny baking powder biscuits split, spread with Avocado Spread, and sandwiched together again with small, thin slices of ham. To make the spread mash an avocado fine and combine with four tablespoons of butter or margarine that has been creamed with two tablespoons of cream cheese; season with salt, freshly ground pepper, and a little lemon and onion juice.

JUBILEE YEAR LEADER

Mrs. Samuel Levy of Natchitoches, will preside as president at the annual convention in Alexandria this week of the Louisiana Federation of Women's Clubs.

DR. BURROWS TO CONDUCT CLINIC

Prominent Pianist Will Visit Alexandria; Many From Here Invited

Dr. Raymond Burrows, one of the nation's foremost music teachers, will conduct the annual piano clinic of the Louisiana Music Education Association in Alexandria on November 21 and 22, it was announced here today by Florence Ziegler Allbritton of Northeast Junior College music faculty and chairman of piano teachers division of L. M. E. A. in northeast Louisiana.

Piano teachers and other interested persons are invited to attend the clinic. Instructors who wish to have their students play for the noted teacher are requested to write to Francis L. Achee, chairman of this year's piano clinic, at Southwestern Louisiana Institute. Dr. Burrows will audition a limited number of students.

The famous teacher widely known for his books and other work in the field of piano instruction, will come from Teacher's College, Columbia University, where he is a faculty member.

The clinic will be conducted concurrently with the L. M. E. A. conference in the Alexandria Community Center in Alexandria.

Dr. Burrows is recognized as one of the foremost music educators in the United States. He has appeared in concerts, lectures and teachers' workshops in 43 of the 48 states.

Berry Planting Time Now Is Here

Now is the time to plant strawberries, says Mrs. Euna D. Spielman, home demonstration agent.

The varieties recommended by the Louisiana Extension Service are Konvoy, Klondyke, Klonmore and Marion Bell. The Klondyke is susceptible to leaf spot and scorch and must be sprayed with 4-4-50 Bordeaux from the middle of January through the first week in March.

The soil should be prepared by making ridges eight to ten inches high. Eight pounds of 4-12-4 per hundred foot row should be mixed thoroughly with the first few inches of top soil eight to twenty-one days before setting plants. Under no circumstances should plants be set before eight days has passed or much injury may result from burning the roots.

The setting of plants should be delayed until after a rain unless there is plenty of moisture in the ground when fertilizer is applied. Plants with well-developed crowns, five to six green leaves, thick, long, tender and white roots should be used for planting.

If plants are in bunches and cannot be planted immediately separate and heal out in wet earth. Care should be taken to set plants correctly. Make a hole four to five inches deep with a trowel. Set plants with roots straight down with the base of the crown just even with the surface of the ground. Pack two-thirds of soil around roots, pour water in to force out air pockets. Then fill in the other third with dry soil. Check to see that the crown of the plant is even with the surface of the soil.

For further information on the cultivation obtain a bulletin by calling in person or telephoning the Ouachita Agricultural Extension Service, Agricultural Building, West Monroe, telephone 3228.

METHODIST MEN SERVED SUPPER

Business Meeting Conducted; Dr. Serex Gives Short Address

The Methodist men met in the church school annex of the First Methodist Church on Friday evening, Dr. Prentice Gray presiding, where a most excellent supper was served cafeteria style, which had been prepared by the ladies of Circle No. 10, of W. S. C. S., as follows: Mesdames Ernest Strauss, Pete Godwin, Grayson Guthrie, Mike John, Jr., Richard Kellogg, and Scott Hamilton, Mesdames Henry Hinkle and C. J. Turpin doing the honors in serving.

A report was made by Jimmie Harbuck on the outcome of the recent Marine Band concert, and stated that in spite of the terribly inclement weather, after all expenses were met, there was a net balance of $1,000 to be turned over to the building committee of the church, which all things considered is remarkably good.

A report was made by Lewis Gannaway, as chairman of the nominating committee, and the following were unanimously elected to serve for the ensuing year: E. N. Thompson, president; Claude Cramer, vice-president; Henry Princehouse, secretary, and Elgin Boggs, treasurer. Upon assuming the duties of his new ofifce, E. N. Thompson pledged himself to do everything in his power to make the other fellows do the work, and if he succeeds in this, his administration will be outstanding.

Dr. Serex called upon, made a few well chosen remarks on the subject of the "Advance for Christ" movement, now being sponsored by our church, and stated that our former pastor, E. M. Freeman, (alias "Bud") would be with us for a series of evening services, beginning November 13 through 18, and that Bishop Ralph Cushman, of Minneapolis, Minn., would conduct a like series during the week beginning March 5, 1950.

It was voted to continue meeting in the church annex for the present, and since the last Friday in November falls the day after Thanksgiving, and there are five Fridays in December, the meeting that would be otherwise held on November 25, would be deferred until December 2, and the regular December meeting held December 30.

EPPINETTE GETS HEROISM MEDALS

Four D. F. C., 12 Air Medals Awarded To Ex-Marine Corps Sergeant Here

Master Sergeant William C. Eppinette, U. S. Marine Corps Reserve, of Monroe, Tuesday, October 25, was awarded four distinguished flying crosses and 12 air medals for conspicuous heroism during the air battles over the Solomon Islands.

Eppinette, who resides at 1613 Filhiol avenue, Monroe, was presented his medals by Judge David I. Garrett of Monroe, who was a marine corps captain during World War I.

The marine sergeant was given gold stars in lieu of additional medals, and his citation announced that Eppinette had successfully completed more than 80 aerial missions against the Japanese in a particularly heavily defended area. Eppinette, according to the citation, bravely faced possible death many times in compiling his great total of missions.

Through the decades, one piano has been the overwhelming choice of the great men of music: Liszt, Wagner, Beliioz, Paderewski and Rachmaninoff among countless others. Today virtually every celebrated artist uses that same piano: the Steinway. Yet the Steinway is primarily a piano for the home. The instrument that brings its distinguished presence and inspiring voice into your home is built as meticulously as the Steinway destined for the concert stage. The Steinway, moreover, will serve brilliantly for many, many years. It is actually the most economical of pianos — and the one piano worth waiting for!

Little Theatre Curtain Call

"There's no business like show business" was the theme being sung Friday night at half after midnight by a dozen or more workers as they worked diligently away at the last minute details to be completed for little Theatre's gala openhouse party for their new playhouse at Selman Field.

We'll admit every now and then there were a few minutes wasted as some fellow took time out to step back and admire his handiwork and even call in a few fellow workers to do justice to the occasion. It was a mighty happy gang who started winding their way home in the wee hours of the morning after a long and backward glance at the new Little Theatre playhouse as it will look when they so proudly display it to the public of Monroe and West Monroe this afternoon between 3 and 5 p.m.

Just one year and many dreams ago and under the inspiration of President Frank Breese the active determination to give to the Twin Cities a real Little Theatre playhouse was born. It has found fruition in the administration of President Gilbert Faulk. In the future Little Theatre may become the owners of the most imposing edifice in the southland but none no matter how great, none can ever quite take the place of the first playhouse. It is a product of the people, for the people and by the people. Each nail, each brush stroke, each original idea represents a people's heartfelt desire toward something they consider worthwhile.

Many thanks go to the following merchants and businessmen of Monroe and West Monroe who have given their support in the Little Theatre project: Monroe Brick and Builders Supply, Pearce Paint and Paper, Parlor City Lumber Company, Monroe Concrete Step Co., Carey Holmes Nursery, J. B. McCoy Lumber Co., Monroe Glass Co. and Slagle and Johnston Lumber Co.

SKETCH NOTES—Home for a two weeks visit, Patsy Sager Pickett arrived on Saturday just in time for Little Theatre's openhouse party on Sunday. Patsy, who played the French maid in last year's production of "The Two Mrs. Carrolls," is now a resident of Manhattan, Kansas where Squyre is completing an architectural course at Kansas State. She tells us that they have started a movement to organize a Little Theatre in Manhattan and have held two meetings so far and were visited by technical advisers from Lawrence where they have a very outstanding theatre. . . . Dallas Wales, whom we reported back to stay, will go on the boards for KNOE on Monday next. . . . A nice bouquet to Henry O. Hartman of Monroe Glass who repaired our broken heart over Stocker's broken glass top for his desk. Thanks to Mr. Hartman, we can now refer to Stocker as the director behind the glass top desk that is when poor Stocker finds time to sit for a minute behind the desk. . . . "Butch" Lockhart of Lockhart and Blair and his wife were in Dallas Saturday for the S. M. U. gridiron tilt. We've got "Butch" picked out in our minds for a future role in Little Theatre, that's why we are keeping up with him so close.

JEWEL THEFT

HOUSTON, Tex., Oct. 29.—(AP)—Mrs. Marie F. Gable, former wife of Film Actor Clark Gable, today reported loss of $7,647 in jewelry. She told police the valuables were in two overnight bags which were removed from her automobile parked in front of the home of her daughter, Mrs. Thomas W. Burke.

City Classroom Teacher Meet

The Monroe City Classroom Teacher's Association will meet Tuesday, November 1 at 3:45 at Central Grammar School. Guest speaker will be Mrs. W. S. Vincent, who will lead a discussion concerning certification of teachers.

Superintendent Jackson has requested teachers to submit recommendations and D. W. Griffith, president of the Monroe association, urges members to study the bulletin which has been placed in their hands, and mark passages for this discussion.

Land in the far north thaws only on the surface in the summer, and remains frozen to considerable depth below the thawed portion.

Two Arrested For Drunken Driving

Monroe police arrested two persons early Saturday morning for operating motor vehicles while under the influence of intoxicating liquor.

They were identified as M. Q. Peterson, 34, of Shreveport, and Marcus Jones, 33, Negro, of West Monroe.

Peterson was released from the city jail under $350 cash bond. The Negro was also charged with damage to property and released under $400 property bond.

LABORITES REDUCE NOBLEMEN VOICE

Biggest Change In British Constitution Since 1928

LONDON, Oct. 29.—(AP)—A final swipe of the laborite scissors will clip the powers of Britain's house of lords Monday.

The noblemen's chamber of parliament thereafter will be able to delay laws only for one year. Now they can hold up legislation for two.

This is the biggest chance in Britain's unwritten constitution since all women were given voting powers 21 years ago. The heavy labor majority in the house of commons—the dominant body of parliament—will push it through.

The move will make way for the labor government's bill to socialize the iron and steel industry before its five-year term ends next July. The lords, most of whom are Conservatives, went along on other state ownership measures, but they balk at socializing steel.

These twin bills—to scissor the power of the peers and nationalize steel—have occasioned the bitterest British political battle since Prime Minister Attlee's labor regime took office in July, 1945.

A heavy opposition vote—perhaps equalling the 222 scored on a no-confidence amendment this week—is expected. But it cannot stop the bill to limit the power of the lords. The heavy labor majority is stoutly behind the measure and already has passed it twice.

The lords have twice rejected the bill. But when the commons passes it in three successive sessions—and Monday's vote will be the third passage—it becomes law anyway. This was a procedure set up in 1911, when the lords were a target of David Lloyd George's Liberals.

The Conservatives insist the two-year veto is necessary to stop hasty legislation. They cite, for instance, a recent bill to abolish capital punishment. The house passed the bill, the lords amended it to keep the death penalty—and when it came back to the commons, the commons accepted the amendment.

Epithets like "jiggery pokery," "political jobbery" and "shady political deal" have been hurled by Winston Churchill and other Conservatives at the laborite bill.

But the government takes this view: the lords are not elected, heredity is their only right to power, and they should not be allowed to defy the will of the elected commoners.

Fiery Aneurian Bevan, health minister who has pushed the steel bill, has put the government's point this way:

"We shall nationalize the steel industry and we shall not accept any constitutional obstruction. We do not permit the house of lords to set aside the will of the people."

Veecks Are Granted Divorce In Tucson, Ariz.

TUCSON, Ariz., Oct. 29.—(AP)—Mrs. Eleanor Veeck was today granted a divorce from William Veeck, Jr., president of the Cleveland Indians. She was also granted custody of their three children, William, 12, Peter, seven, and Ellen, five.

Details of a property settlement were not disclosed.

The divorce decree was signed by Judge Lee Garrett. Under Arizona law either party in a divorce may remarry one year after a divorce decree has been granted.

The Veecks were married in Evanston, Ill., Dec. 5, 1935. Later they bought the "Lazy V" ranch near Tucson.

Mrs. Veeck filed a complaint for divorce Feb. 5, 1949. She alleged desertion. She asked that she be given custody of the children; that the community property be divided equally, and that she be given any additional relief the court deemed proper.

Veeck contested the divorce on March 1 and asked that his wife "take nothing from her complaint and that the same be dismissed."

A property agreement settlement was made yesterday. It was not included in the court record today.

SELMAN ANNUAL PARTY PLANNED

School Carnival To Be Held On Friday; Queen To Be Crowned

Selman school will have its annual carnival Friday, Nov. 4 when proceeds will be used for playground equipment and teaching equipment for the school. Teachers will be in their rooms from 7 to 7:30 p. m. to meet parents and friends. The members of the Y-Teen Club will act as hostesses through the evening.

Crowning of the queen will take place in the auditorium at 7:30 p. m. and following this the concession booths will be opened. Teachers, with room mothers, will be in charge of the booths. There will be fun for young and old and all are urged to come out and observe the growth of this school, which has made great strides since September, 1948.

The school principal and faculty seeks to thank W. A. McCain of McCain-Richards Motor Company, for nine full suits; the Louisiana Baptist Home boys on the team; The Palace and Junior Chamber of Commerce, Three-Way Finance Company, Friendly Finance Company and Lee-Rogers for suits for other members of the team. Having a full time coach this year has greatly improved the team as the public can easily see by watching the sports pages of the two dailies.

A school chorus is in the making. Seventh and eighth grade students are being tried out in their regular music classes.

Through the cooperation of the Monroe fire department and the Civitan Club, Captain J. W. Faler, fire committee chairman, the fire patrol this year is being greatly improved. The Civitan Club has taken the project of fire prevention in the schools as one of their leading projects this year.

The junior patrol system is of great value to the school a dnstudents acting as patrolmen are commended by their teachers for their untiring efforts to keep order and appearance of the grounds and buildings.

P.-T. A. PROGRAM BEING ARRANGED

Mrs. Carl J. Thompson Named Central Grammar Group President

Central Grammar School elected the following officers for the ensuing year of its P.-T. A.: Mrs. Carl J. Thompson, president; Mrs. J. C. Liles, vice-president; Mrs. G. C. Fuller, secretary, and Mrs. Virginia Butler, treasurer.

The meeting was held in the school Wednesday at 3:30 p.m., with Mrs. Eulalia McCoy, chairman of the meeting. She introduced Mrs. M. L. De Freese, director of extension and life memberships of the state P.-T. A. who explained her work. She urged a better understanding between teacher and parent. Education, she said, has a two-fold purpose: to make good citizens and good providers and she said education must be such as to fit for the duties of life. "We plan together" is the theme for work and study this year, she explained.

The newly elected president, Mrs. Thompson, asked for the cooperation of the entire group in helping to make this the most successful year.

Mrs. Lester Dollar was named membership chairman to be assisted by all room mothers. Mrs. J. C. Liles and Mrs. Riser were named as representatives to the Twin Cities P.-T. A. council.

Supt. J. M. Boyet of the city schools, addressed the group stating some plans for improvement proposed.

G. E. Boggs, principal of Central Grammar School, extended a welcome to the organization. A new member of the school faculty, Mrs. Elizabeth Kemp, third grade, was introduced. A guest at the meeting was Mrs. Elizabeth Johnston, who recently retired after teaching for many years in the school's third grade.

A social hour and refreshments followed.

KIWANIANS BUSY IN MINISTRELSY

Intensive Practice Starts On 'Facts And Fancies' Production

The Monroe Kiwanis Club has begun intensive work on the 1949 minstrel that will be presented to the public November 8 at Neville High School auditorium. The show this year is entitled "Facts and Fancies." As it has been the past several years, the annual Kiwanis minstrel is a John B. Rogers production under the capable direction of Keithe Jingles.

Mr. Jingles arrived in Monroe October 27 to round into shape the local talent that will comprise the characters in the variety show-minstrel combination. Mr. Jingles is well remembered in Monroe for his fine direction of the Kiwanis hit "Alabamy Bound" that was presented in 1946. Mr. Jingles' host of friends in the cast and the Kiwanis Club turned out to welcome him at the first and second rehearsals of the show. For approximately twelve years Mr. Jingles has been directing plays for John B. Rogers and he has earned an enviable position in the honor roll of variety show directors. Not only has he directed plays but he has also appeared in eleven motion pictures. Another accomplishment of Keith Jingles is his appearance in the New York production of "Desert Song." The last show directed by Mr. Jingles was "Now and Ten" (the Kiwanis show of last season) In Ft. Worth, Tex. Here Mr. Jingles received the coveted honor of being made an honorary deputy sheriff of Tarrant county. This latter production was presented in the Will Rogers auditorium. Last summer Mr. Jingles directed a production on the estate of P. S. du Pont. Other productions directed by this versatile director are "Dancing Shoes" and "Cavalcade of McAlister."

"Facts and Fancies" is a delightful bit of history with modern swing music. Each scene in the first part of the show depicts incidents of history. Such historical characters as cave men, Cleopatra and Marc Anthony, Columbus and Isabella, and Bluebeard and Forever Amber, are seen in the show. Mr. Jingles stated that this year's show presents unusual costumes plus a chorus that will please any taste. All talent in the show will be local. The second part of the production, as it has been in the past, will be an old-fashioned minstrel. The show is a treat for the entire family and the public is urged to purchase tickets from any Kiwanian. Besides being an annual entertainment hit in the Twin Cities, the Kiwanis show enables valuable civic work toward boys and girls to be carried out by the club. Last year the main part of the profits of the production went toward a Girl Scout camp for Monroe and vicinity.

SMOOTH NEW POWER IN JUST 10 MILES - RISLONE IN YOUR OIL GUARANTEES IT!

Dissolves Gum and Sludge for Feelable Improvement ...or your money back!

Truck-Fleet Operators Use Rislone, Reduce Maintenance Costs

Rislone's "constant tune-up" action is low-cost preventive maintenance

Burned, sticking valves . . . clogged oil lines . . . gummed-up rings . . . and excessive wear from inadequate lubrication are a few of the typical problems that plague fleet owners. They cut profits with excessive "time off the job" in repair shops.

Experienced operators know how to keep their trucks out of the shop and on the road. They stretch the profit-earning period between service lay-ups by using Rislone with their oil — always.

They know that Rislone dissolves sludge instantly, prevents gummy deposits that interfere with lubrication and cause excessive wear of vital parts. They also know that Rislone maintains the full compression necessary for smooth performance, top gas mileage, low oil consumption, and all 'round economical operation.

In short, they know that a Rislone-clean engine is an engine that has a money-making service record.

Rislone eliminates new-car break-in, keeps older cars in tip-top condition as you drive

Cars of any age need Rislone, and need it all the time — for the full, clean lubrication that assures you peak performance.

New-car protection

By preventing gum and sludge deposits, and by assuring full lubrication, Rislone maintains the factory-fresh zip you value so much in a new car.

Rislone helps you avoid slow-speed break-in periods, too. By guaranteeing full, instant lubrication, it permits driving at normal speeds at once — with a reconditioned engine or with a brand-new car. You can forget about the usual 500 miles of slow speed. Drive as you like, from the word "go!", absolutely carefree. With Rislone, your motor is in good hands!

Tune-up for older cars

Rislone puts new life in cars that have been on the road for any length of time. If the car has been driven without Rislone, the difference is truly amazing! Your engine runs quieter, begins to deliver the smooth power of full compression, gives you new-car "get-up-and-go."

Ends sluggish pick-up, low-gear buck, power sputter, slow starting

Rislone in your oil makes a world of difference in the way your car runs. You can actually feel the improvement in the first 10 miles, as it dissolves gummy deposits which cause sluggish motor action. Full compression and power are restored. You enjoy power-surge pick-up, smooth driving at all speeds in all gears — and quick, easy starting in all weather!

Best of all, you can keep your car running that way — as thousands of motorists do — with Rislone in your oil. Rislone keeps your car at peak performance as you drive.

For winter driving

In cold weather, Rislone is an amazing aid to driving ease. The quart you put in your crankcase keeps oil free-flowing — for instant lubrication, quick starting and less drain on your battery!

Use Rislone in your oil all the time, all year 'round — absolutely no harmful ingredients

Rislone can be used in your car as a full-time lubricant, a "right-hand man" for your regular oil. Its job is to keep your oil doing its best in the motor of your car.

Modern motor oils have gum-forming properties. Those very properties make them good lubricants. The problem is to keep gum, sludge, and varnish from forming in the crank-case, on valve stems, piston rings and grooves, or other moving parts. When it does, your car loses pep and power — grows sluggish. But that can't happen with Rislone on the job.

Rislone absorbs gum and sludge instantly, prevents more deposits. It keeps oil free-flowing and at peak efficiency. Your car is better protected, gives you better, smoother performance.

And the way your car responds to the throttle makes driving much more pleasant.

Rislone Keeps Marine Engines Humming at Peak Efficiency

Engine dependability is a must in both pleasure-craft and workboats.

Rislone keeps boat engines free of gum and sludge. Break-downs caused by clogged oil lines, inadequate lubrication, and excessive wear are virtually eliminated.

Rislone stays right on the job while boats are idle, or hauled out for the winter. Gum and sludge deposits are again prevented. Spring-starting is quick and easy.

Here's what boat-owners say:

Tug-owner — "We never had a stuck valve or stuck ring. After 2500 hours of full-power operation, found all the rings free and the pistons not even dirty."

Outboard owner — "Rislone in my motor fuel increased the rpm from 250 to 400 rpm varying with the size and type of motor I was using."

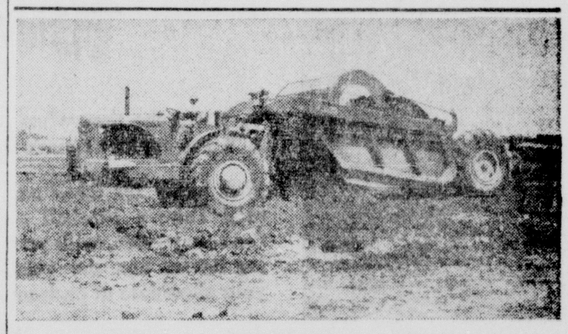
Keeps Farm Machinery Fit All The Time

Motors stay clean of gum and sludge with Rislone

A. H. Tangeman of California cut operating costs and oil consumption on his tractors 75% with Rislone. He says, "Before using Rislone, 600 hours was maximum run. Oil changes were necessary every 60 hours. Besides, we had to clean the crankcase of sludge each time. With Rislone, maximum run was increased to 2000 hours. There was less than .002" wear on cylinders, very little carbon on top of pistons, and all piston ring slots were free of usual carbon."

Farmers from coast to coast say that Rislone makes every stationary or mobile internal-combustion engine on the farm run better, longer, and require less service.

Rislone keeps engines free of power-wasting gum and sludge deposits. You enjoy smooth, full power, and you cut maintenance costs. Rislone maintains this efficiency even during winter storage. Spring-starting is quick and easy, operation is perfect.



Rislone Insures Against Costly Delays on Big Construction Jobs

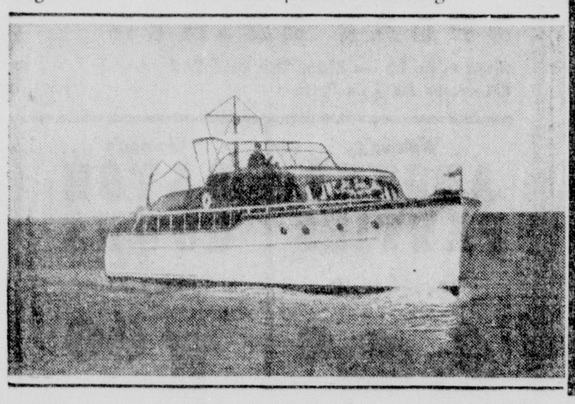
Maintains full power and dependability of huge equipment

Contractors who bid on huge construction jobs figure costs mighty close. Any delays increase estimated costs, cut profits — may even cause stiff penalties by missing the completion date.

The bidder's trucks, tractors, high-speed scrapers, generating sets, mixers, etc. must always be in top-notch condition. That's why many construction men use Rislone in this equipment as insurance against costly delays.

They report that Rislone maintains full power and dependability by keeping oil free-flowing; by dissolving gum and sludge to prevent sticky valves and clogged piston rings. Moreover, Rislone makes starting of powerful diesel and gasoline engines quick and easy — even in the coldest weather

Rislone delivers the same money-saving advantages in the operation and service of: municipal and industrial power plants, fire-fighting equipment, stationary and portable compressors, engine-driven pumping stations, sewage-disposal plants, irrigation installations, standby engines of all sorts — in fact, everywhere that you rely upon internal-combustion engines for dependable power.



Money-Back Guarantee When You Make This Test:

Have your regular service station add a quart of Rislone to your crankcase. Two quarts in larger motors.

Drive 10 miles. Watch for a feelqble difference: smoother, quieter power; new "get-up-and-go"; power-surge pick-up.

If you don't actually feel this difference in just 10 miles — return to your dealer for a full refund.

Initiate Class At St. Matthew's

The senior class at St. Matthew's School carried out the annual custom of initiating the freshman class into high school on October 21. Each freshman came to school dressed as a baby, equipped with a bottle, rattler, teether and baby oil and powder, which signified their parting with childhood activities and their beginning the more serious things in life.

They spent the day obeying every command given to them by the seniors and bowing to them each time they passed.

The initiation came to an end with the serving of refreshments in the afternoon. Recently St. Matthew's High School held their first social event of the school year.

A hayride sponsored by the social life committee was held and ended at W. J. Riley's camp.

Refreshments consisted of hot dogs and soft drinks.

TERRY AND THE PIRATES

by George Wunder

IF THE CAPTAIN SAHIB IS CONVINCED OF THE PRISONER GILBERT'S INNOCENCE IN THE MURDER OF THE MAN, SULIMAN, IS SHE TO BE RELEASED?

NOT YET. IN OUR JAIL SHE IS UNCOMFORTABLE, BUT QUITE SAFE.

FOR REASONS OF STATE, IT IS IMPRACTICAL FOR OUR SMALL COUNTRY TO MOVE IN ON EITHER THE UNDERGROUND WHICH SLIPS POLITICAL REFUGEES ACROSS OUR BORDER OR THE AGENTS FROM THE NORTH WHO SEEK TO STOP THEM.

THEREFORE, I ALLOW MISS GILBERT'S PLAN TO HAVE HER AMERICAN FRIENDS RE-ESTABLISH CONTACT WITH THE UNDERGROUND TO PROCEED. MATTER OF FACT, I'VE GUIDED THEIR SEARCH.

AT MY INVITATION, THEY ARE AT THE ANNUAL DIPLOMATIC SET'S BALL RIGHT NOW...THE UNDERGROUND WILL HAVE AN AGENT THERE TO OBSERVE. IF LEE AND CHARLES ARE CLEVER ENOUGH, THEY WILL FIND THEIR CONTACT.

AND IF MISS GILBERT'S MYSTERIOUS ESCAPEE IS DELIVERED TO THEM, THOSE WHO KILLED SULIMAN WILL BE DEALT WITH BY THEIR OWN MASTERS FOR THE CRIME OF BUNGLING!

MEANWHILE, AT THE DIPLOMATIC AFFAIR.

DOGGONE IT! ALL SORTS OF GOSSIP, RUMORS, BUT NOTHING THAT SOUNDS LIKE A LEAD...

THIS IS OUR DANCE, I THINK, BLOND ONE.

GUESS YOU'VE MISTAKEN ME FOR SOMEONE ELSE, MISS, OR AM I JUST LUCKY?

IT WOULD BE EASIER TO ANSWER QUESTIONS THERE, ON THAT DARKENED TERRACE.

HERE WE ARE, MISS. NOW...

HE'S YOURS, MADAM.

DICK TRACY

THAT DOG TRUCK! WHY DIDN'T WE THINK OF IT, SAM?

CHESTER GOULD

CRIMESTOPPERS' TEXT BOOK

TEETH ARE THE MOST DURABLE OF OF ALL TISSUES IN THE HUMAN BODY. HENCE THEIR GREAT VALUE WHEN OTHER MEANS OF IDENTIFICATION HAVE BEEN DESTROYED.

BUT, TRACY, WHEN I WENT AROUND TO THE BACK OF THE BUILDING, I LOOKED IN THE DOG TRUCK AND DIDN'T SEE A THING BUT DOGS.

HIDING UNDER THIS MINK COAT AMONG THE DOGS SAVED ME FOR THE MOMENT—BUT IT'S UP TO YOU TO KEEP ME CLEAR OF THE COPS, IF YOU VALUE YOUR LIFE.

WHILE WE PICKED UP OUR CAR, THE DOG TRUCK GOT A HEAD START—IT'S FULLY HALF A MILE UP THE ROAD.

THEY'VE GOT US SPOTTED! TAKE THIS CRATE OFF ON A SIDE ROAD, QUICK!

HOME FOR ORPHAN DOGS

I DIDN'T MEAN A GRAVEL ROAD, YOU FOOL! A CLOUD OF DUST IS A DEAD GIVEAWAY!

THAT'S WHAT I SAID! LET 'EM ALL OUT!

I'M RIDING SOLO FROM NOW ON.

HEY! HOLD IT! LOOK OUT!

THIS IS BETTER THAN CRASHING THEM.

MUGG

MEANWHILE, AT A CERTAIN SPOT ON THE RIVER FRONT.

IT WAS AWFUL. I LOST CONTROL OF THE CAB. BUT SOMEHOW I WAS ABLE TO CLIMB OUT.

YOUR PASSENGER WASN'T SO NIMBLE.

Right Around HOME

by Dudley Fisher

THEN THE BIG DOG SAID, "BOW-WOW-WOW"- AND THE LITTLE WHITE BUNNY RAN HOME AND HID IN THE BASEMENT SO SCARED HE DIDN'T KNOW HIS OWN NAME!

I NEVER GOT SO SICK AND TIRED OF A STORY IN ALL MY LIFE I READ THAT TO BINGO THREE TIMES BEFORE HE'D EAT HIS DINNER.

WELL. I READ IT TO HIM TWICE BEFORE SLUG TOOK OVER.

I'VE GIVEN THAT BOOK TO THE TRASH MAN TWICE, BUT BINGO FOLLOWS HIM OUT TO THE DUMP AND BRINGS IT BACK!

WE TOOK OUR PEKINESE TO SEE "LASSIE" AND WE HAD TO STAY FOR THREE SHOWS!

REMEMBER THE STORY THAT CECIL LIKED SO MUCH ABOUT THE OWL THAT SAID, "WHO"?

YEH, AND I SURE GOT FED UP READING THAT ONE, TOO!

WAIT UNTIL YOU HAVE A KID OLD ENOUGH TO GO FOR COWBOYS.

WELL, AT LEAST THAT'S A NEW ENDING!

YEH, AND LOOK AT THE FACE ON BINGO!

I'LL READ FOR A WHILE, SLUG, IF YOUR EYES ARE GETTING TIRED.

I WONDER WHY THEY DON'T WRITE ABOUT LITTLE DOGS WHO KEEP THEIR VOICES SOFT AND NEVER CHASE ANYBODY?

SO THE LITTLE WHITE BUNNY SOCKED THE BIG DOG RIGHT SMACK IN THE NOSE AND SENT HIM CRYING HOME TO HIS MAMA, AND HE NEVER BARKED AT THE LITTLE WHITE BUNNY AGAIN!

NOW YOU SEE, ARNOLD, HOW SILLY THOSE STORIES SOUND THAT YOU TELL ME OVER AND OVER.

KEEP YOUR SHIRT ON, SAMPSON. I'VE GOT AN IDEA!

GEE WHITH, MYRTLE, I READ THAT THTORY TO BINGO THEVENTEEN TIMETH AND HE THTILL WANTTH TO HEAR IT AGAIN!

I WITH I WATH THMART LIKE MYRTLE!

TEN MILLION IN JEWELS BY MIDNIGHT, TYDORE. IF WE DON'T GET THE JEWELS, WE GET YOU.

ENTERING PRINCE TYDORE'S HOTEL SUITE, THE PHANTOM DRIVES OFF HIS GUARDS AND LEARNS THAT HE, TOO, LIVES IN DEATHLY FEAR OF THE SINISTER THUGGEES.

EVEN YOU, THE PHANTOM, ARE POWERLESS TO HELP ME AGAINST THE THUGGEES. UNLESS I DO AS THEY SAY, I AM A DEAD MAN!

BUT YOU ARE WELL-GUARDED HERE, PRINCE.

"YES, GUARDS AT EVERY DOOR, ELEVATOR AND WINDOW OF THIS HOTEL FLOOR, AND I'M TEN STORIES UP FROM THE STREET" REPLIES TYDORE, NERVOUSLY.

"WHAT'S MORE, I HAVE DOZENS OF SERVANTS, COOKS, VALETS, FOOTMEN, ETC., BUT I TRUST NONE OF THEM. ANY ONE - OR ALL OF THEM, MAY BE THUGGEES!

SO I MUST DO WHAT THEY DEMAND - IT IS NOT THAT I FEAR DEATH - BUT THEY ARE EXPERTS AT TORTURE, THESE THUGGEE FIENDS.

YOU WILL NOT PAY THEM, TYDORE.

NO? AND WHEN THEY COME TO GET ME-- THEN WHAT?

THEN THEY WILL FIND ME

TYDORE MAY NOT PAY. IN THAT CASE WE WILL BRING HIM HERE. AFTER A FEW HOURS HERE, HE'LL CHANGE HIS MIND!
